

BERLIN STIRRED AS NEW DEATHS ARE REPORTED

Nazis Say Socialist Leader Is Suicide.

BERLIN, July 11.—While Germany was being subjected today to an intensive daily bombardment by the radio, a speech to the Reichstag Friday night, two bits of news spread new fear and horror among large classes of Germans.
Erich Muehsam, a prominent Socialist leader, committed suicide during protective arrest, under which he has been held ever since the Nazis took over power, it was announced.
Forty-eight American professors and students, invited to visit Germany by the German Association of Carl Schurz, were to have been guided around Berlin by Dr. Adolf Muehsam, chief of the Academic Student exchange. When they inquired today as to his whereabouts, they were told by officials that he was still in jail. Other sources, however, whispered to the professors that he was among those executed as traitors. Confirmation of his death is not available.
Claim Muehsam Hanged Self.
Muehsam, 57 years old, formerly was an anarchist. He played a part in the German revolution of 1918 and in the Bavarian soviet rule of terror in 1919. He spent five years in jail for his activities. After his release he switched from communism to socialism, devoting all of his time to writing.
Muehsam was last reported at the Orenburg concentration camp. A few days ago this camp was taken over from the administration of the Storm Troopers by Chancellor Hitler's own guards. The authorities assert that Muehsam hanged himself.
His death spread fear among the relatives of Socialists and communists held prisoners for a year or more. Friends of Ernst Torgler, the communist who was acquitted of a charge of helping to set fire to the Reichstag, are especially worried about his fate. The Nazis refused to release him despite his acquittal. The authorities insist that he and the others are still alive.
Urge Germans to Hear Speech.
Truckloads of Hitler's black uniformed, black helmeted bodyguards lined the Wilhelmstrasse near the chancellery today. It was consequently surmised that Hitler is in Berlin preparing for Friday's proclamation before the Reichstag.
Every effort is being made to insure a maximum radio audience for the chancellery address, which is expected to be his explanation of the bloody suppression of the "Roehm revolt" on June 30 and the stirring events since.
The Reichstag has been ordered to convene at 8 p. m., a time unusual for it, but convenient for the general public. Loud speakers will be erected in public places.
Phillip Kessler, the young Nazi who was picked as "the economic leader of Germany" and who was to have reorganized German business from the bottom up, was dismissed today by Minister of Economics Kurt Schmitt and replaced temporarily by Count Ruediger von der Goltz.
Seen as Conservative Victory.
This is regarded as a striking victory for German conservative industrialists, and especially for Count Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, who had vigorously protested against the administrative experiments Kessler sought to impose upon industry. A hint of the appointment of Count von der Goltz shoves temporarily the work for the organization of a corporative system of industry and enables Schmitt to carry out his economic dictatorship without being tied to Kessler's party apron strings. Schmitt has been ill for the last two weeks, but is expected to resume work now that Kessler, whom he opposed, has been eliminated.
The recall of the Austrian minister, Stefan Tauschitz, to take over the post of undersecretary of foreign affairs in Chancellor Dollfuss' cabinet prepares the way for a further arrangement between Austria and Germany. Diplomatic circles understand that Austria does not plan to send a new minister to Germany, which they believe will be felt as bitterly by the Nazis as the appointment of St. Pauli Fey as commissar for extraordinary security. The Nazis know Fey's special mission will be to curb the Nazis in Austria.
Austrians Living in Germany who are not members of Nazi organizations formed specially to "enable Austrians to show their loyalty to the Nazi regime," fear their position will be rendered more difficult. They speak of

NRA HUNTS FOR MORE TRADES TO FORCE IN LINE

Odd Ones to Be Put in Blanket Class.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., July 11.—[Special.]—In an attempt to complete the regimentation of industry with one bold stroke Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA taskmaster for industry, today ordered business men who are not yet under codes to subscribe to some existing code or be blanketed under a new "basic code" within the next 30 days.
Johnson's order means that the NRA intends to sweep almost all remaining independent industries under the Blue Eagle within the next month and then settle down to the task of enforcing its rule over shops and factories. His decree was taken also as a prelude to Johnson's own retirement, which he announced yesterday, and which is expected to follow soon after the drafting of codes is finished.
The "basic code" was made public by Johnson today. It is intended by the general to cover almost all industries—said to number about 250—now operating under specific codes.
Assumes Dictatorial Powers.
Johnson assumes almost dictatorial powers over the imposition of the basic code. He will write the code and hour standards to which an industry coming under this pact must comply. No public hearings will be held to discuss the imposition of the basic code on an industry, and the basic code forces on the industry all of the controversial features of the NRA, such as labor guarantees and price fixing.
To whip industry into line and clean up its codification Johnson set up a triumvirate of NRA administrators led by Robert K. Straus, his special assistant and the son of the ambassador to France, Jesse Straus. The other members of the cleanup squad are Leon C. Marshall and George S. Brady, assistant administrators for policy. This triumvirate is to report to Johnson as the work of winding up the regimentation of industry progresses.
Attack on Broad Front.
Johnson's attack on the uncoded industries will be waged on a broad front. Besides leading industries under either related codes or the basic code, Straus and his associates have been ordered by Johnson to hustle up 135 industries which have specific codes pending for hearing or approval.
Two important by-products will result from the new drive, Johnson explained. First, the move to cram independent industries under related codes will open up an opportunity to consolidate existing codes which overlap; Johnson hopes to cut the number of operating codes, which now stands at 476, down to 300. Second, a large part of the NRA force will be freed from code formation and will swing over to code enforcement.
No Rules for Exceptions.
The general professed not to wish that every industry in the country go under either a specific code or the blanket plan, but he laid down no rules for exceptions. In addition he warned that if any industry hangs back and is suspected of harboring some "abuse" of wages, hours, or conditions of labor, he may call it into a hearing to explain why it should not be under a code or under the new basic pact.
In addition, Johnson reserved for special handling a few vital codes, such as shipping, utilities, and anthracite coal mining, on which he has not yet obtained an agreement but which he considers important enough to wrestle with independently.
For the time being the initiative rests with industry as to what it shall do about complying with the basic code. Within the next 30 days the NRA will accept from "representative" groups in any uncoded industry an application for permission to go under the blanket code. Once such an application has been filed, however, Johnson holds almost dictatorial powers over the further steps.
No Public Hearings.
No public hearings will be held on the proposal to put an industry under the code. Members of the industry will be notified of the move, and, unless a flood of objections which the general considers serious pours in upon him within ten days, he will

PASTOR REBUKED BY INSULL ENDS LIFE IN BATHTUB

The Rev. John E. Le Long, 54 years old, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in Libertyville, committed suicide last night by drowning himself in a bathtub in his home at 423 Brainard avenue, Libertyville. His body was discovered by his wife.
Mrs. De Long also found in the living room a note addressed to her. It said in part: "I'm sorry I can't go on, but my health is gone." Dr. John L. Taylor, corner of Lake county, who was the De Longs' family physician, said that the pastor suffered from a nervous disorder.
For the last eight years the Rev. Mr. De Long had been pastor of the Methodist church in Libertyville. He was known as a dry crusader. At an anti-prohibition meeting in 1931 he was an advocate of repeal, for reading off a long list of questions to be answered by Ralph M. Shaw, who was the speaker.
PWA IS "BROKE";
LAST $400,000,000
FUND ALLOCATED
Washington, D. C., July 11.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes reported tonight the Public Works administration had allocated or earmarked nearly all its new funds and that "it is inevitable that thousands of applicants are doomed to disappointment."
President Roosevelt recently turned over to PWA about $400,000,000 of the maximum of $500,000,000 which congress authorized him to allocate for public works.
Ickes said the other $100,000,000 might be handed over to the PWA later, but that "we are proceeding on the theory that we will have $400,000,000 to spend" in addition to the original $3,800,000,000 appropriation disposed of long ago.

A counterfeit has been defrauding police station desk sergeants, it became known last night.
Sheffield and Damen avenue sergeants broadcast a warning to their colleagues last night to examine carefully all $10 bills which may be offered for bonds. Several days ago the Sheffield avenue station accepted a counterfeit bill. Tuesday night Damen avenue suffered the same indignity.
The deception became known when the Municipal court clerk examined the money, which was forwarded from the police stations.

Movie Makers Vote to Revise Booking Plan

Hollywood, Cal., July 11.—[Special.]—Following a closed conference on the subject of clean pictures today between Will Hays and heads of the motion picture producing companies in the Hays organization, a statement was issued stating:
"To strengthen the system of industrial self-regulation established by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America the following member companies of that association have agreed that each will grant exhibitors the right to omit the exhibition of any motion picture released prior to July 15, 1934, against which there is a genuine protest on moral grounds."
Ten Companies Sign.
Then ensued the following ten names: Columbia Pictures corporation, Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., First National Pictures, Inc., Fox Film corporation, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing corporation, Paramount Pictures Distributing corporation, R. K. O. Distributing corporation, United Artists corporation, Universal Pictures corporation, Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.
"This means that, in any community in which there is genuine concerted objection to a particular picture on moral grounds, an exhibitor who has contracted to exhibit that picture will be given the right to omit its exhibition without obligation for its rental," said the statement.
To identify all films bearing the approval of the association's production code administration [supposed to guarantee freedom from smut or suggestiveness], a distinctive seal will be shown on the screen directly after the main title of all pictures. This seal will be borne by every picture released after July 15 by members of the association as the industry's pledge that every precaution has been taken to insure compliance with the clean picture code.
Sets Cost at 10 Millions.
The action "will cost the producers around 10 million dollars or more," it was said, and was described as the local Hays' effect as "the biggest and most expensive demonstration this industry could possibly make in keeping faith with its followers and customers."
One consideration which proved disturbing to the producers, who have been strong past adherents of the "black booking" system, was a fear

Guard's Fire Halts Killer's Fourth Escape

Little Rock, Ark., July 11.—[Special.]—Helen Spence Eaton, 32 year old "river gal" from southeastern Arkansas, was shot dead by a trusty guard today as she was making her fourth attempt to escape from the Jacksonville women's prison farm.
The young woman had been convicted of one murder and had confessed another during her drama-filled life. She was in the act of drawing a pistol to battle her pursuers when a shotgun charge ended her career about nine miles from the prison farm, from which she fled yesterday. She had warned authorities she would never be taken alive.
Clad in a man's garb of overalls, shirt and heavy shoes, she made her last stand in the clump of brushwood. The trusty who shot her, Frank Martin, himself a convicted killer, said he fired when the young woman reached for a pistol in her blouse.
Fired When She Reached for Gun.
"I fired at Helen when she ignored my call to her to throw up her hands," he said, "and instead reached for a gun in her blouse."
The girl's body lay in the clump of brushwood for several hours until the coroner's inquest was held on the spot. The coroner announced a verdict of "justifiable homicide."
It was believed the girl was making for her native White river country when she stopped at a farmhouse this afternoon and demanded transportation at the point of a gun. The farmer's wife ran into a field screaming to her husband.
The farmer got back to his house and telephoned authorities at Jacksonville. It was the first clue they had obtained of the whereabouts of the fugitive, whose trail they had been following ineffectually with bloodhounds. Guard Martin and B. O. Brockman, deputy superintendent of the women's prison institution, sped to the farm and the fatal meeting ensued before the girl could make a getaway.
First Killed Father's Slayer.
Helen's first killing was to avenge the slaying of her father, Cicero Spence, a riverman. He had been attacked by two men, shot, and thrown into the White river, wounded but alive. Her stepmother, who was with Spence in a boat when the men attacked him, was also beaten so severely that she died two weeks later.
During the trial in January, 1931, of one of the men, Jack Worla, at De Witt, Helen sat silent in the crowded courtroom, listening to hours upon hours of testimony. The case neared the end and the jury was about to retire when the girl stood up from her seat in a front row and fired four bullets at the defendant.
"He killed my daddy," she said; "I was afraid they would acquit him."
Helen was held for trial. While in jail she attempted suicide by shooting herself in the chest, but the wound was slight. She was sentenced to five years' imprisonment for killing Worla, but the Supreme court later reduced the penalty to two years.
Restaurant Man Slain.
Before the decision came from the Supreme court, Jim Bohots, who had given the river girl a job in his restaurant at De Witt, was found slain in his automobile on a backwoods road.
The waitress was suspected of having repulsed a too ardent suitor and she was questioned. She was finally released, however, and the killing was charged off as an unsolved crime.
Helen went to prison late in 1931 for her first murder and was paroled in 1933 by Gov. Parnell. Coming to Little Rock, she worked in a restaurant under an assumed name for a time but then her conscience became active.
One day she astounded authorities by walking into a police station and, without a trace of emotion, confessing the shooting of Bohots.
"My conscience got to bothering me," she explained.
At the trial she said she had shot

FOUR STRIKERS SHOT BY POLICE IN COAST RIOT

Portland Pickets Attack Train.

Portland, Ore., July 11.—[Special.]—Four strike pickets were wounded today, two of them seriously, when they were struck by police bullets during a battle between maritime workers and policemen guarding a freight train.
The shooting occurred as pickets attempted to halt the train. A crowd of union men collected about the cars and hurled a barrage of rocks at the locomotive cab. Then they tried to uncouple the cars. The police fired into their ranks and four fell.
The clash took place near municipal terminal No. 4, to which train crews were trying to run the freight train through the blockade of pickets.
Agree to Arbitrate.
San Francisco, Cal., July 11.—[Special.]—A proposal to arbitrate differences in the strike of 27,000 Pacific coast marine workers today was accepted by the employers and submitted to a referendum of the idle longshoremen.
The offer of arbitration came from President Roosevelt's labor disputes board, seeking to avert a general strike which would involve more than 100,000 union workers on the seaboard. It was accepted unconditionally by steamship companies and employers in the major ports, and a few hours later William J. Lewis, Pacific coast president of the International Longshoremen's association, announced the 12,000 striking members of that organization would vote upon the proposal. The status of 15,000 other idle marine workers remained uncertain.
Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, chairman of the President's board, said he was encouraged, but added "I am going to say my prayers while we wait."
Teamsters Vote to Strike.
Meanwhile San Francisco's 2,800 union teamsters confirmed their vote to strike at midnight as a protest against conditions resulting from the maritime dispute.
The action of the teamsters, who had been appealed to by the President's mediation board to postpone their walk-out, will tie up all heavy trucking in the city. Their decision came a short time after 1,200 teamsters of Alameda county, in which Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, and other East San Francisco bay communities are located, had voted to strike at midnight.
Labor leaders considered the teamsters' action a definite step toward general strikes on both sides of the bay. Support for such a strike has been voted by many unions.
Portland Adds to Unrest.
The move toward a general strike was intensified by the wounding of four men in a clash between pickets and police at Portland, and in other outbreaks along the coast.
The clash at Portland was described by authorities there as having made the situation "desperate." Gov. Julius L. Meier of Oregon said he felt it "incumbent upon me to demand that the employes, parties to controversy, also accept the principles of arbitration and submit all questions in controversy to the President's mediation board."
Vote Minneapolis Strike.
Minneapolis, Minn., July 11.—(AP)—Minneapolis truck drivers tonight voted to strike, effective at midnight Monday, after an all day conference between union leaders and employers' representatives failed to bring about terms to ward off a walkout.
Before the vote was taken Robert Fleming, president of the St. Paul Drivers' union, assured the mass meeting of truck drivers and helpers that "St. Paul is with you because we have the same grievances you have. St. Paul truck drivers will meet tomorrow night to consider a strike."
The strike vote was taken after union leaders hurled charges of "double-crossing" by employers as threatened to "tie up every semblance of transportation which we are convinced is not cooperating with us and to 'pick up right where we left off.'"
More than 200 persons were injured and two persons fatally hurt in the 11 day strike of the truck drivers which ended May 25.
Fear of Famine Ends.
Seattle, Wash., July 11.—(AP)—Food laden ships steamed toward Alaska waters today and worry over a threatened famine in the north was at an end.
Volney Richmond Sr. of the Northern Commercial company, which has trading stations widely scattered throughout the territory, said there were shortages at many points. Meat supplies had become exhausted and stores of other staples were dwindling.
The possibility of a famine lay in the fact that more than 90 per cent

Nine Held in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 11.—(P)—Nine men were held by police tonight on warrants charging disorderly conduct as a result of a strike disturbance at the Wehr Steel company West Allis plant, in which one shot was fired when workers attempted to run through the picket blockade today.

An augmented force of deputy sheriffs and police of West Allis, a Milwaukee suburb, restored order after quelling a melee in which about 100 pickets fought with other workers and overturned one automobile.

Escorted by police, the machine approached the plant only to find a close picket formation blocking the entrance. One car attempted to speed through but crashed against a wall. Occupants of another car closed in with clubs and while a third car sped away after one shot was fired from it.

Vote Steel Plant Walkout.

Warren, O., July 11.—(P)—Following the decision of the Republic Steel corporation not to renew its contract with them, members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers in the company's Warren sheet and tin mill today voted not to return to work until the company signs a wage agreement with the union.

Pekin Strike Ends.

Pekin, Ill., July 11.—(P)—The strike of more than 200 employees of the Corn Products Refining company was ended today with ratification of an agreement drawn up by the Rev. J. W. Maguire, member of the Chicago regional labor board, and three members of the union local.

The plant, closed since picketing started, will be in full operation by Monday, company officials announced, and pickets were withdrawn tonight.

HAVANA STRIKERS KILL 1, BUT FAIL TO DISRUPT CITY

HAVANA, July 11.—(P)—One man was killed and several arrested in Havana's 24 hour strike today, but normal activities of the city were not greatly affected.

A street car motorman, who resisted strike sympathizers when they tried to pull him from his car, was slain by rioters near the university. Shots were fired at police who tried to quell this disturbance.

There were five other attacks on street cars and buses, but there was little disturbance to business. The hope of the confederation of labor that 50,000 strikers would tie up transportation and other businesses was not realized, authorities said.

Employees of four newspapers returned to their tasks at 6 p. m., although the general strike was to continue until midnight. The strike was called as a protest against the detention of "social prisoners," some of whom are on a hunger strike.

DOCTOR'S WIFE IS FOUND DEAD OF CHLOROFORM

Apparently overcome by fumes from chloroform she was using to remove a spot from a dress, Mrs. Betty Semerak, 49 years old, was found dead last night in a small laundry room in the basement of her home at 1171 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park.

The body was discovered by her husband, Dr. Joseph Semerak, 74 years old, when he returned from his office at 1669 Blue Island avenue.

A partly filled bottle of chloroform was found near Mrs. Semerak's right hand. Police pointed out that she had failed to open the windows of the small room. Dr. Semerak said he had warned his wife several times not to use chloroform unless the windows were open. An inquest will be held today.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 11.—(Special)—John [Jake] Barber Factor today said he intends opening a Los Angeles brokerage house.

REPORT TIGHE OF STEEL UNION TO RETIRE SOON

Radical Wing Backs New Leadership.

Pittsburgh, July 11.—(P)—The end of 35 years of steel union service seemed near for Michael V. Tighe tonight as reports went out that the aging president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers would retire.

Sources close to the organization disclosed the younger and more progressive members, allied with a "rank and file" group, are picking a new slate of officers.

These names must be presented to the union by July 15 and under regular procedures would have to be voted on by a referendum in September, when Tighe's present term expires.

He's still undecided.

The 73 year old leader, who is attending wage conferences of his organization with the Western Sheet and Tin Plate Manufacturers' association, declined comment other than to say:

"I have not yet reached a decision. In a few days I will make a statement regarding it."

It was said he would like to retire because of his age, but his final decision will be based largely on what he feels are the needs of the union.

Those under consideration for the union's offices by the "rank and file" element are said to be:

George Williams, president of the Canonsburg lodge of the Amalgamated, for president; L. A. Morris of Canton, Ohio, and Roy A. Kelsey of Gary, Ind., for vice presidents; William J. Long, leader of the Weir-Covey lodge, for secretary-treasurer, and Jack Byers of Indiana Harbor, for managing editor of the Amalgamated Journal, union newspaper.

Credited for Stopping Strike.

It was largely through the efforts of Tighe that the recent nationwide strike threat was averted in the course of a turbulent union convention in Pittsburgh.

Tighe rose from the ranks to head the Amalgamated for the last 15 years. Prior to that he was assistant secretary for 18 years and secretary-treasurer for another seven.

Conspicuously absent from the list of those believed under consideration as new officers are Earl J. Forbeck of McKeesport, Pa., and William J. Spang of Duquesne, Pa., both of whom were active leaders of the "rank and file" group in the recent move for a nationwide strike.

The self-styled "rank and file" was long at odds with Tighe and the other international officers, but the breach was apparently healed at the recent convention.

Continuous Wage Conferences.

Meanwhile union officials headed by Tighe continued their deliberations with the Western Sheet and Tin Plate Manufacturers' association in an effort to reach wage agreements, despite withdrawal of Republic Steel corporation from the parley.

Seven independent companies are said to be represented in the negotiations with Amalgamated, now that Republic has stepped out.

Elias Jenkins, secretary of the manufacturing group, said the wage scales presented by the union "always are one sided and are always toned down."

He added: "There is what we are feeling now. It will be several days, probably, before any definite announcement can be made."

German Navy Pays First Post-War Visit to Britain

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

PORTSMOUTH, England, July 11.—(P)—The arrival of the cruisers Koenigsberg and Leipzig today marked the first German naval visit to England since the world war. The vessels are here for a four day courtesy call as guests of the English navy. They received a warm welcome and a program of entertainment is planned for the officers and men.

Farm Strike Red Agitators Await New Orders in N. Y.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS. (Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, July 11.—(Special)—A moderately enthusiastic reception was extended at communist headquarters in East 13th street today to the professional agitators reporting back for new assignments following the conclusion yesterday of the unique farm hands strike at Bridgeton, N. J.

That the greeting was not warmer was due to the unfortunate circumstance that the strikers turned against Donald Henderson, former Columbia university professor and strike leader, in the final hours of the walkout.

Henderson was threatened with violence by the farm hands when he sought to force a continuation of the strike. This was felt to have hurt the communist cause.

Avoid Further Orders.

However, Henderson and his wife, Eleanor, who was jailed for her activities in the Bridgeton strike, are slated for further important duties in the stirring up of labor troubles, it was reported. Henderson's wife is already noted for her agitation in the California citrus strike. Vivian and Lief Dahl were other "strike leaders" in the farm riots who received official commendation today in the Daily Worker, official communist newspaper, for their "militant activities."

An investigation indicated that most of the strikes now troubling the country are directed from communist headquarters in New York. Close secrecy is maintained at the offices of the communist party of America concerning this phase of the labor situation, but a chart on display showing the strike movements in all parts of the United States hints at the part played by communists in the various movements.

List Several Strikes.

The farm workers' strike was checked off the chart, but the following were listed:

Longshoremen and seamen through out Pacific coast.

Union weavers, McKeesport, O. Tire workers, Akron, O. Poultry slaughter house workers, New York.

Possible strike of truckmen at Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Limestone mill workers, Bedford, Ind.

Chicagoans, amazed to see what looked like an ocean-going steamer docked alongside the north end of the Navy pier, learned yesterday that it was the "Seandebbe," the largest passenger boat on the Great Lakes.

The huge boat, which is as broad in the beam as the Leviathan, was making the first of eleven weekly tours of the lakes from Cleveland and Buffalo to Chicago. It holds a government license to carry 6,000 passengers, according to an officer of the company, but the boat has been turned into a first class passenger vessel with luxury accommodations for only 500 passengers.

Docking in Chicago each Wednesday, the "Seandebbe" will maintain a regular schedule between Chicago and ports to the north, including Mackinac, the Soo, and Georgian Bay. It left the Navy pier at midnight.

Tourists Quit Cabin; Leave $14,000 Under Mattress

North Wilbraham, Mass., July 11.—(P)—When Michael Evershank cleaned out an overnight cabin today after tourists from New Rochelle, N. Y., had departed, he found under the mattress a bulky wallet containing checks and cash totaling $14,000. Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Hoffman, later discovered their loss and sped back. They stopped in Springfield and had a police sergeant go with them. Evershank, however, had the pocketbook ready.

Prosecution of The Long Island Press for alleged violation of the collective bargaining provision of the NRA was asked of the United States attorney's office in Brooklyn by Messrs. Brown and his colleagues in the public law 7. Hickok, United States attorney, received the delegation, but made no public announcement of any action.

BUTTON CUTTER DIES OF POISON.

Muskegon, Ind., July 11.—(Special)—William Flattery, 40, a button cutter, died today after drinking poison.

Thread company employees, Fall River, Mass.

Tugmen on the great lakes.

Fur workers, Danbury, Conn.

Representatives of the communist party have been dispatched to mingle with the strikers in each of the above areas, it was learned. Their instructions, it was learned, are to magnify the size of the strike. The provocation of clashes between picketers and police is a favorite method of advertising the strike, according to information gleaned at the headquarters.

Poses as Worker.

In the farm workers' strike Henderson, the former college professor, posed as a field worker himself, garbed in overalls and blue shirt. He fought strenuously all efforts at conciliation between the workers and their employers. It was his insistence that the strike be continued that caused threats to be directed against him by the hungry and desperate farm hands who had walked out only because they had been assured that their wages were about to be cut. They were eager to return to work when promised that their present wages would be maintained and that they would not be discriminated against because of the strike.

John Moffett, the federal confidant who is known to be favorable to labor, admitted today that the main trouble at Bridgeton was due to the efforts of the communists.

Fought Final Settlement.

"Even after we had agreed on terms and the workers had heard the settlement read and displayed their willingness to accept, the communists tried to break things off," he said.

Several hundreds of the striking farm hands went back to work today and more will return tomorrow. Their usefulness ended for the moment, the agitators slipped out of town, spurred by a warning from the superintendent of state police that if they did not leave voluntarily they would be ejected by force. All prisoners arrested during the strike were released and charges against them dropped.

Charles F. Seabrook, president of the corporation which owns the farm, estimated that the strike had cost the organization about $75,000 in crop losses. The loss to the strikers was a pay roll totaling about $30,000.

JUNIOR LEADERS OF G. O. P. TELL THEIR PLATFORM

Win Recognition Chance from Party Chiefs.

Well satisfied with the recognition given them by the elder leaders of the party, young Republicans adjourned their national conference at the Palmer house last night after adopting a statement of principles. Their platform, they felt, compared well in its denunciation of the New Deal with the statement of the Republican national committee made in Chicago last month.

Warm hands of encouragement have been extended to the young Republicans by the national committee, their leaders feel, and for the first time they have been given some assurance that their voice may be raised in party council.

There was one setback, but it was technical. At their meeting Tuesday the young men and women of the party, representing 19 states, adopted a resolution requesting that their national chairman and vice chairman, when selected, be given places in the national committee. They did not ask that their two representatives have votes in the committee's deliberations, but merely the chance to be heard.

Put Up to Convention.

A subcommittee of the national committee, composed of John D. M. Hamilton of Kansas, Mrs. M. L. Foss of Minnesota, and Harrison E. Spangler of Iowa, considered this application and just before the conference ended brought in a report.

"The national committee," Hamilton explained, "is constituted by the national convention. Its membership is decided by the convention. If your organization proves its worth, the request for enlargement of the committee to include your representatives can be made at the next convention."

In the remainder of its report the subcommittee praised the purpose behind organization of the young Republicans, and approved everything else done at the conference, including the stipulation that the membership ages in the junior organization should be 18 to 35 years.

One Note of Dissension.

The only dissension noted in the final day's deliberations of the conference came during consideration of the resolution committee's report, read to the delegates by the chairman, Amos K. Bagley of Salt Lake City. Three eastern delegates—Albert B. Hermann of New Jersey, Archie Dawson of New York, and Charles Nelson of Maine—found the report lacking in a "constructive program" and their were the only opposing votes when the roll was called for its adoption.

The platform or "statement of policy" said:

"We, a national conference of young Republicans, believe that only an alert, informed and aroused citizenry can preserve the priceless traditions of freedom and justice for ourselves and future Americans, and we call upon all who love this country and the principles for which it stands to resist—before it is too late—the growth of the despotic concept that the people belong to the government, and to defend the Republican idea that the government belongs to the people."

Acts of Congress Condemned.

"We condemn a congress which abdicates its lawmaking duties, as provided in our constitution, and delegates its legislative powers to appointed bureaucrats, not responsible to the will of the people. We condemn a government which subsidizes waste and destroys plenty; which creates tremendous debts to be shouldered by our generation and those yet unborn; which stifles initiative by denying citizens the fruits of industry, thrift, and honesty; which implants fear by espionage, spying and 'black laws' methods, which establishes wholesale regimentation of thought and action; which substitutes showmanship for statesmanship."

"We believe the new Republican party should be an aggressive party, strongly supporting the traditional principles of constitutional government, with leadership characterized by a partnership of the wisdom and ex-

While the junior leaders were in session the seniors were counting the contributions and pledges made to the Republican party's treasury by a number of the 66 guests at Silas Strawn's dinner for National Chairman Henry F. Fletcher at the Old Elm club Tuesday night.

"I can't say exactly how much was raised," said George F. Getz, Republican national treasurer, "as there were a number of canvassers."

It was indicated, however, that the canvass at the dinner had raised approximately $50,000, half the Illinois quota. Mr. Getz said he expected the state's full quota would be raised by next week.

'FRAMEUP' HEARD AT OPENING OF SCANDAL TRIAL

Booker of Movie Extras
Blames Jealousy.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
Los Angeles, Cal., July 11.—[Special.]—Charges were heard today that June De Long and Gloria Marsh, movie extra girls, had conspired with a film actor and his wife, a woman state witness, to drive Dave Allen from his job as head of Hollywood's biggest movie casting bureau. It was declared the defense would produce witnesses to prove this conspiracy was back of the trial of Allen and Miss Marsh on morality charges. Jerry Geisler, chief defense counsel, this afternoon laid down the gage of battle with the prosecution before the jury of four women and eight men.

Tells Jury of Events.
The first two witnesses were Mrs. Grace Whittier, manager of the apartment house in which the Allen-Marsh incident took place, who testified about the rooms and the look on the door, and Mrs. Pearl Owens, movie actress, who related intimate details of the scene of which she said she accidentally became a witness when she walked unexpectedly through the unlocked door of Miss De Long's apartment last April 26.

She said Miss De Long and Miss Marsh were nude and Allen was partially undressed, and that she stood for several seconds too amazed to speak. When Allen saw her he rushed at her shouting, "It's a frameup," she testified.

The girls ran into the dressing room while Allen asked if Pat Harmon or Allen Garcia, movie actors, had sent her to the apartment, she said. "I said I had merely come to get some photographs from Miss De Long, and no one had sent me," she told the jury.

Allen then demanded to know, she testified, if she "was a spotter for a woman's club," which she denied.

Charges Bribery Attempt.
After Miss Marsh had departed Allen offered her and Miss De Long $200 to "keep quiet," she asserted. The witness said Allen demanded of Miss De Long: "Haven't I paid for every party I've had in my apartment?" Miss De Long, she said, replied: "No."

The first party in my apartment was when you promised to register me for picture work at Central Casting bureau. The second party was after I visited you at your office in search of employment."

Allen then suggested, the witness said, that "everybody knows what I do; the kind of parties I like, let's you and Miss De Long and I have a party and forget the whole thing?"

Mrs. Owens said she declined and Allen left the apartment followed by Miss De Long, who promised to obey his demand to "get out of town."

State Relies on Girl.
Geisler's outline of the defense case was submitted after Arthur Veitch, deputy district attorney, had informed the jury and Superior Judge Roy Schauer that the state's case was built on Miss De Long's testimony before the grand jury covering the occurrences in her apartment, and the testimony to be given by Miss Owens, motion picture actress, who is expected to tell her story from the stand tomorrow.

In the course of his jury address, Veitch said he would prove the De Long girl had been placed under pressure to lend her apartment for meeting places between extra girls and men in the movies, before either she or the other girls could be sure of getting work through the casting office Allen managed.

Miss Marsh will be the chief witness for the defense, according to Charles Cetron, associate counsel. She will contend that her arrest with Allen was part of a previously worked out plot, he predicted.

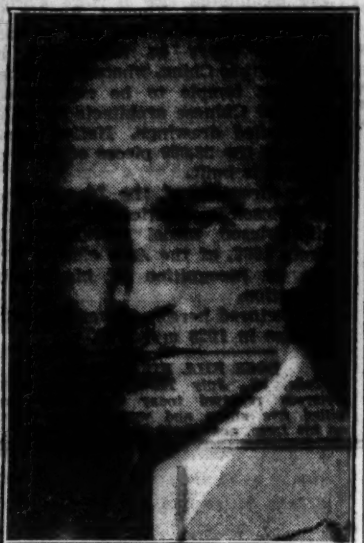

Charge Lenient Prosecution.
Shortly after the jury selection had been completed, with the swearing of two additional women as alternate jurors in case of sickness in the regular panel, the fourteen members were dismissed, while Prosecutor Veitch laid a local newspaper clipping before Judge Schauer for action.

The clipping, published this morning, charged that "one member of the district attorney's staff is more interested in gaining an acquittal in the Allen-Marsh case than in anything else." Veitch said he construed the paragraph as hitting at him, and on his request Judge Schauer issued a subpoena for the appearance of the writer.

FORMER MOVIE BEAUTIES GO TO COURT WITH ROW

Los Angeles, Cal., July 11.—[Special.]—Mary Miles Minter and Hilda Deesy, both former movie beauties and partners in a dress shop, faced each other in Municipal court today, with Mary suing for $175 and Hilda demanding $165 from Mary, and each asking "vindication from nasty allegations rather than the money."

Miss Minter testified she lent Hilda $75 to help start the little shop, and that after Hilda had repaid $14 of the loan, Mary brought some dress material to be made into a gown. What was her amazement, she testified, to find her material fashioned into a dress for another woman when she visited the shop. She said she merely took possession of "my material and removed it from the shop."

Miss Deesy, who had filed a petty theft complaint involving the removal of the dress goods in the action that led to the suit, is to testify later.

JURIST UPHOLDS FREEDOM OF BEES AT PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., July 11.—[Special.]—Legal observation on bees, as set forth by the Roman emperor, Justinian, and the English jurists, Bracton and Blackstone, were cited today in the case of Joseph Rexer's bees. An injunction was sought by owners of a nursery, Judge Harry S. McDevitt, who denied the restraining order, said:

"Bees are like flies." The jurist added they are "not generally vicious," although in a sense wild animals, proving this remark by Justinian. The plaintiffs, Herbert and Drew Altman, charged the bees stung them, their employees, and guests. The bees also cross fertilized their snapdragons, on which they were working for more scientific blends.

Judge McDevitt declared there was no evidence that the bees in question were the property of Rexer, stating that bees are in the category of wild animals, free to roam at will.

METHODISTS VOTE TO JOIN DRIVE ON INDECENT MOVIES

World Service Commission
Formulates Program.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
The world civil service commission of the Methodist Episcopal church voted yesterday to participate in the Legion of Decency campaign against smutty moving pictures. Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf is president of the commission, which is holding sessions in the North Shore hotel, Evanston.

Bishop Waldorf announced several weeks ago that Methodism, along with other churches holding membership in the federal council of churches, would engage actively in the drive to clean up the movies. Yesterday's action made Methodism's participation in the movement official.

Dr. English in Charge.
The commission appointed the board of education of the church to lead the campaign with Dr. Merle N. English, assistant secretary, in charge. Pledge cards similar to those circulated by the Catholic church will be distributed to all members of the Methodist church.

The Catholic church continued its campaign in Chicago yesterday with the announcement that 5,000 house to house canvassers are being mobilized in an effort to enroll every Catholic man in Chicago and in suburban communities in the Legion of Decency.

Leaders to Meet Tomorrow.
The Rev. Louis F. Krook, director of the Holy Name society, called a meeting for tomorrow evening at the Catholic Youth Organization center, 31 East Congress street, to which the presidents and spiritual directors of every parish branch of the legion are invited. At this meeting the plans for the canvassers are to be formulated.

Father Krook asserted that 250,000 pledge cards have already been distributed to Catholic men here. "We are going to continue our battle until every Catholic man in the archdiocese is enrolled," he said.

Says He Made Her Ill. Baby Arrives, Italians Told

ROME, July 11.—(AP)—An official communique today asked the adoring Italian people not to shower gifts on the infant expected by Crown Prince Umberto of Italy and his wife, Princess Marie Jose. Citizens with an impulse to equip bassinets were asked to make their contributions to the National Mothers and Infants' Protective association. The birth of the royal infant is expected by mid-autumn.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 11.—(AP)—Picturing her movie Tarzan as a violent, cursing, furniture wrecking husband, Lupe Velez, vivacious Mexican screen actress, filed divorce proceedings here today against Johnny Weissmuller, screen actor and Olympic swimming champion. Only last night she announced they had separated.

Charging cruelty, Miss Velez asserted her Tarzan "cursed, swore, and threatened his wife," and that he "broke and destroyed furniture in the home and some of the articles struck the plaintiff and caused severe cuts and lacerations."

DEATH OF CO-ED NOW BLAMED TO QUACK MEDICINE

New Version of Tragedy Is Told by Woman.

Norman, Okla., July 11.—[Special.]—County Attorney Paul Updegraff expressed the belief today that Miss Marian Mills, 20 year old campus beauty queen at the University of Oklahoma, died as the result of an attempt to forestall the birth of a baby. Meanwhile a diligent search was being made for Neal Myers, a pharmacy student, who had been the girl's companion in an overnight stay at the home of Mrs. Hazel Brown. He disappeared yesterday after summoning a physician to the home of Mrs. Brown, where the body of the girl was found.

Woman Tells Story.
Attorney Updegraff said that Mrs. Brown, who is a cook for the Delta Upsilon fraternity, admitted to him that Miss Mills, the daughter of Elbert M. Mills, an associate professor at the university, had been taking a "quack" medical preparation in an attempt to avert motherhood.

Mrs. Brown told of the futile efforts to obtain medical aid for the girl during the last four months and of the desperate resort to the preparation when the couple became frightened. She said Myers came to her last April and confessed he was in trouble about a girl, the attorney declared.

Mrs. Brown said she sent the pharmacy student to a doctor in Oklahoma City, but the doctor wanted $75, which was more than Myers could raise.

Marriage in Doubt.
"After that he just worried me to death about the matter," the attorney said Mrs. Brown told him. "But on Monday he told me he had obtained a prescription from a Chickasha doctor and asked for a place to stay while the preparation was being taken. I had to try to protect the girl's reputation, so I consented to their staying here."

Myers told her that he and Miss Mills were married, Mrs. Brown said. The young man's mother, Mrs. P. B. Myers, said at her home at El Reno that she had learned definitely the couple was secretly married.

However, relatives of Miss Mills said the girl was engaged to marry Bernard Doug, university engineering student who lives in Shreveport, La.

CHILDREN INVADFAIR TODAY; BIG PARADE PLANNED

Ideal Weather Swells the Attendance.

Today will be Children's day at A Century of Progress and youngsters under 12 years of age will be admitted to the grounds and most of the concessions for a nickel. A program of entertainment with prizes has been arranged by officials and concessionaires.

The children's parade through the grounds, which will start at 11 a. m., will include six musical units and a number of new floats. The Benton Harbor, Mich., junior band will be placed in the first division of the parade. Four Boy Scout drum and bugle corps will be in the line of march.

Frank Buck, the big game expert, will choose a boy and a girl to be his guests for the day. He will take them for a tour of the Fair and later to a restaurant in one of the villages for luncheon.

Plan Toy Balloon Race.
The first 100 children to reach the Armour exhibit at the 16th street bridge at 1 p. m. each will receive a toy balloon. Each balloon will carry the name and address of the boy or girl who releases it and prizes will be given to the youngster whose balloon travels farthest.

Attendance at the Fair continued its upward swing and the paid visitors who passed through the turnstiles yesterday set a new record for a non-holiday Wednesday. At midnight the registers showed 84,695 had entered. The largest previous total attendance for a nonholiday Wednesday was on June 27, when 67,147 persons passed through the turnstiles. Both Decoration day and the Fourth of July fell on this day.

Weather Swells Crowd.
Fair skies and a cooling breeze off Lake Michigan, ideal summer resort weather, contributed in a large degree to yesterday's large attendance. At noon the Hovell thermometer on the grounds recorded a temperature of 82 degrees and at 4 p. m. the temperature was 76 degrees.

Temperatures reported in other cities yesterday were: Kansas City, 95; St. Louis, 100; Columbia, Mo., 97; Moline, Ill., 89; Burlington, Ia., 98; Des Moines, 88; and Omaha, 95.

The managers of the Fair villages met in the office of Nathaniel Owings, in charge of concession operations, yesterday and agreed there is no need to reduce the 25 cent admission price to the villages.

SAMUEL INSULL ATTACKS SECOND U. S. INDICTMENT

Counsel for Samuel Insull Sr. and 10 co-defendants yesterday began arguments on a demurrer to an indictment charging violation of the national bankruptcy laws through illegal transfers of Corporation Securities company assets.

The defendants are to be tried first on an indictment charging use of the mails to defraud, which has been sustained against all attacks by Judge James H. Wilkerson. The trial is scheduled for Sept. 18. If successful in this case the government may never try the bankruptcy case, according to United States Attorney Dwight H. Green. However, Insull's lawyer, Floyd E. Thompson, insisted that the bankruptcy indictment was defective and said he did not wish to have it "hang over Insull's head." Thompson's principal argument was that the Insull companies, in paying dividends while allegedly insolvent, floating loans and posting huge blocks of collateral for these loans, were not more guilty than the government is because of its present financial operations. The arguments will be resumed today.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Ford motor parties of officials and employees from Pittsburgh and Cleveland arrived in Chicago yesterday evening for the New York Central lines for several days at the Fair. A special train from Elkhart, Ind., will bring 300 members of the American Legion today, and a special from Pittsburgh will bring 450 newsmen of the Pittsburgh Sun Telegraph for a two day visit.

Alexander Antonovich Troyanovsky, ambassador from Soviet Russia to the United States, will be accorded a formal reception on his arrival at the Fair tomorrow morning.

College day will be celebrated at A Century of Progress tomorrow and university athletes employed on the grounds will participate in a number of athletic contests which will begin at 2 p. m.

Louis Aubuchon, 84 years old, of St. Louis, was a visitor at the World's Fair yesterday. Aubuchon, who fought for the south during the civil war, said that he left St. Louis for the first time in 50 years yesterday. He insisted on seeing the Fair on foot, declaring that he believes his longevity is due to the great amount of walking he does each day. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. J. V. Yennier, and granddaughter, Mrs. Oliver Gracey, and her husband.

In order to demonstrate that there is no logical connection between misfortune and superstitious omens, the Anti-Superstition Society will meet tomorrow Friday the thirteenth at the Brookhill Dairy farm exhibit at the World's Fair. Members of the society will sit at a table at a luncheon to be served there. The program will include walking under ladders, lighting three cigarettes on a match, and other superstitious practices. A black cat will be mascot at the meetings.

Three hundred baby pictures, picked at random from the thousands entered in the Sears, Roebuck & Co. Century of Progress contest to find the most beautiful baby in America, were placed on display in the Sears building at the Fair yesterday morning.

Retreat ceremonies by the army, navy and marine contingents stationed at Camp Roosevelt will be held hereafter in the Court of Honor at 14th street and on the Avenue of Flags instead of on the plaza of the General Exhibits building. The ceremonies will be held each Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, beginning with a parade from the camp at 4 p. m.

Both the Chicago Symphony orchestra and the Detroit Symphony will pay special tribute to France on Bastille day, Saturday, devoting portions of their programs to music of French composers.

Marquis Alberto Rossi Longhi, chargé d'affaires at the Italian embassy in Washington, will arrive Sunday to participate in Italian day ceremonies at the Fair, in which a marble monument commemorating the flight of the Italian air armada last year will be dedicated.

A Century of Progress yesterday requested Wilson & Co. to supply a 25 pound pig for a "greased pig" contest today as part of Children's day. No 25 pound pig could be found at the stockyards. Finally one was located in Galesburg, and it is being brought by automobile to arrive in time for its appearance in front of the Lagoon theater this afternoon.

Chicago Cactus Society

Completes Fair Exhibit

The Chicago Cactus society announced yesterday the completion of its exhibit in the horticultural grounds at the World's Fair to show what may be accomplished by the use of desert plants as decorative material. The garden comprises 2,500 square feet. The cactus society was organized last August and meets on the last Sunday of each month in the Garfield Park conservatory. The officers are: Frank K. Balthis, president; E. W. Sowa, vice president; R. J. Mohr, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Perry Dawson, recording secretary.

HOMESICK SNAKE FORCIBLY FED BY JUNGLE EXPERTS

Gests Unwelcome Forty Pound Dinner.

Homesickness has caused trouble among the captive snakes of Chicago during the last six weeks. It brought about the forcible feeding of 40 pounds of raw beef to a 25 foot python at the World's Fair yesterday, and it presumably has caused the death of 64 reptiles in recent weeks at the Chicago Zoological gardens at Brookfield. The python's name is Josie, although she doesn't respond to it. A year ago, as she was pushing her way through the Malay jungle, Frank Buck and his safari captured her. She was hale and hearty and weighed 350 pounds and she could make a small meal out of a large goat.

Arrives Sunday, Ill.
Four months ago she was put aboard ship at Singapore and she refused to eat. The farther away she got from home the more stubborn she became. Her 150 pounds dropped to 200, her spotted skin hung in folds. And then Sunday, hungry but still refusing to admit it, she arrived at the Buck concession at the Fair.

Yesterday Mr. Buck took matters into his own hands and she was fed, but it took Buck and 14 assistants, including Ali and Ahmed, two Malay boys who helped capture Josie in the jungle, half an hour to do it. The Malay boys unhinged her jaws, 10 stalwart attendants held her writhing body and two men jammed the meat, fastened in 15 pound chunks on the ends of 12 foot poles, down her unwilling throat.

Fortunately for the welfare of the feeders, several of whom were bitten, Josie's feeding, if continued, will occur only once every six weeks. Being of the constrictor type, Josie's bites are not poisonous.

Fatal Homesickness.
The death of 64 reptiles at the zoo since May 25 also has been laid to homesickness by Robert Bean, assistant director.

"We're not quite certain of the cause," Bean said, "but we think it's due to the long sea journey from their homes. We know it's not the temperature. A few of them were killed by their mates, and several subconsciously starved to death. Some may have died from reptile diseases, but no one knows enough about such diseases to say for certain whether that is so."

KILLED BY SWITCH ENGINE.

Charles Kessen, 65 years old, of 14430 South Marshfield avenue, Dixon, was killed yesterday by a switch engine while he was walking on the Grand Trunk railroad tracks at 147th street in Harvey.

U. S. WEATHER CHIEF HAILS ACHIEVEMENT OF AIR CONDITIONING

Air conditioning is the greatest single contribution of recent years to the comfort, health and happiness of a heat ridden world, Willis K. Gregg, chief of the United States weather bureau in Washington, said yesterday at the dedication of the Frigidaire house at the World's Fair.

He said that air conditioning may eventually remake the economic map of the world by enabling great cities to be built in areas of the earth from which civilization heretofore has been banned by intense heat.

"It must be conceded from a scientific point of view," Mr. Gregg continued, "that the possibilities of actually controlling the outdoor weather are slim for many centuries to come, but practical science has succeeded in controlling the indoor weather and in making it possible for man to have his weather as, when and how he wants it."

The air conditioned house, from the porch of which Mr. Gregg made his address, contains nine cooled rooms, in which every movement of air is controlled. The inside air is filtered and washed of dust and impurities. The windows automatically close at the first drops of rain and the awnings are lowered or raised with the sun's rays. The home, complete with air conditioning apparatus and furnishings, was built at a cost of $25,000.

Mr. Gregg, who is in Chicago on an inspection trip of weather stations, was accompanied by Mrs. Gregg and introduced by Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress.

DELAYS DECISION ON SHORT WEIGHT OIL SALE CHARGE

Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland reserved decision on a charge of selling short weight fuel oil against the Consumers' Petroleum company yesterday when a motion to reopen the case for additional evidence was made by the defense attorney, Ernest Hodges, who is state tax commissioner. The company trucks allegedly delivered 6,590 gallons of oil to the Goldendri Ice Cream company, although the firm was billed for 6,558 gallons, according to the city scales' office. Attorney Hodges said yesterday that a new calibrating device shows that the capacity of the trucks totals 6,679 gallons and that this quantity was delivered.

Judge Holland remarked that the request to reopen the case was an unusual one and that he was uncertain whether it is legally possible to do so. He continued the case until tomorrow when he will hear arguments on the motion to admit the new evidence.

HEDIN CAPTURED IN TURKESTAN, CHINESE REPORT

Noted Explorer Is Seized with 12 Companions.

LONDON, July 11.—(AP)—Dr. Sven Hedin, noted Swedish explorer, is being held by bandits in central Turkestan, according to a dispatch from Peking to the Daily Mail.

It was reported that Hedin and twelve companions were seized by the Moslem general, Ma Chung-yang, and that they are captives in an inaccessible camp in the region of Aksu.

Rescue Called Difficult.
The retreat was regarded a bandit stronghold, and officials of the Chinese government and the British consulate at Kashgar said that sending a rescue expedition would be extremely difficult.

Hedin, who has carried on extensive explorations in the Gobi desert, where he found many fossils prized by scientists, recently has been engaged on a surveying project for the Chinese government. He was laying out a route for a highway across central China.

Gen. Ma is an old acquaintance of the explorer, having captured and held him for three weeks last March.

[Reports from Shanghai said four Swedes, three Mongolians, and three Chinese, including the eminent geologist, Dr. Parker Chen, were captured with Hedin.]

WHOLE TOWN'S FACE RED WHEN POLICE TRY RADIO TRAFFIC CONTROL

Chinatown, O. July 11.—(AP)—"Is my face red?" became the question in Chinatown today as the police tried out a new method of enforcing traffic safety.

Chuckling, two police officials cruised about town spotting traffic violations. They whispered words of caution or reproval into a microphone. The public address system on their automobile sent their voices bellowing down the streets.

"For instance," a comely lass tripped easily across an intersection. From nowhere, it seemed, a voice bellowed in tones audible a block away: "Will the young lady please wait until the traffic light turns green?" She gaped in wonder. Other pedestrians gaped at her.

And so it went. Pedestrians and motorists had no idea who would be spotted and publicly cautioned next. The town became almost jittery as it watched traffic lights meticulously and drove its cars with exceeding care.

"Swell idea," said one policeman to the other, turning off the mike between cautionary whispers.

gist, Dr. Parker Chen, were captured with Hedin.]

OBTAINED FAIR'S TEMPLE.

Sven Hedin is known to many Chicagoans, especially through his services in securing a reproduction of a Chinese Buddhist temple for A Century of Progress Exposition. He was commissioned by Vincent Bendix to secure the reproduction, and worked for four years to accomplish it. Hedin went to China, where he selected the lama temple to be reproduced, and hired Chinese architects to make the detailed drawings. Native workers made the 28,000 pieces of wood of which it is built.

The directors of the Memorial of Lief Ericson in America presented the Lief Ericson medal to Hedin in March, 1932, at the Arts club of Chicago, in recognition of his Asiatic exploration.

He lectured here in November, 1932, and also in 1928 and 1923.

MRS. BARTLETT'S DIVORCE LIVENS STAD CITY HALL

Flight After Decree.

In a rapid fire hearing, which lasted only fifteen minutes and was followed by a wild chase through the corridors and elevators of both the county building and the city hall, Mrs. Mary Tilt Bartlett was granted a divorce yesterday from Frederic Clay Bartlett Jr., son of the well known artist and collector.

When the decree was entered, Mrs. Bartlett, flanked by Attorney Albert S. Barney and a man whose name was not learned, fled precipitately from the room as newspaper reporters and photographers approached.

Two Casualties in Chase.
Down the hall they went, into the city hall, and into the elevator operated by Fred Gardner. Cameramen pursued in a group, and loiterers about the building joined in the chase to see what was happening. In the jam at the elevator Gardner was hit in the eye by a flying elbow and he had a "shiner" before the day was over.

Another casualty came when the fleeing group leaped into a taxi on La Salle street. Attorney Barney, in his haste, banged his head against the cab door, but managed to get inside.

By the terms of the divorce decree Mrs. Bartlett was given custody of Frederic Clay Bartlett III, 2 years old, and waived alimony. Attorney Barney whispered to Judge Rudolph Desort that an out-of-court property settlement had been made, but his client wanted it kept secret.

It was said that a $50,000 trust fund is to be established for the support of the child, yielding him $350 a month until he is 25 years old. At that time, if Bartlett is dead, he will receive $40,000 of the principal, and the remainder in five years.

Married in 1931.
The Bartletts were married in July of 1931 in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Tilt, 1500 Lake Shore drive. After the honeymoon the young couple were given the luxurious apartment at 1301 Astor street, which Mr. Bartlett Sr. had decorated.

The first hint of a marital rift came last October when Mrs. Bartlett moved to the south side and took a small apartment at 5805 Dorchester avenue, near the home of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Bissell. Both she and Bartlett declared that it was "an experiment in separation," and denied they were contemplating a divorce.

Young Bartlett gave up the Astor street apartment after the separation and made his home at the Pearson hotel, while continuing his studies at the Armour school of architecture.

Miss Laemmle is to have a part in the "dramatic group," the announcement stated.

FLOODS, DROUTH, HEAT THREATEN FAMINE IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, July 11.—(AP)—China's age old enemies, flood, drouth, locusts, famine, heat and cholera, again are taking their toll as the hottest summer of more than 60 years sears the country.

In the lower Yangtze valley and the coastal provinces extreme temperatures, drouth and locusts have threatened food supplies and caused death, suffering and financial losses.

Floods and cholera are added to the list of natural calamities besetting western China. North China is experiencing record heat, while various other localities are combating floods resulting from rains in the extreme northwest of China.

Crops in numerous provinces are perishing. Food prices are skyrocketing and the fear of famine is widespread. The price of rice, the nation's staple food, has jumped 50 per cent within a few days.

THREE GET JAIL SENTENCES FOR RELIEF FRAUD

Former Head Clerk in One Station Given Year.

Louis Gillman, 6511 Kenwood avenue, a former head clerk at the Lawndale relief station, was found guilty yesterday by Judge Walter P. Staffen in the Criminal court of conspiring to defraud the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. He was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell and fined $500.

Two others who had pleaded guilty in the same case were also sentenced by Judge Staffen. They are Matthew Mertz, 2509 South Millard avenue, a former clerk in the relief station, who received the same Bridewell term and fine as Gillman, and Mrs. Mary Bartuska, owner of a grocery at 2253 South St. Louis avenue, who was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell and fined $500.

Gillman Taken to Bridewell.

Gillman, who had been employed as a fraud investigator after his discharge as head clerk, was taken from the courtroom to the Bridewell. Mertz was given a week's stay to arrange for the care of his mother, and Mrs. Bartuska was allowed the same time in which to rent or sell her store before beginning her sentence.

The trio were accused of fraudulent obtaining $2,727 of the relief funds during an eight month period in 1933. With Hector Pena, another former commission employee, who is a fugitive, each allegedly took 25 per cent of the money.

"An official and three employees of the commission obviously went out of their way to help Gillman," Prosecutor Julius Sherwin told the court in his closing argument. "One, James Stahl, is an out and out perjurer. Here are the very people supposed to eliminate frauds from the relief machinery coming into court and taking an antagonistic attitude toward the state in its prosecution of fraud charges."

The prosecutor referred to the testimony given in behalf of Gillman by E. M. Horton, who until last week was the chief investigator of fraud for the commission, and three employees, James J. Stahl, Roy A. Ferris, and Miss Marie Preffer. A report of their actions will be made to the commission, Mr. Sherwin said.
Mertz and Mrs. Bartuska, the co-defendants, in testifying for the state described a system by which grocery orders made out to persons no longer on the relief rolls were put through Mrs. Bartuska's grocery store. When she received payment for the groceries that never left the store Mrs. Bartuska split the money with the others, according to their testimony.

PANAMA CANAL OPEN TO WORLD, ROOSEVELT SAYS

Rededicates Waterway to Peaceful Commerce.

PANAMA, July 11.—(P)—President Roosevelt rededicated the Panama canal to "all nations in the needs of peaceful commerce."

The hope that the great waterway connecting the Pacific and Atlantic oceans will serve the needs of peaceful trade was expressed by Mr. Roosevelt in an address at the palace of President Arias of Panama, where he was a dinner guest.

The President said that this "crossroads of the Americas" is being held in trust for all the world.

Cheered by Crowds.

He also invited the cooperation of the Republic of Panama and gave his assurance that the United States will approach all questions between the nations in a spirit of justice. Settlement of international problems will be achieved in that spirit, he said.

From the cruiser Houston, at anchor at Balboa, the President drove through the city to the palace through a cheering throng. Authorities said the demonstration was unprecedented in the history of the city.

A heavy guard patrolled the route from the harbor to the palace. Followers were alert after unidentified persons this afternoon distributed pamphlets assailing the United States.

Recalls Building of Railway.

President Roosevelt in his speech said, in part:

"My interest in Panama may be said to be of an historic character, because it was my own great-uncle, William H. Aspinwall, who was instrumental in starting the Panama railroad in 1848, and who, in the face of many natural difficulties, carried it to a successful conclusion in 1855. It was this railway which began to restore to the isthmus its former proud position of the crossroads of the Americas."

"The canal serves all nations in the needs of peaceful commerce. The United States is therefore, a trustee for all the world in its peaceful maintenance. In that trusteeship we have always had, and I am sure, always will have, the complete cooperation of the republic of Panama."

Passes Through Canal.

President Roosevelt passed through the canal earlier in the day on the Houston. The Houston came into dock at Balboa shortly after 4 p. m., having made a speedy six hour crossing from the Atlantic side.

The President's ship was received with cheers by a large crowd and a salute from the cruiser New Orleans.

WIFE OF PRESIDENT DEPARTS BY PLANE FOR PACIFIC COAST

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, departed from Chicago for Sacramento, Cal., in a United Air Lines plane last evening. She boarded the plane alone at the airport after bidding good-by to Marian Dickerman and Nancy Cook of Hyde Park, N. Y., her companions on her automobile trip from the east and during her three day visit there.

To the end Mrs. Roosevelt continued her game of hide and seek with news papers men. Her plans were not revealed until she boarded the plane. During the day she remained in seclusion in her Blackstone hotel room except for a brief excursion to Marshall Field & Co., where she examined some of the furniture made in her factory at Hyde Park, N. Y.

One of her visitors during the day was her son, James, who stopped here on his trip to a western vacation. Although her plans were not disclosed, it was believed that Mrs. Roosevelt plans to see her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, who is at Reno, Nev., establishing residence. On Aug. 1 Mrs. Roosevelt will join the President at Fortland, Ore., at the close of his vacation trip on the cruiser Houston.

Stops in Cheyenne.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 11.—(P)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived here at 11:25 o'clock (M. S. T.) tonight from Omaha in a United Air Lines plane and, declining to talk to reporters, was taken to the office of officials of the plane company, where she was served dinner. She was scheduled to leave by plane at 11:55 p. m. for Salt Lake City.

which will become the Houston's new conveyer. President Arias boarded the Houston at Balboa.

Standing on the fore superstructure of the Houston with Secretary of War Dorn and his two sons, Franklin and John Roosevelt, the President showed intense interest in the canal, which was dug under the administration of Theodore Roosevelt.

Troops from Fort Davis and Fort Clayton stood by as the cruiser passed through the canal's locks and navy planes roared overhead throughout the day.

Late tomorrow the President plans to start his 12 day journey across the Pacific to Hawaii.

Slabbing Fatal to Tavern

Owner; 2 Held to Jury

John Lisowicz, 42 years old, owner of a tavern at 3214 West 47th street, where he was stabbed when he refused to serve beer "on the house" on June 12, died yesterday in the Holy Cross hospital. Ray Tureman, 33 years old, and Hubert Boehning, 31 years old, both of 2901 West 38th street, were recommended held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter after an inquest yesterday afternoon. They are held at the county jail.

the restaurant owner because he forced his attentions on her. But this time she was sentenced to serve 10 years in prison.

Unlike her previous department at the prison farm, her conduct became troublesome from the first. She refused to abide by regulations and broke away seemingly whenever she felt restless.

Tramps All Night.

On one occasion she and another inmate fled into the hills and tramped about all night before they were finally captured the next day. At another time she hid in a building at the prison farm and remained all night awaiting an opportunity to escape. Prison guards, after searching the countryside for her, finally found her in an attic.

A third time she walked casually away from the farm, to be found a few hours later strolling down a main street here.

"I'm ready to go back," she said. "I only wanted to see the bright lights."

This time the girl was sent to the state hospital for mental observation. Psychiatrists there said she may have been a "borderline" case at one time.

New York, July 11.—[Special.]—In connection with a recent article on the NRA by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson in the Saturday Evening Post there is a picture of part of the plant of the Ever Ready Label company, which printed millions of the Blue Eagle labels.

This caused recollection of the fact that the company once found itself accused and then exonerated of charges of violation of the NRA code. Charges were brought by Typographical union No. 6 and Printing Pressmen's union No. 51. A hearing was had before Nathan Strauss Jr., New York state director of the National Emergency council. He, with the regional labor board, had been asked to aid in the adjustment of the difficulty.

A letter from Strauss to Sidney Hollander, president of the Ever Ready Label company, contained these statements:

"As the result of careful investigation conducted by this office in regard to complaints alleging violation of the NRA by your concern we are pleased to notify you that the decision of the state director is to the effect that the complaints were unsubstantiated by the evidence produced; therefore this case is closed."

"We have found you to be most cooperative in working out this difficult problem, and it is our opinion that you have endeavored at all times to live up to the principles of the national industrial recovery act."

but there was nothing wrong with her intellect now.

She went back to the farm, to a specially constructed cell in which she was kept locked except while at work in the fields.

ness. Obtaining permission to enter a prison building for medicine, she gasped the opportunity to pick up a watchman's revolver.

Before she left she wrote a note on the back of a rejection slip from a magazine, to which she had offered a story.

"To whom it may concern," the note read, "I'll never be taken alive."

Mrs. E. C. Brookman, superintendent of the women's farm, revealed that the girl had written a number of poems and several detective stories at the prison.

Sludge. The oil eater.

IS DOOMED

THE MINUTE YOU CHANGE
TO ISO-VIS "D"

WHEN YOU STOP SLUDGE FORMATION YOU END
ONE BIG CAUSE OF HIGH OIL CONSUMPTION.
THIS NEW MOTOR OIL GETS RID OF SLUDGE

If you've drained your crankcase yourself—or watched the process—you've noted the tar-like disagreeable mass which comes out if you have been using ordinary motor oils.

That's Sludge—formed by broken-down motor oil. It means that the oil didn't do its full job. Often such inefficient protection brings on costly engine repairs.

One thing is certain. Sludge formation costs you money. For it causes piston rings to stick and your engine starts pumping oil. That is senseless, needless waste of money.

The remedy is simple. Iso-Vis "D", Standard's anti-sludge motor oil, won't sludge under the hardest driving you'll do this summer. It will give your engine free, easy action and sure protection. Piston rings stay lively. This fine, efficient new motor oil may even help remove sludge formed by previous oils.

Change to ISO-VIS "D" and be money ahead all summer.

SEE WHAT HAPPENS WHEN YOU DON'T STOP SLUDGE!

When sludge collects on piston rings, as shown above, it makes them stick and the motor begins wasteful pumping of oil. ISO-VIS "D" doesn't. Sludge, keeps rings free and lively, thereby saving real money for the user.

Note, in the above chart, how oil costs climb quickly as more and more sludge forms in an engine. Sludge is plainly one of the greatest single causes of high oil consumption. ISO-VIS "D" keeps users' oil cost down to bedrock, because it keeps Sludge out.

FIGHT TO DEATH,
BOLIVIAN TOLD
AS FOES PRESS ONParaguayans Drive On to Main Chaco Fort.

BY NORMAN INGREY.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 11.—"Resist until death!" was the dramatic order broadcast by Gen. Panaranda from the Bolivian headquarters to 35,000 soldiers fighting, many of them hand to hand, to avoid the encircling movement of the Paraguayans in the Fort Ballivian sector on the Chaco front.

The 35,000 soldiers are estimated to represent one-third of what is left of Bolivia's fighting man power, and if they surrender, or are squeezed across the River Pilcomayo into the neighboring neutral territory of Argentina, impartial military observers will regard the war as finished.

Private messages sent across the northern frontier tonight declared the Paraguayans have finally pierced the Bolivian defenses at Canada de Carmen and have widened the breach in the line beyond repair.

Claim 1,500 Bolivians Slain.
A total of 1,500 Bolivians were slain in a bayonet charge, and the remainder are falling back toward Fort Ballivian. This victory for Gen. Estigarribia, the Paraguayan leader, virtually dooms the Fort Ballivian garrison and will raise a serious problem for Argentina if the Bolivians are chased across the frontier.

The Bolivian desperation before the Paraguayan strategy is evidenced by the transfer of more troops to Villa Montes, chief Bolivian supply base, on which the defenders may attempt a retirement.

The last communique from Asuncion, capital of Paraguay, read in conjunction with more reliable unofficial messages, suggests that the main objective is the capture of Villa Montes, from which only military roads run northward to Santa Cruz, terminus of the railroad to the Bolivian capital. The Bolivians, with their backs to the river, are expected to resist stoutly the enemy strategy by concentrating their retreating forces if possible at Guachalla and Dorigny, minor forts which bar the route to Villa Montes.

Opens Encircling Movement.
The breach in the line at Canada de Carmen, however, if pressed, will enable the Paraguayans to complete their encircling of the Bolivian right wing without a major engagement, thus avoiding a decisive battle until the line is straightened out again at Villa Montes.

YOUTH MUST DIE
IN ARIZONA GAS
ROOM; NO STAY

State Prison, Florence, Ariz., July 11.—George J. Shaughnessy, 19 year old adopted son of an Albany, N. Y., couple, who is sentenced to die Friday in Arizona's gas chamber, was denied a stay of execution today by the state board of pardons and paroles. The youth had asked a stay of two weeks in which to study documents forwarded from a New York reformatory regarding his early mentality. The documents were in the hands of the board members and they took no action on them.

A year ago Shaughnessy fatally wounded Lon Blankenship, Tucson automobile dealer.

URGE WRECKING
OF 2 HOUSES FOR PUBLIC SAFETYBuildings a Menace,
Officials Told.

City officials were asked yesterday to condemn and wreck two old houses at 1317 and 1319 Sedgwick street as a part of the campaign to rid the city of unsightly and dangerous buildings. The structures are an eyesore and a menace to children, according to residents in the neighborhood.

The buildings, both two story frame houses, have been tenanted for three years. They are boarded and fenced in, but this does not stop children from playing in them, nor does it keep tramps out at night, according to adjoining residents and property owners. Fire insurance premiums have been doubled for owners of dwellings adjacent to the old houses because of the fire hazard.

Tells of Tramp Menace.
"I can't even have my windows open in the summer time," said Mrs. Katherine Schmidt, who lives on the second floor at 1315 Sedgwick street. "There is only a foot between our building and the abandoned building. Tramps could easily step across through the open windows. We have complained, but nothing has been done."

Although the buildings present a dilapidated appearance, records of an inspection by the building department last week show that three inspectors believe the walls, floors, and roof to be safe. The name of the owner was given in the report as J. Meyers, 16 West Illinois street. He was quoted in the report as saying he had asked the federal government for a loan to rehabilitate the buildings.

Reports 45 Per Cent Depreciation.
"Our inspection," said Robert Knight, deputy commissioner of buildings, "shows that the building is only 45 per cent depreciated. If the depreciation amounted to 50 per cent the owner would not be allowed to make repairs on it and we could condemn the buildings and have them razed."

The condition of the buildings also was reported to Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health and chairman of a committee of four named by Mayor Kelly to speed the razing of old buildings. This committee is to get a report on the buildings to determine if they can be included in the wrecking program.

POLITICS FLARES
IN CITY COUNCIL;
ALDERMEN CLASHMoreland Tax Resolution
Starts Fireworks.

Political partisanship burst forth in the city council yesterday. Charges were hurled back and forth between Republicans and Democrats, enlivening the final meeting before adjournment for the summer vacation. The next session will be Sept. 12.

Yesterday's meeting was a windup of as many of the council's affairs as could be settled. Practically every alderman present had a resolution, ordinance, or a suggestion to offer.

The fireworks started when Ald. James C. Moreland (41st), Republican nominee for county assessor, one of the twelve Republicans in the council, introduced a resolution asking Gov. Horner to call a special session of the legislature.

Taxes Only a Starting Point.

Such a session, Moreland said, is necessary to consider a constitutional amendment for a 1 per cent tax on real estate, but the subject matter of the resolution was soon buried under a torrent of personalities between aldermen.

Ald. John S. Clark (Dem., 30th), chairman of the finance committee, asserted that a 1 per cent tax would give the city only $12,000,000 revenue, and the police department alone needs $15,000,000 a year.

Then Ald. James J. McDermott (Dem., 14th), waved a newspaper at Moreland and read an item in which Moreland was quoted as having said at a Republican meeting that if there were an investigation of the city hall all the Democrats would be in jail.

"Did you say that?" demanded McDermott.

"The article is substantially correct," replied Moreland.

Rowan Demands the Names.

"Maybe he didn't realize the seriousness of the charges, but I demand that he furnish the names of those he says would go to jail," put in Ald. William A. Rowan (Dem., 10th).

"I challenge him to produce any names!" shouted McDermott.

"Mr. Moreland's is a terrible statement to go unchallenged," said Ald. James E. Quinn (Dem., 30th). "The council should take action."

"When you step on a cat's tail, it will howl," remarked Moreland.

"The charges are unfounded, and the resolution should be filed," said Ald. John J. Coughlin (Dem., 1st).

"I still have my right of free speech," cried Moreland.

The NEA notwithstanding.

Mayor Kelly finally restored order, and the resolution was referred to the committee on judiciary.

Transit Ordinance Extended.

Ald. Quinn, chairman of the local transportation committee, introduced a motion, which was passed, extending the 1907 traction ordinance, which is still in operation, to Dec. 1. He declared that by that time he believed a new ordinance would be ready for consideration.

He also asked for authority to establish feeder buses, with free transfers from the elevated lines, to take passengers from the State and Van Buren elevated station to the World's Fair.

This was denied, but a group consisting of Ald. Quinn, Ald. Coughlin, Mayor Kelly and Police Commissioner Allman was named with full power to act in the matter.

Bond Ordinance Reconsidered.

On motion of Ald. Clark, the council reconsidered an ordinance passed some weeks ago, appropriating $450,000 out of the city's share of the state gasoline tax to redeem special assessment bonds.

James B. Bowler, public vehicle license commissioner, was granted power by the council to regulate sight-seeing buses in the city.

The council also adopted a resolution directing the corporation counsel to go before the Illinois Commerce Commission and ask a reduction in the fare charged by the Chicago Motor Coach company as well as elimination of one man buses.

JOSEPH B. FLEMING IS NAMED TO BOARD OF PUBLIC LIBRARY

Attorney Joseph B. Fleming was named by Mayor Kelly yesterday as a member of the public library board and his appointment was confirmed by the city council along with other appointments previously announced.

Mr. Fleming, a member of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green and Martin, will succeed William H. Reid, whose appointment as a member of the school board was also confirmed by the council. Reid succeeds A. O. Jackson, who died recently.

Other appointments confirmed by the city council were: Richard E. Schmidt, as building commissioner to succeed the late John B. Ericson, and Harry Renolds, as a member of the board of health to succeed Frank Bobyrlack, whose term expired Jan. 1. The resignations of J. B. Loebner and the Rev. Preston Bradley to the library board were also confirmed.

SUPERHIGHWAY

Ald. John A. Massen (18th), chairman of the city council committee on traffic and public safety, yesterday appointed a subcommittee which is to carry on studies this summer and prepare a report on a tentative route and design for a west side superhighway. The superhighway project will be financed out of the state gas tax.

Members of the subcommittee are Ald. A. B. Northrup (19th), chairman; James J. McDermott (14th); Thomas J. Tunney (17th); Joseph P. Rosenkrantz (18th); and Eugene J. Kelly (17th).

The subcommittee will confer with engineers of the city, county, and state, and with officials of civic and improvement organizations. Its report will be submitted to the full committee for consideration, after which public hearings will be held.

On motion of Ald. Clark, the council reconsidered an ordinance passed some weeks ago, appropriating $450,000 out of the city's share of the state gasoline tax to redeem special assessment bonds.

James B. Bowler, public vehicle license commissioner, was granted power by the council to regulate sight-seeing buses in the city.

EDUCATOR TAKES WHACK AT 'NEW DEAL' SCHOOLING

Warns Colleges May Be No More Machine.

Education planners, who view man as a producing and consuming unit rather than a human being, are warned of their error yesterday by Edward Mumford Jones, professor of English at the University of Michigan. It was one of a number of speakers before the Institute of Administrative Officers for Higher Institutions at the University of Chicago, who viewed the present college education and found it not to their liking.

While he made no mention of the New Deal, Jones voiced strong criticism of those who would plan the world on economic theory without taking into account the emotions and frailties of the human race. Such attempts at planning he viewed as evidence of defects in the present educational system.

"Aside from laboratory science," he said, "the fundamental fact about 19th century thinking was that it was political. Political thinking in the Victorian era was compelled perpetually to have in mind the human values for which society exists."

Weak Side of Economics.

"It now once again puts aside laboratory science," he said, "and contemporary ideology is fundamentally economic. But economic thinking has its weaker side, the characteristic weakness that, unlike political thinking which regards the individual as a voter and therefore as a man, economic thinking regards the individual as a producing and consuming unit and therefore as an abstraction." Reduced to its lowest terms, he said, the American citizen as a stomach to be fed, a body to be housed, a behavior pattern to be conditioned.

Political thinking is subject to the perennial correction of an appeal to physical human beings, economic thinking tends, with less exceptions, to regard the economic system as absolute. Hence arises that faith in communism, fascism, or what not, the religions of our time. The statistician has destroyed the philosopher, and the fanatic has stepped in.

Against such errors, Prof. Jones pointed out, the universities, especially through their instruction in the humanities in the college of liberal arts, are supposed to guard through training of leaders of society. But that college, he said, is struggling under tremendous difficulties.

Miss Biggest Values.

"As long as we are content," said Prof. Jones, "to demand of the college of liberal arts that it shall oblige manufacturing statisticians, social workers and better business men, we shall fail to secure those values in society which society most needs."

Turning from his college to his students, Prof. Jones remarked that the undergraduate exhibits an attitude of scorn toward religious fundamentalism, as the enemy of evolution, yet in the matter of evolution is himself "a puerile fundamentalist."

"He understands that Henry Ford is a great genius, but the information that the Fugger family were almost great business geniuses leaves him unmoved," he said. "He knows—let us hope he knows—that Bertrand Russell, Alfred North Whitehead, and Albert Einstein are influential philosophical thinkers, but the fact that Plato, Thomas Aquinas, and Newton preceded them is highbrow information."

Calls Issues Confused.

Attacking the same problem, Henry W. Prescott, chairman of the department of Latin at the University of Chicago, asserted that there is a growing tendency in education to confuse the art of living with the art of setting a living.

He also expressed his actual school systems as evidence that educational practice is seriously affected by the feeling that schools must be adapted to the communities which they serve and to the needs of individual students.

The two communities were Evanston and a suburb of Los Angeles, where the school population is almost exclusively composed of children of aliens.

Residents of Harriman Hope for Reopening of Hosiery Plant

HARRIMAN, Tenn., July 11.—(P)—The residents of Harriman—the little town in which the Harriman Hosiery Mills closed after the NRA yanked its Blue Eagle—look hopefully to Washington for early settlement.

"I believe the NRA and mill officials are about to come together," said J. G. D'Armond, Harriman's 72-year-old mayor. "Each side, I think, has been waving the red flag in the mill's face, so it seems. Both mill and town officials have been pretty much in a state of being dyed down."

Want Mills Reopened.

More than 600 employees, thrown out of work when the mills shut down, want their jobs back. Merchants—suffering the loss of the mill's $90,000 a month pay-roll—want the plant reopened.

About 600 men and women, who walked out of the mills last October because officials allegedly discharged 23 workers for union activities, want

BEGIN ENFORCING TEN HOUR WORK DAY FOR WOMEN

A drive for more favorable working conditions for employees of large industrial concerns and for an enforcement of the ten hour working day law for women in Illinois was being carried on yesterday by the state department of labor.

Joseph J. Nowicki, chief state factory inspector, who is temporarily concentrating the drive on the Chicago area, announced that prosecutions against 41 employers for violating the women's ten hour day law had already been undertaken. He said that 38 additional cases would be taken today before Municipal Judge Eugene Holland.

Violators of the law, according to Chief Inspector Nowicki, include beauty shop operators, retail stores, laundries, and cleaning plants. The minimum penalty for each violation is $25.

In addition, inspectors from the department have issued 28 warnings to factories for their failure to provide for the health and safety of their employees. Plans are being mapped for the prosecution of 5 railroads for their failure to provide washrooms for employees, and a drive will soon be started to keep boys under 16 years of age from being employed peddling ice cream bars in Chicago.

HUSBAND-TO-BE LEAVES WITH ALL BUT THE BRIDE

In response to the request of Miss Ella Fink, 40 years old, of Green Lake, Wis., Chicago police last night were searching for H. S. Rand, who described himself as a wealthy insurance man of San Francisco last week in Green Lake when he asked Miss Fink to marry him.

The couple came to Chicago and were married here last evening, Miss Fink told Deputy Chief of Detectives Walter Storms, but Rand disappeared in the afternoon with her diamond ring, her sedan, and $173 of her cash. He also took along their marriage license.

Miss Fink said Rand told her he was expecting a check for $500 in care of general delivery in Chicago today, so Deputy Storms detailed two men to watch the postoffice.

Infantry Captain Named to Chicago ROTC Post

Capt. John H. Rings, 34th Infantry, Fort Meade, Md., has been transferred to the R. O. T. CAMPAIN FOR AMONG 5,000 TO BID RITCHIE BON VOYAGE AT PIER

Baltimore, Md., July 11.—(P)—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie embarked on a European vacation late today as 5,000 persons, including Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, opposing him in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for a fifth term as governor, bid him bon voyage.

The crowd cheered, a brass band played on the dock and National Guard planes circled in formation overhead as the steamer City of Norfolk set out for Europe bearing the governor and Col. Stuart S. Jannay, chairman of the board of welfare and his companion on the jaunt.

Ritchie and Jannay plan to spend from four to six weeks abroad—confining their activities chiefly to killing in Normandy, they say—and will return in time to permit the governor to plunge into an intensive campaign before primary day, Sept. 12.

NEW AIR LINER CHICAGO BOUND ON SPEED FLIGHT

A new airliner, a Douglas high speed transport ship, delivered to TWA, Inc., in Los Angeles yesterday left there at 11:11 p. m. Chicago time carrying a full load of 14 passengers in a new effort to set a speed record to Chicago and New York. Two hours later it was soaring over Arizona at a 200 mile an hour clip. The present record over the Los Angeles-Chicago-New York route is 13 hours and 11 minutes held by United Air Lines. To beat this time the Douglas must pass through Chicago at 4 a. m. today and arrive in New York within four and a half hours more.

The new plane is exactly similar to seven ships already in service on the TWA route between Chicago and New York, via Pittsburgh. It is a low-wing monoplane and powered with two Wright Cyclone 725 horsepower motors. At the controls is Pilot D. C. Graves, and the passengers include several movie notables from Hollywood. A Kansas City where a brief stop will be made, Will Rogers, actor and columnist is scheduled to board the ship.

Grocer Loses Blue Eagle for Violations of Code

John E. Cassidy, NRA administrator for Illinois, announced yesterday that the national NRA headquarters in Washington has removed the Blue Eagle insignia of code compliance from the small neighborhood grocery at 603 East 47th street, owned by Sam Mingevekes. Mingevekes, according to the announcement, has repeatedly violated NRA regulations concerning minimum hours and wages by working two employees 72 hours each week and paying them $5 a week wages.

CLOTHING PLANT CLOSES IN FACE OF NRA MANDATE

500 Workers Thrown Out of Employment.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 11.—(P)—In the face of an order from the compliance board of the National Recovery Administration to restore nearly $200,000 in wages to its employees of face the loss of its Blue Eagle and possible prosecution, the G. & H. Clothing company closed its factory here today.

Approximately 500 workers were thrown out of employment. Plant officials said that the factory, a unit of G. & H. Clothing, Inc., of Baltimore, would remain closed indefinitely. It is the first time the plant has suspended operations in 21 years.

Two Other Units Still Open.

Two other G. & H. units at Staunton, Va., had not received orders to close down today.

Ten plants, located in Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, constitute the G. & H. holdings. The central office is in Baltimore.

The order from NRA instructed the company to pay to its employees sums representing the "differentiated" minimum code authority.

The firm was given until July 19 to make the restitution or be deprived of its Blue Eagle. In addition, the compliance board said it was prepared to seek prosecution by the department of justice.

Firm Details Position.

In Baltimore a statement was issued detailing the position of the firm. It said the firm had been cited "not for failing to pay minimum wages, because they have always paid the minimum wage scale and better since the establishment of the men's clothing code, but for refusing to allow the minimum clothing code authority to dictate the wages to be paid above the minimum to all their employees."

The statement charged that the order involved not only the constitutionality of certain provisions of the National Recovery act, but the attempt of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and Sidney Hillman, its president, together with manufacturers affiliated with it, to so dominate and control men's clothing industry as to force all manufacturers into this union or out of business.

To Close Down Saturday.

Mobile, Ala., July 11.—(P)—Sumter Lindsey today announced that on Saturday the Lindsey Mill company, manufacturers of lumber and lumber products, would suspend operations due to "inability to meet the requirements of NRA."

The announcement followed one by W. O. Lott Jr., NRA field adjuster for southeast Alabama, that the mill had violated trade practice provisions of the retail lumber code. The case had been adjusted by payment of a fine and signing of an affidavit that code provisions would be observed in the future.

Neither Lott nor Lindsey would disclose the amount of the fine.

NRA HUNTS DOWN BUSINESS WHICH ESCAPED CODES

Forced Into "Blanket" Classification.

clump the basic code on some other code and the industry.

Johnson holds complete power, in the absence of public hearings, to write in the wage and hour provisions which he wishes for one of the industries. The wage and hour requirements were left blank in the model basic code and will be filled in by Johnson. The requirements which he writes in may vary for different industries, but he will be the court of final appeal as to what the wage and hour provisions will be.

The hour and wage provisions to be included in said basic code, Johnson's order reads, "shall be those already approved for the proper kindred industry, as determined by the administrator after due consideration of representations of the applicant industry and other relevant data."

Includes Controversial Features.

The basic code, which Johnson prepared for independent industries included open price posting or price fixing and the labor bargaining guarantees as set forth in section 7-A of the act. In addition the model code provides in an attempt to protect child labor that no person under 16 years of age be employed by any of the basic code industries.

The price fixing, which the basic code sets up is the same sort of control which the NRA claims to have abandoned and which has been so bitterly attacked by the Darrow review board. It provides that the industries under the code report their prices and all relevant data to the code authority and abide by those prices, which, at the same time, are circulated among the rest of the industry.

May Fix Minimum Prices.

Johnson is also given the power in the basic code to fix minimum prices in any "emergency" period in any of the affected industries.

A general code authority, apparently to be paid for out of the taxpayers' money, is established to rule over all industries under the basic code. Johnson is to select this group in whose hands will be the miscellaneous trades and businesses of the country.

Other code authorities are run by levies on their industries, but Johnson's order today specifically provides that this general code authority not be financed that way.

The NRA seeks to minimize the task ahead of it in cleaning up the codification of industry. An official statement today pointed out that, although about 300 industries will be affected by the cleanup drive, 90 per cent of industry, as measured by employment, is already codified.

Boy, 13, Wounded by Stray Bullet While in Street

Richard was taken to the county hospital after being given emergency medical treatment by Dr. C. M. Nicholson, 3215 West North avenue.

Injunction Plea Charges NRA Tire Price Fixing Spells Ruin

Three tire distributors yesterday attacked the price fixing provisions of the NRA in a bill for injunction, filed in the federal district court, seeking to restrain both the federal and state authorities from interfering with their business.

It is the first suit brought in federal court naming Attorney General Clegg, Kerner and State Attorney Courtney since the state NRA enforcement act was adopted. It attacks the constitutionality of the national recovery act on the ground that it delegates legislative powers to the national administrators and the code authority.

Business Threatened, They Say.

The plaintiffs, the A-1 Tire company and the Douglas Auto Parts company of Chicago and the Toledo Tire corporation of Toledo, charge that enforcement of the price fixing provisions, compelling them to sell tires at the same prices received for nationally advertised brands, would deprive them of their business and property without due process of law.

According to the bill, filed by attorneys Samuel Hirsch and Arthur Wolf, the A-1 Tire company and the Toledo corporation purchase tires from small manufacturers who cannot afford to finance national advertising campaigns. For this reason they claim they can buy their tires cheaper and sell them to consumers at lower prices than those fixed by the code for the rubber tire and tire industry.

It is further alleged that the companies cannot compete with nationally advertised brands and remain in business if they are compelled to charge the same prices under the classification fixed by the code.

The Douglas Auto Parts company, according to the bill, sold 2,404 tires during June, 1933, and only 1,364 during June of this year, as a direct result of the prices fixed by the code.

Johnson, effective May 10, 1934, under which the code is enforced, "has the effect of discriminating and oppressing small enterprises and does and will operate to discriminate against them and against retail dealers in tires and rubber manufactured by small manufacturers whose products are not widely advertised and not generally known to the public."

Besides Kerner and Courtney, the defendants are Chairman Norval T. Trimborn and nine other members of the national tire and rubber code authority; A. L. Kress, deputy administrator of the code; United States Attorney Dwight H. Green; John E. Cassidy, NRA compliance director for Illinois; and the retail code authority for Chicago.

FARMERS OPEN COURT FIGHT ON AAA MILK CODE

Wisconsin Group Petitions for Injunction.

Another legal assault on the agricultural adjustment act and the Chicago blanket milk license was filed in the federal district court yesterday simultaneously with the entry by Federal Judge John P. Barnes in another case at a federal court holding the marketing regulations null and void.

The new attack on the AAA is a bill for injunction to restrain Secretary Wallace and Undersecretary Tugwell of the department of agriculture, as well as department of justice officials, from enforcing the milk licensing provisions against 121 farmers of southern Wisconsin and a dairy cooperative which purchases their output.

The bill sets forth more than thirty reasons why the agricultural act and the milk license are unconstitutional, but is predicated particularly on the license's abrogation of certain contracts entered into prior to the AAA.

Contract Difficulties Told.
Enforcement of the license, it is alleged, would greatly reduce the price received by both the producing farmers and their distributing cooperative for their milk sold in the Chicago market. Furthermore, according to the bill, it would destroy this market altogether, for a contract between the Wisconsin cooperative and the Meadowmoor Dairy company of Chicago is not affected by the license and the dairy insists upon adhering to the contract.

The license promulgated by Wallace and Tugwell abrogates all previous contracts between producers and distributors, but does not affect contracts between distributors. The Wisconsin farmers have contracts with the Columbus Milk Producers' Cooperative association of Appleton, Wis., which in turn has a contract with the Meadowmoor Dairy company for its entire output of milk.

The petition states that Meadowmoor has notified the association that unless the terms of its contract are fulfilled it will refuse to accept any milk deliveries.

Charge License Cuts Price.
Affidavits accompanying the bill for injunction say that the farmers, under their contract, receive an average price of $1.45 a hundred pounds (3.4 cents a quart) for their milk, less the cost of operating the cooperative plant, which they say amounts to about 3 cents a hundred pounds. The $1.45 is the price paid by Meadowmoor to the cooperative.

Under the license, according to the affidavits, the farmers would receive an average price of only $1.30 a hundred pounds (3.0 cents a quart), whereas the total cost to the cooperative would be $1.90 (4 cents a quart) because of assessments for the equalization pool set up under the license to be distributed among farmers less fortunately situated. The cooperative would thus have to pay $1.90, plus the cost of plant operation, for its milk, and sell it to Meadowmoor for $1.45.

The petition, filed by attorneys Joseph E. Green and Joseph R. Roach, charges that the milk license is particularly invalid because "All transactions between the individual plaintiffs and the plaintiff association, namely, the producing transportation and sale of their milk, take place at all times within the territorial limits of the state of Wisconsin and constitute local or intrastate agriculture, dairying or commerce, within the meaning of the constitution of the United States and especially within the meaning of the commerce clause, article 1, section 2."

The attorneys plan to go tomorrow before a federal judge, probably Judge Barnes, for he is sitting in equity, and move for a temporary injunction. The plaintiffs are admittedly refusing to abide by the license but are said to have been threatened with action by Frank C. Baker, milk license administrator.

The cooperative already owes $15,000 to Baker for the equalization pool.

FORESEES FARM ACT TROUBLE

collection of which would be confiscatory and constitute a seizure of property under the rules of taxation which is discriminatory, benefiting particular groups, the bill alleged.

Judge Issues Injunction.

The formal order entered yesterday by Judge Barnes, who two weeks ago held the milk license invalid, restrains the agriculture and justice department officials from enforcing the license against the Edgewater Dairy company and five other independent dairy concerns. It says that the license is "null and void for the reason that it regulates the production of milk and the court finds that the regulation of the production of milk does not come within the commerce clause of the constitution."

The order is not effective until 10 days from its entry. Judge Barnes having allowed the government this much time to apply for a writ of supersedeas before the Circuit Court of Appeals. Assistant United States Attorney Leo J. Haaseauer notified the plaintiffs that he would go before the appellate court this morning with his request for a supersedeas which would stay execution of the injunction pending an appeal.

Dairies Complain of Baker.

Several dairy companies yesterday were complaining of what they termed "high handed disregard" of Judge Barnes' ruling by the milk marketing administrator. They exhibited copies of a letter from Administrator Baker to have been sent to all distributors, reading as follows:

"You are hereby advised that the decision rendered on June 28, 1934, by Federal Judge John P. Barnes in the case of Edgewater Dairy company and Joseph Wagner Jr. et al. vs. Secretary Henry A. Wallace et al., as a matter of law, affects only the actual parties to that case.

"With respect to all other distributors under the United States milk license the fact that there was a recent decision by this office for immediate action.

Four attention is also directed to the fact that there was recently handed down another decision relative to the United States milk license for the Chicago sales area. This other decision was given by Federal Judge William H. Holly and upheld the validity of the milk license."

Cashier Saves $250 Cash in Struggle with Robber

Miss Ida Schockert, cashier of the Goldblatt Brothers' grill at 4708 Broadway, saved $250 from a robber yesterday. She had just emerged from the Goldblatt department store adjoining at 4723 Broadway when a man carrying a revolver stepped up to her and demanded the money. She struggled with him, and the package in which she was carrying the money broke and he escaped with a packet of bills containing $200, leaving the remaining $50 in her hands.

KEEP AAA TILL FOREIGN TRADE RISES—WALLACE

Secretary of Agriculture Defends Program.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Madison, Wis., July 11.—(Special.)—Processing taxes and production control under the agricultural adjustment administration must remain in effect until foreign markets for American farm produce are revived, Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, tonight told the American Institute of Cooperation.

In his address, delivered at the Memorial Union building of the University of Wisconsin, Mr. Wallace sought to build up confidence in plans of the AAA and especially the processing taxes which he contends were put into effect because no one suggested anything better.

The audience was partly a critical one since four speakers at the institute's meetings Monday denounced AAA programs on grounds they took from farmers the incentive which normally leads to progress and argued that agricultural adjustment plans were vacillating, inadequate, and in some respects antithetical to the cooperative movement.

Must Restore Foreign Trade.
Mr. Wallace predicted the "next big push" of interests opposing those of farmers will be to repeal the adjustment act or at least emasculate it by removing the processing tax.

"All of us hope that before long America will choose to restore her foreign trade," he said. "But until that is an accomplished fact, the farmers of America must, in self-defense, hold on to and improve the machinery provided by the agricultural adjustment act."

Mr. Wallace said it will be a slow process increasing foreign purchasing power for consumption of American produce through tariff negotiations and that meanwhile farmers should hold fast to the present adjustment program.

"Whether that will be two, five, or ten years, no one can predict," said Mr. Wallace. "But unless and until that does happen, it would be disastrous to revert to the old happy-go-lucky way of plowing up the fence corners and shipping the product off to Europe, for whatever it would bring.

Some Trade Permanently Lost.

"Moreover, it virtually is certain that some of the trade that has been lost is permanently lost, either to competitors in other exporting countries or to producers in importing countries.

"Some of the expansion of agricultural output that has been artificially stimulated in the importing countries seems likely to persist."

Mr. Wallace pointed to three courses open to the nation. It can become nationalistic, become thoroughly internationalistic, or take what he calls a "planned middle course," he declared.

"It seems to me there can be no difference of opinion on the part of any one who has given the slightest thought to the balance sheet between this country and other nations as to the absolute necessity of a long-time program to control very effectively

Professor's Hoover Vote Bars Him from Mines Job

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., July 11.—(Special.)—Although President Roosevelt professed in his recent Yale university speech not to know the party affiliation of most federal appointees, it was disclosed today that Postmaster General James A. Farley persuaded him to hold up the appointment of a new bureau of mines director solely on the suspicion that the nominee once voted for Herbert Hoover.

Prof. John W. Finch, dean of the mining school at the University of Idaho, is the hapless office seeker whose party affiliations upset the postmaster general and apparently the White House.

Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes picked Prof. Finch to succeed Scott Turner as head of the bureau of mines. Mr. Turner is a Republican holdover. Prof. Finch impressed Secretary Ickes as a capable director, and the secretary sent the professor's papers to the White House for the President's signature.

Farley Sets to Work.

There followed a long delay. Prof. Finch cooled his heels in Washington waiting for the President to sign the appointment papers. Nothing happened—that is, nothing on the surface.

Below the surface Postmaster General Farley, who is still Democratic national committeeman and Post-Bah of the New Deal politics, was getting in his ticks.

Finally the commission came back from the White House with the notation on it, "Held up temporarily because of political objections by P. M. G." The commission did not carry the President's signature. He had aided temporarily with the postmaster general on the question of an appointee's political affiliation.

Heard He Voted for Hoover.

Inquiry disclosed that Mr. Farley had heard or discovered that Prof. Finch voted for Mr. Hoover against Al Smith in 1928. He was not acceptable to the watchful Mr. Farley, whose chief job is to land fat $5,000 positions like the directorship of the bureau of mines for deserving Democrats.

Prof. Finch returned to Idaho, President Roosevelt called away to Hawaii. The outright Republican Scott Turner continues to hold the $5,000 job. Secretary Ickes has settled down to some waiting of his own.

"The most certainly is," Secretary Ickes snapped when asked if Prof. Finch is still a candidate for the mines directorship. Apparently the interior secretary, a left wing Republican himself, intends to test the meaning of the President's Yale speech.

FINDS GERMAN IN IGNORANCE OF WHAT'S GOING ON

Nation Blanketed by Fog of Propaganda.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
STRASBOURG, France, July 11.—The German minister to Czechoslovakia delivered a sharp protest to the foreign office today over utterances of a Socialist deputy named Numelhaus. The utterances were said to be interpreted as a direct suggestion that Chancellor Hitler should be killed in the best interests of Germany. The protest was made in the interest of "continued good relations" between the two countries.

The deputy in question, addressing a meeting of international workers, declared: "It is high time the reich's chancellor and his comrades should be removed if the culture of the German people is to be saved."

Maybe it is the thrill of being able once again to buy a Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune or some other foreign paper with real news in it. Until you have had this thrill you don't realize the completeness of the mental isolation of the average German behind the wall of propaganda which defends the third reich from foreign ideas and tries to protect the world from German facts. After three weeks in Hitlerland, you have almost forgotten that there are countries where people can find out what is going on in the world simply by buying a newspaper.

Live in Medieval Ignorance.
The speech yesterday of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German minister of propaganda, in which he castigated foreign correspondents, started the correspondent to remembering lots of things.

Many countries maintain a more or less strict censorship of news, but it is hard to think of any place where people live in such medieval ignorance as do the Germans.

News which can be printed in some parts of Germany cannot be printed in others, not because of varying local regulations, but because the Berlin government makes it a policy not to let the right hand know what the left hand is doing.

In Munich this correspondent was informed of a recent case in which the north German edition of the Nazi paper, Volkischer Beobachter, played up heavily the trial of several Catholic priests in Bavaria, using as a propaganda story against the church.

The south German edition of the Volkischer Beobachter, published at Munich, did not print a word about it. Bavaria is devoutly Catholic and the propaganda would not have been appreciated there.

Calls Up Paris for "News."
One night, with another American newspaper man, I went to the plant of the Volkischer Beobachter to get a paper as it came off the press. We were told that we could have the rich edition, which came out an hour later, but not the south German country edition, just coming off the presses, on the grounds that it contained entirely different news.

In the days immediately following the bloody June 30, I frequently had to call up Berlin or Paris to get leads on what was happening in Munich. On the other hand, much information which was released officially to the press of Munich was withheld from foreign correspondents in Berlin.

Not only does the government withhold news from foreign correspondents, but it does everything possible to keep correspondents from checking up on unofficial rumors, while at the same time denouncing them for spreading unchecked rumors to their papers.

Correspondents Are Arrested.
Correspondents who try to check up on reports are subject to constant annoyance and sometimes risk. On several occasions foreign correspondents, when they had gone to a small village where trouble was said to have occurred, were arrested, searched, and cross-examined by police.

In Nuremberg I was furnished with a good illustration of the prevailing mentality when two detectives walked into my hotel at 2 o'clock and wanted to know why I had called Munich and Paris on the telephone. When I explained that I was a newspaper man they demanded to see copies of some of my dispatches.

One detective went on to show copies of my stories to his chief, while the other sat beside my bed until his comrade returned—exactly two hours later. They also insisted on knowing to whom I had talked in Munich. When I refused to tell, they threatened the call and discovered the name of the person. Luckily he was a foreigner, so didn't run the risk of a concentration camp. The detectives left with profuse apologies for disturbing me. But such incidents do not contribute to accurate newspaper work.

Newsmen Fear for Friends.
The great fear of all foreign newspaper men in Germany is not for their own safety, but for the safety of friends or informants who supply them with news. It is not a catastrophe for an American newspaper man to be asked to leave Germany because he had written something which annoyed Goebbels, but it is not a nice thing to have on your conscience the knowledge that some one is being tortured in a concentration camp because he gave you news.

Foreign correspondents are in deadly fear every time they write a story which the government does not like that it may be traced to some German informant. It does not matter whether you got the story from that particular informant or not. You never know when you are being shadowed, and if he is even seen talking to you or you are seen coming out of his house, it may mean prison for him.

Correspondents in Germany take very few notes, and what notes they do take they are usually careful to destroy as soon as possible. I remember dining with an American colleague at Munich, and seeing him turn white in the middle of the meal, exclaiming:

"My God, I just remembered that I left a sheet of notes with some names and addresses in my bag at the hotel. If my room is searched three of my friends are going to a concentration camp."

It does not matter whether you got the story from that particular informant or not. You never know when you are being shadowed, and if he is even seen talking to you or you are seen coming out of his house, it may mean prison for him.

Correspondents in Germany take very few notes, and what notes they do take they are usually careful to destroy as soon as possible. I remember dining with an American colleague at Munich, and seeing him turn white in the middle of the meal, exclaiming:

"My God, I just remembered that I left a sheet of notes with some names and addresses in my bag at the hotel. If my room is searched three of my friends are going to a concentration camp."

FRIENDS OF SLAIN NAZIS SAY HITLER WAS 'CROSSED'

(Copyright: 1934 by The New York Times.)
BERLIN, July 11.—An account of the events leading up to Chancellor Hitler's "second revolution" and purporting to represent the side of the executed Storm Troop leaders has been submitted to your correspondent, by sympathizers with their cause. This account denies the Nazi government's charge that the Storm Troop leaders planned a mutiny against Chancellor Hitler or that they conspired either with former Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher, who was executed, or a foreign power. All such charges are denounced as "lies."

Called Friends of Hitler.
The executed leaders are represented as having been Hitler's most loyal followers, who believed in his revolutionary promises and waited for the day when he would call on them to march against "reaction," which, in their view, was beginning to regain the upper hand. In anticipation for that day, it is admitted, selected troops were being armed to be ready for the Führer's call.

This presentation is supported by authentic reports that most of the executed leaders died with protestations of innocence and that Karl Ernst, Berlin leader, faced the firing squad with the cry, "Heil Hitler!" He is said to have believed "reactionary" guards had revolted against the Führer and were killing him as Hitler's faithful lieutenant.

According to this account, Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia, engineered this "Bartholomew's eve."

Say Hitler Hesitated.
The reichswehr [regular army] had long desired to purchase France's consent to its enlargement by the dissolution or reduction of the Storm Troops. Industrial leaders had also found the Storm Troops inconvenient.

Capt. Ernst Roehm, chief of staff of the Storm Troops, and his aids, naturally opposed such a course. Goering, who had the confidence of every body in the Storm Troop leaders as well as of Hitler and the army, stepped into the situation. He laid charges against the Storm Troop commander before Hitler. But the latter hesitated. He first sent Roehm and then the entire Storm Troop to a "vacation" and promised to investigate.

But this was contrary to Goering's idea and he raised a cry of alarm over the alleged "second revolution." Roehm's circle realized what was going on and began to reconcile itself to the idea it might be sidetracked for some time.

Goering Puts Over Coup.
But, says the account, "we underestimated Goering's lack of inhibition and learned of impending events a few minutes too late to defend ourselves."

Goering, the account continues, put before Hitler additional material against Storm Troop leaders—material which the account charges was forged—"and on the night of Friday, June 29, he followed it up with alarming telephone reports to Hitler regarding an impending putsch 'invented by himself.'"

This sealed the fate of the Storm Troop leaders. Goering received authority to take action in North Germany, while Hitler acted in Munich. The account concludes: "On this occasion a number of other people were killed who were inconvenient to Goering or his backers, who had the advantage of disguising the real meaning of the coup."

Poland Acts to Smother Drive Against Jews
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
WARSAW, Poland, July 11.—Anti-Semitic propaganda in Poland is to be suppressed, according to the Polish government. It has ordered that sharp measures be taken against adherents of the National Radical party, an offshoot of the German Nazi creed. Two of the most important districts, Warsaw and Poznan, have outlawed the National Radical party in their universities, threatening students with punishment, including expulsion, for belonging to the party.

Poland, with a Jewish population of between three and four millions, considers anti-Semitism a menace to public order. Although anti-Jewish riots have repeatedly occurred since the country achieved independence, the government has always taken measures to protect Jews. The Polish press, which is largely Jewish, welcomes the government's decision.

Agitators of both the ultra-left and ultra-right parties will receive similar treatment, the government announced. Aron Kantor, Warsaw communist leader, and other Reds will be imprisoned in the same concentration camp as the editor of a Nazi weekly who received Poland's highest decorations for bravery during the war, the statement said. The official roster of the newest concentration camp now includes 40 National Radical, 40 communists, and 130 Ukrainian patriots.

Dollfuss Takes Control of Army and Police in Austria

BY DAVID DARRAH.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
VIENNA, July 11.—Taking swift advantage of the discredit into which National Socialism has fallen, Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss today unexpectedly played Jupiter with a thunderbolt cabinet reshuffle and declared merciless warfare from now on against the "Brown Shirt" pests.

Vienna learned at noon that following a lot of maneuvering aimed to increase his political prestige and at the same time to get rid of cabinet encumbrances, Dollfuss yesterday afternoon presented the entire cabinet's resignation to President Wilhelm Miklas.

This, however, seems only to have been a face saving gesture for the three principal personages actually to be kicked out. They were Dr. Prince Schoenburg-Hartenstein, undersecretary of national defense and a confirmed monarchist, Robert Kerber, minister of the interior, and Dr. Franz Glas, undersecretary to the ministry of justice.

Takes Over Army and Police.
With these three lacking, the whole cabinet shortly after reformed with Dollfuss taking over the interior and giving him full control of the army and police and sidetracking the hard-boiled but straight shooting Maj. Emil Fey, vice chancellor and minister of public safety.

Dollfuss took over Fey's portfolio of public safety. In addition to his duties as chancellor he also assumed the ministries of foreign affairs, defense and agriculture.

He named Fey as a sort of commissioner or political repression and seems to have charged him with the job of shooting the terrorist bomb throwers and Dollfuss' political opponents out of the state as he shot the Social Democrats out of the country in last February's civil war.

See Fey as Scapegoat.
Fey who was replaced by Prince Ernst Reudinger von Starhemberg as vice chancellor and is now replaced by Dollfuss as minister of public safety, seems to be appointed as the scapegoat in Dollfuss' fight to win over the Socialists and to vanquish the Nazis. Anyway, he will be charged with all political repression activities and the papers announced tonight that he will proceed about this as energetically as he did against the Socialists last winter.

The purport of today's cabinet changes seems to be to concentrate and reinforce the government for a vigorous fight against all bomb throwers, terrorists and the political opposition. Stern measures have been put into effect. Warnings were issued that any one caught in the possession of explosives after a certain time limit is liable to condemnation to death.

The official communique says that Dollfuss' patience is ended, and that all political opposition to him must be thrown throughout the country tonight.

New York, July 11.—[Special.]—Mrs. Carolyn Lockwood, who was one of the five Americans jailed in Palma, Mallorca, last year, as a charge of assisting a civil officer returned to New York today in the Exchorda of the American Export Lines.

The story that I attacked the civil guard was entirely untrue, she insisted. "The police were looking for some scapegoats because of disturbances that had occurred and they picked on us. It was the most unpleasant episode in my life and all I want to do now is to forget it."

Mrs. Lockwood, her husband, Charles Benedict Lockwood of Springfield, Mass.; Robert Mead of New York; Edmund Blodgett of Stamford, Conn.; and Rutherford Fullerton of Columbus, O., were jailed in June, 1933, despite the protests of the United States government. All except Fullerton were sentenced to six months' imprisonment, but the Spanish government arranged pardons.

Lockwood remained in Palma to complete some paintings.

IVY LEE, PRESS AGENT, TELLS OF ADVICE TO NAZIS

Paid $25,000 Yearly by Dye Trust.

New York, July 11.—[Special.]—Ivy Lee, "public relations" adviser to American corporations, told a congressional investigating committee today that he had been employed by a former German consul general in New York. He charged the committee was persecuting him.

George Sylvester Viereck (left), writer, admitted before the congressional committee investigating Nazi propaganda in New York Tuesday that he had been employed by a former German consul general in New York. He charged the committee was persecuting him.

Examined on May 19, Lee's original examination took place in Washington on May 19 at an executive session, to prepare for the public hearing today. Lee was not given sufficient notice to enable him to return from abroad, however, Representative McCormack explained today, consequently the transcript of his original examination was read into the public record as a substitute for his presence.

To supplement it, Burnham Carter of the Ivy Lee office, designated by Lee as the person in charge of the German publicity contract, was later questioned. Lee said the retainer came from the German dye trust, which he identified as the most important corporation in Germany. He said the trust summoned him "because they were very much concerned about the beginning of the boycott and wanted to know what could be done and what influence they could exert with their government."

"Sized Hitler Up." He said he met Hitler at that time, just as the Nazi leader was getting under way as a government, because the corporate leaders who summoned Lee "were anxious for me to meet him just as a personal matter, to size him up."

Thereafter, Lee said, suggestions for statements of policy by Germany were prepared here by the Ivy Lee office and transmitted through Lee's son in Berlin, to the German dye trust. Lee took the position at first during the examination that he had no relations with the German government. Later he said his advice was transmitted directly to the German dye trust. "And I do not know what the dye trust did."

"I realize the delicacy of this situation," he said in offering an explanation. He said that in January, when he visited Germany, he protested to the dye trust that manifestations of Nazi propaganda in the United States were unwelcome; and that the dye trust officials asked him if he would repeat that advice to different officers in the government.

Introduced to Von Papen. He said that Dr. Max Ignor, managing director of the German dye trust, then introduced him to Vice Chancellor von Papen, Minister of Propaganda Goebbels, Foreign Minister von Neurath, and Economic Minister Schmitt. "And," said Lee, "I made that speech to every one."

When he admitted the Ivy Lee firm had transmitted suggestions to the dye trust for declarations by Germany on disarmament, Lee was asked by Representative John M. McCormack of Massachusetts, as chairman of the "un-American activities" investigation. "That information, however, was intended for the German government at its utterances?" "It was intended that it should be," Lee said.

Several suggestions transmitted to Germany by the Ivy Lee office in this fashion were introduced in evidence, among them a statement of the principle of "equality of armament," which Lee now is proclaiming. One suggestion hangs fire. Another Lee suggestion, which has not, however, been acted on, was that Joachim von Ribbentrop, appointed special commissioner for disarmament to represent the German government in April, "should make a visit to the United States with a view to explaining Germany's position to President Roosevelt and, while he was here, address the Foreign Policy association and the council on foreign relations on the subject."

Lee said his activity was confined to giving advice in the form of suggestions as to statements to be made or policies to be adopted. "I had taken the position," he said, "that I would not disseminate anything, any documents, however innocuous."

Representative McCormack said: "If the suggestions you made as to points to be covered were adopted, and were published as emanating from responsible Germans, there would come back in some form or other to this country."

NEW AUTO COURT STARTS DRIVE TO CUT TOLL TODAY

Safety Committee Will War on Speeders.

Two new aids to public safety will be under way today—the new Safety court, to which all motorists whose traffic violations constitute a hazard to life and limb will be taken, and the Keep Chicago Safe committee, appointed by the city council yesterday.

The new committee was appointed after Mayor Edward J. Kelly delivered a message on traffic safety to the council, listing many hazards that cause deaths and accidents daily. Ald. Jacob M. Arvey (24th) then moved that 50 prominent Chicagoans be named as the Keep Chicago Safe group, to formulate plans for reducing traffic accidents.

The new Safety court, which has been established by Chief Justice John J. Sonstby of the Municipal court, will be in the central police building at 1131 South State street.

Such offenses as driving while intoxicated, reckless driving, passing traffic lights or passing on the left of street cars, leaving the scene of an accident and speeding will be tried there. Special precautions have been ordered by Judge Sonstby to insure strict enforcement of these statutes, violations of which are blamed for the large increase in automobile fatalities and injuries in the last few months.

A court stenographer will be assigned to take a more adequate record of proceedings than the usual charge sheet kept by the judge, on which the mere disposition of cases is entered. Richard Dwyer, 22 years old, 6041 Wolfram street, was sentenced to 10 days in the Bridewell and fined $100 yesterday by Municipal Judge William E. Halderman on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested after a car he was driving struck another yesterday at Montrose and Long avenues.

Given Study of Cases. Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, yesterday made available an exhaustive report on operation of automobiles by intoxicated persons, rendered by a British scientific committee in recent years. It emphasizes that the degree of intoxication of a motorist need be very slight to make him dangerous to the public.

Recommending that the test for the intoxicated driver ignore the strict definitions of intoxication, hard to fit legally, the British committee recommended that the essence of the offense should be considered as being in "a condition which prevents him from exercising adequate control of the vehicle."

Joining the general move to reduce automobile accidents, the executive board of the Suburban Mayors' association yesterday launched a separate campaign against reckless drivers. A committee of suburban police chiefs, headed by Richard H. Bailey of Maywood, was appointed to draft plans for making the outlying districts safer.

Arrests yesterday in the new police drive against motorists who have not yet obtained 1934 state license plates and city vehicle tags had reached 338 at 11 o'clock last night. Of these, 201 were arrested for driving without new city tags and 137 for not having the 1934 state licenses.

Mrs. Lucille Whitehouse filed suit for divorce in the Superior court yesterday against Howard D. Whitehouse, stockbroker and former executive of a loop bank. She charged cruelty.

In the bill, Mrs. Whitehouse, who was formerly the wife of W. A. S. Douglas, soldier-author and former Chicago newspaper man, alleged that Whitehouse struck her on several occasions. She asserted he caused her to leave him on three different occasions within the last year, the last being on July 7.

Mrs. Whitehouse gave her address as 70 East Walton place. The two have been married since May 28, 1923.

50 CENT LICENSES ON CITY BICYCLES URGED BY COUNCIL

The city council at a meeting yesterday took steps to regulate and license bicycling. A resolution directing the council finance committee to draft an ordinance governing the operation of bicycles on the public streets was adopted unanimously.

Ald. John Toman (23d) sponsored the plan on the grounds that it would protect cyclists and motorists. A license fee of 50 cents was proposed in the resolution. License plates would aid in the return of stolen bicycles, Toman said.

The resolution set forth that no bicycles should be operated between a half hour after sunset and a half hour before sunrise unless the vehicle displayed a white light on the front, plainly visible 300 feet, and a red reflector on the rear that could be plainly discerned in the lights of automobiles behind.

Joining the general move to reduce automobile accidents, the executive board of the Suburban Mayors' association yesterday launched a separate campaign against reckless drivers. A committee of suburban police chiefs, headed by Richard H. Bailey of Maywood, was appointed to draft plans for making the outlying districts safer.

Arrests yesterday in the new police drive against motorists who have not yet obtained 1934 state license plates and city vehicle tags had reached 338 at 11 o'clock last night. Of these, 201 were arrested for driving without new city tags and 137 for not having the 1934 state licenses.

H. D. WHITEHOUSE, BROKER, NAMED IN DIVORCE SUIT (Picture on back page.)

Mrs. Lucille Whitehouse filed suit for divorce in the Superior court yesterday against Howard D. Whitehouse, stockbroker and former executive of a loop bank. She charged cruelty.

In the bill, Mrs. Whitehouse, who was formerly the wife of W. A. S. Douglas, soldier-author and former Chicago newspaper man, alleged that Whitehouse struck her on several occasions. She asserted he caused her to leave him on three different occasions within the last year, the last being on July 7.

Mrs. Whitehouse gave her address as 70 East Walton place. The two have been married since May 28, 1923.

QUIETER AUTOS NEW OBJECTIVE FOR DESIGNERS

Engineers Tell of Results of Recent Studies.

BY HAL FOUST. [Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Detroit, Mich., July 11.—[Special.]—The public is due for relief from the rumble and thunder of engine exhausts in motor traffic. Chicago police are arresting the flagrant offenders, the drivers of vehicles without any mufflers. Automobile engineers in the research laboratories here are making rapid progress in the suppression of explosion noises for current and future models.

Public Demand Is New. This is a belated improvement by the motor car trade. Even current models are inadequately muffled when the engine is laboring. This is particularly true of commercial vehicles and motorcycles. Manufacturers, in reply to this criticism, say there has been no urgent demand from buyers for quietness in trucks and motorcycles. The public is now making such a demand.

Ernest E. Wilson, sound engineer of the General Motors research laboratories, disclosed today that revolutionary discoveries in the acoustics of gasoline engines now make it possible to absorb 90 per cent of the audibility of exhausts. The automobile, born about forty years ago, inherited its exhaust muffler from the barrel of a cannon. It was used as a muffler for stationary engines. Up until the present day, the majority of mufflers have been little different in the essentials of their design from that barrel model. A cast iron pot and later a sheet iron can was substituted for the barrel near the end of the exhaust pipe. Baffle plates were substituted for the rocks that were in the barrel.

Old Designs Mistaken. This type of muffler, the standard for almost forty years of automobile history, was founded upon false conceptions of the characteristics of sound issuing from the exhaust pipe, according to Mr. Wilson. It was erroneously believed that quiet was to be obtained by the expansion of the gases and the repeated deflection of the puffs that come down the exhaust pipe. The explosion noise, said J. O. Almen, chief engineer of the laboratory's dynamics section, "is not caused by the ignition nor the combustion of the charge in the cylinders. What you hear is the impact of high pressure gas from the combustion chamber on low pressure gas in the exhaust manifold."

Still Further Neutralizing. "Another absorbing chamber will be tuned to counteract another pitch passing through the chamber. By such a system, silence is approached."

"Could such a device be employed on trucks, buses, and motorcycles?" the reporter asked.

"Trucks, buses, and motorcycles," Mr. Almen replied, "have not quieted their exhausts with the old expansion and reflection type of muffler, because the back pressure would cost from 10 to 15 per cent of the engine's power output and because the buyers have not been especially concerned with the noise they create. They have not used this new muffler, due to its cost."

"For maximum efficiency the new muffler, representing six years of research, must be tuned to the engine as carefully as a violin is tuned in an orchestra."

PITTSBURGH MAYOR FAVORS CITY RULED VICE AND GAMBLING

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 11.—[Special.]—Mayor William N. McNair today declared himself in favor of city sanctioned and city supervised gambling houses and vice resorts as a means to increase the city's tax revenue.

The mayor's declaration for city sponsored vice and gambling came on the heels of a letter from Director of Public Safety A. Marshall Bell, requesting the appointment of a commission to study "the age old problem known as 'the social vice'."

"Why not," the mayor said, "let Riley or Smith or Jones, who owns a lot of property and owes a lot of back taxes, or any big estate that owes a lot of taxes to the city, open up a gambling joint under proper supervision so as to get revenue to pay the city what they owe?"

"I'll go before the commission myself and make a recommendation to the effect that 'landladies' should be allowed to operate if their taxes are paid."

"This, of course, means they would operate under strict supervision."

Like Bottle of Wine. "The cause of the noise is similar to the cause of the pop when a bottle of wine is opened. Or you can pop your lips by sucking so as to create a partial vacuum in your mouth and then open the lips suddenly."

"The waves of sound travel down the exhaust pipe, independent of the waves of high and low pressure gas, independent of the puffs."

"In the new muffler," Mr. Wilson said, "the gas passes through the exhaust pipe with little interference to its puffs. However, there are perforations in the pipe so the waves may be absorbed by addition chambers. In these chambers a counter-irritant is created."

"This counter-irritant is a sound of the same frequency or pitch as one of the notes in the sounds going through the exhaust. One is used to counteract the other. The similar sounds absorb or neutralize each other."

Still Further Neutralizing. "Another absorbing chamber will be tuned to counteract another pitch passing through the chamber. By such a system, silence is approached."

"Could such a device be employed on trucks, buses, and motorcycles?" the reporter asked.

"Trucks, buses, and motorcycles," Mr. Almen replied, "have not quieted their exhausts with the old expansion and reflection type of muffler, because the back pressure would cost from 10 to 15 per cent of the engine's power output and because the buyers have not been especially concerned with the noise they create. They have not used this new muffler, due to its cost."

"For maximum efficiency the new muffler, representing six years of research, must be tuned to the engine as carefully as a violin is tuned in an orchestra."

POLICEMAN DIES OF MOTORCYCLE CRASH INJURIES

Motorcycle Policeman James Tanaka of Cicero died yesterday in the Francis Willard hospital of injuries he received July 6 when he crashed into an automobile at 35th street and 52d avenue while on route from St. Louis to Chicago. A verdict of accidental death was returned after an inquest yesterday afternoon. Surviving Tanaka are his wife, Josephine, and four small children.

Two sisters, Meriam Dodge, 20 years old, 1020 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, and Dorothy, 25 years old, chief dietitian of the Children's hospital at Akron, O., were injured when their car overturned twice on a slippery road west of Taylorville, yesterday while en route from St. Louis to Chicago. The elder sister received a fractured rib, while Meriam, who was graduated from the University of Illinois in June, received lacerations. The death of Tanaka and one other increased the toll in Cook county since the first of the year to 437. The other victims: Patricia Abella, 5 years old, 4709 West 65th street. Fatally injured when she was run over by the rear wheels of a truck trader at 65th street and Cicero avenue. Robert Michael, 34, of Rensselaer, Ind., driver of the truck, was held by police pending the inquest. The child died in the Holy Cross hospital.

Unidentified man. Died in the County hospital last night of injuries incurred on July 5 when he was struck by an automobile driven by Prof. Harlow Chambliss of Washington, D. C., at 34th avenue and Lake street in Melrose Park.

Capitalist-Lion Hunter Found Guilty of Contempt. Cleveland, O., July 11.—[AP.]—Kenyon V. Painter, Cleveland capitalist and lion hunter, who owes the Union Trust company more than $300,000, was found guilty of contempt of court today, fined $500 and costs, and sentenced to serve ten days in jail.

Automobile Thefts. Automobiles stolen, 29; recovered, 26; stripped, 1 (from police records for the twenty-four hours ending at midnight Tuesday).

"Give me but the liberty of the press and I will give to the minister a penal house of peers. I will give him a corrupt and servile house of commons. I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him, to purchase up submission and overawe resistance; and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will go forth to meet him undimmed. I will attack the mighty fabric of that mightier engine. I will shake down from its height corruption and bury it beneath the ruins of the abuses it was meant to shelter."

—Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

MR. ICKES EXPLAINS.

Mr. Ickes may recall that one of his associates in the more abundant life, Mr. Hopkins of the federal relief, Gen. Johnson or some other truly forward looking, told the country recently: "You ain't seen nothing yet." The little boy not much well be framed by Mr. Ickes and hung on his wall in the interior department. It would help him to keep down his blood pressure.

When it was disclosed that Mr. Ickes had ordered the placing of interior department advertising in sound Democratic newspapers as a subsidy for support of the New Deal, he triumphantly replied that Albert Fall, Harding's secretary of the interior, had done the same thing for Republican newspapers in his time.

If Mr. Ickes is going back to Mr. Fall for precedents the department of the interior will be even more interesting than it promised to be. Mr. Fall was restrained by old ideas of government which have fallen before the ram's horn of a really new era. The gentlemen who cultivated Mr. Fall's acquaintance for more than appeared on the surface at the time recognized that all the doors of the treasury had not been taken off their hinges. Even Mr. Harding's government had not set as its ideal a forty billion dollar debt with annual appropriations running to eight or ten billion dollars.

The old fogies who were in Washington at that time would have put such a financial setup out of their calculations as preposterous. They thought that the public buildings would be plastered with their hides if they tried any such game. Mr. Ickes' job is to get rid of as much money as he can as quickly as possible. He observes with admiration one of Mr. Fall's little devices for getting political advantage out of the expenditure of public money. He must admire it because he adopts it and offers Mr. Fall as his justification.

There are many competent gentlemen who will take a new interest in Mr. Ickes if they are persuaded by his own words that he has found a model of departmental deportment in the behavior of a well known member of the Harding administration. Mr. Farley, the dependable old timer, should take Mr. Ickes out for a walk.

PFUI TEUFEL.

Goebbels, the Nazi minister of public enlightenment, gave a hiding to the foreign correspondents in Germany in a broadcast which was a broadside accusing the newspaper men of spreading malicious lies throughout the world intending to defame and to twist what was an orderly handling of a threatening situation into an orgy of murder and violence. The good Nazi's indignation is understandable. He is the official purveyor of sweetness and light and the executioners got away from his white magic.

The correspondents saw a scene resembling the worst of any three days of the Lenin seizure of Russia, or the Paris terror, or the proscriptions under Hitler. Assassins and drumhead courts martial struck at the most impressive figures to the right and left of Hitler. The purge of blood approached the door of Von Hindenburg and it went into the inner circle of the Nazis. Following, the proscription and persecution of a race the dictatorship revealed that no person in the country was secure within the protections of law and that all were exposed to the fears and jealousies of a hysterical government. People the world over were shocked to discover that autocracy had not been foisted by civilization and culture, but still had its old fangs and claws.

All this, says Mr. Goebbels, was untrue. Evidently Gen. and Mrs. von Schleicher passed away peacefully of old age, deeply mourned by Hitler, who sent his condolences to the family. Erast Roehm, a model of the Christian virtues, had a heart attack and expired. Hitler cannot be consoled. Gregor Strasser, Dr. Heinrich Klammer, and members of Von Papen's staff ate something which disagreed with them. Hitler sent formal wreaths.

In spite of the natural regret felt throughout the country the Germans rallied bravely, smiling through their tears, and have been engaged in innocent festivals ever since. Goebbels tells the world that the humanity, benevolence, and beauty of the National Socialists never appeared to better advantage. To the correspondents' tears he says "pfui teufel." To Goebbels the correspondents will reply "holoney."

LOWER RAILWAY FARES.

A report submitted to a meeting of the Western Association of Railway Executives on July 9 showed that during the first six months of the year 1934 the western lines had carried thirty-three per cent more passengers and earned five per cent more passenger revenue than during the corresponding period of 1933. The western roads have been operating under reduced fares, scheduled to terminate at the end of the present year. After hearing the report, the association voted to extend the date of termination to Dec. 31, 1935.

The western carriers are to be congratulated upon their decision to give these reduced schedules a thorough test. The increase in revenue for the first six months of the experiment is not tremendous, but it is significant, and would seem to justify the extension of the effective period. The railroads for years have faced declining passenger returns because the traveling public had found more economical means of transport. The greater comfort of rail travel did not offset the difference in cost. The western roads have made a definite effort to bridge the gap and the first really comprehensive report seems to indicate that they have met with response. At least, the steady downward trend of passenger revenues has been checked.

The railroads are likely to find that as the trial period continues the returns will increase. The American public stands in no need of being made travel-conscious, but must again be made railway travel conscious. A start has been made with reduced fares, air-conditioning and high speed, streamlined trains—but it is only a beginning. The railroads must continue to take the aggressive. Only through cheap, ultra-modern service can they again convince the public that they offer the greatest transportation bargain in the country.

HOW TO END WAR?

Readers of THE TRIBUNE who have followed with mixed emotions this newspaper's modest essay in reformed spelling would not vote us the red badge of courage if they should happen upon Mr. Follick's volume, "The Influence of English." One example from Mr. Follick's system will suffice. The sentence, old style, "A twisted flash of pain shot across the painter's face," becomes in Mr. Follick's masterful hands: "Ei twisted flash ov pain shot akros dhu painter's fei."

This we are informed in the Manchester Guardian's comment is "automatic spelling," and in Mr. Follick's conviction it will remove the chief obstacle to a world-wide adoption of English.

To the uninitiated literary conservative it will seem that Mr. Follick's system makes English easier for non-English speaking peoples it will make it harder for English speakers (or spellers) and that thus its gains in one direction may be offset by losses in another.

But any Bourbon doubts or objections on this or any other score will be disposed of when we are reminded by Mr. Follick of the main objective of this reform, which is nothing less ambitious and desirable than the abolition of war. For, says Mr. Follick, wars occur because peoples do not understand one another and will cease when we are all in possession of the English language as automatically spelled. In fact, it is "the only possible means of ever bringing international warfare to an end." The hard spelling of English he takes to be the chief obstruction to its adoption by other peoples, and we hopefully pass his theory on to the pacifists of our own country who have less promising panaceas in their armory.

Editorial of the Day

TOO MUCH ETA BITE FI.

[Crew's Pacific Lumber Digest.]
A typical press release recently sent out announcing the appointment of Dr. Claudius T. Murchison as director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce contained the following biographical sketch:
"Dr. Claudius T. Murchison was born at Hickory, N. C., April 13, 1893. He received the degree of A. B. from Wake Forest college in 1911 and Ph. D. from Columbia university in 1915. Mr. Murchison lectured on economics at Columbia university during 1915-16. He was associate professor of economics at Miami university, 1916-17; at Hunter college, 1917-20, and at New York university, 1920-21. In 1921-22 he served as associate professor of economics in the University of North Carolina and as professor of applied economics since 1922. During the period 1922-23 Mr. Murchison was acting head and head of the department of economics and commerce in that institution."

Mr. Murchison is a member of the American Economic association, the American Statistical association, and the American Association of University Professors. He is author of two publications dealing with prices and the cotton situation, published in 1919 and 1920, respectively.

What the country needs more than anything else right now is to read some notices sent out of Washington like this:

"Having finally been convinced that school teachers are the most valuable for teaching school and that it will require the best business ability in the United States to pull the country out of the Jack pot into which it has been put by a lot of Eta Bita Pi theorists, the President today announced the appointment of Bill Jones as head of the department of commerce. Bill Jones was born on a farm in Missouri. He obtained his education in a country school and learned all about economics helping his father and mother make enough to feed a family of thirteen on a ranch that was best suited for a rock quarry. When he was 18 years old he went to St. Louis and got a job as swamper in a shoe factory for which he was paid 10 per cent, and out of this sum managed to send 25 cents home to help feed his brothers and sisters. Mr. Jones was a tireless worker and soon convinced his boss that he knew the value of money and how to handle men efficiently and sympathetically. In fifteen years he was vice president of the company, of which he was later made president, and built up an organization which became financially strong, paid good wages and was outstanding in the industry."

"Bill Jones doesn't belong to any societies, has never written a book or delivered any lectures. He is a public spirited man who has given freely to all worthy charitable institutions. He has false upper, wears glasses, chews Star, and can ease in a language that even a longshoreman would enjoy. He has brought his 1926 model Buick to Washington with him, says he has no use for a professional politician, intends to do away with the red tape in the department of commerce, and fire half of the employees who are eating out of the taxpayers' pockets. Bill Jones did not want the job and only accepted it as a patriotic duty with the understanding that he was to be allowed to run it like he does his shoe factory at St. Louis, which is good news to the property owning citizens of this country and bad news for socialists, communists and parlor pinks."

HIS WEAKE POINT.

"My advice to you, colonel, is to go through the movements of driving without using the ball," said the golf instructor.

"My dear fellow," answered the colonel, "that's precisely the trouble I'm wanting to overcome." —Vancouver Province.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

THE GRAND OLD COMMONWEALTH of Mississippi, sah, is voting by a big majority to remain dry. We don't blame 'em. The moonshine they make down there is not as smooth and hasn't got the swell labels of the bonded article, but it's lots cheaper and, anyhow, home industry should be protected.

DEEP SEA DIVING seems to be a profession closed to women. They've broken into everything else, but they've got to keep out of deep sea diving. And why? ask you. Wait, we're coming to that. The American diver who was employed by the British admiral to go down and examine the sunken British cruiser Hampshire, the ship that carried Lord Kitchener, in the hopes of finding two million pounds (ten million dollars in real money, as the American tourists quaintly put it), has done his work and promised that for two years he will not tell what he discovered. Two years (3) mark you. This deep sea diver promises to keep the secret for two (2) years. The ladies are lovely, adorable; we simply couldn't do without them. But can you imagine a lady keeping a secret two (2) years? It can't be done!

CONGRESSMEN who are running for reelection this fall announce they are going to make ringing speeches from the stump telling of their fitness for the job. Why don't they just carry blackboards and chalk around with them and demonstrate how niftily they can sign their names on the dotted line? That's all the sovereign voters want to know anyhow.

The Girl with the Green Eyes.

Green, but not too green,
A touch of hazel, and the sheen
Of a laurel leaf I picked
Long years ago in Shirley Road,
Clear as a channel bell,
Cold as the wrath of God,
But if one knows them well,
Soft as an old refrain,
Or mist of April rain;
And so of course it is Without the least surprise
That you surmise
I love the girl
With the green eyes!

E. L. S.

LUPE VELEZ, who says she will sue Johnny Weissmuller for divorce, adds: "Johnny and I love each other, but our life is a continuous series of quarrels." Isn't love the darndest thing?

DOWN IN WASHINGTON they've issued orders to the department clerks to keep their feet off their desks. Which seems an invasion of human rights; a man can sleep much easier when he has his back down on the seat of a big swivel office chair and his feet firmly rooted on his desk. Stonewall Jackson used to express his pleasure when, his men during short halts would lie stretched out on the ground. "That's right," Stonewall would say; "I like to see the men lie flat on the ground; in that way they rest all over." But Stonewall never knew the luxury of a job in Washington with swivel chairs and mahogany desks.

THE PROUD CITY of New Orleans rises right up on its hind legs and objects to Mae West changing the name of her film, "It Hain't No Sin," to the "Belle of New Orleans." Miss West has tried so many titles and met only discouragement that it is reported from Hollywood she is now considering changing "It Hain't No Sin" to either "How to Make Salmon Salad" or "What to Do for Warts and Chillsbains."

WHENEVER I am downhearted after this I am going to think of the Republican national committee. They announce a strenuous campaign to begin at once; they appeal to the young to step forward and do things; they tell the NRA where it gets off. After all, the G. O. P. teaches us that hope never dies, that there is a bag of gold at the foot of every rainbow, and that beyond the Alps lies Italy. Let us, then, dear friends, be like the brave and sturdy Republicans, and when cruel fate gives us the swift kick in the pants let us jump nimbly up and shout with glee: "Never touched me!"

IRIS.

The iris in a long, slow curve of green
Lift their heads surely in the thin, blurred rain.
Their is the beauty of the early slain,
Who glow and shake with life in the young, clean
Desire of each proud spring; and their the lean,
Cruel glory, swift and wolflike in the brain
Of that poor, tired foolish man in Spain . . .
And theirs a patience, pity-born, serene.

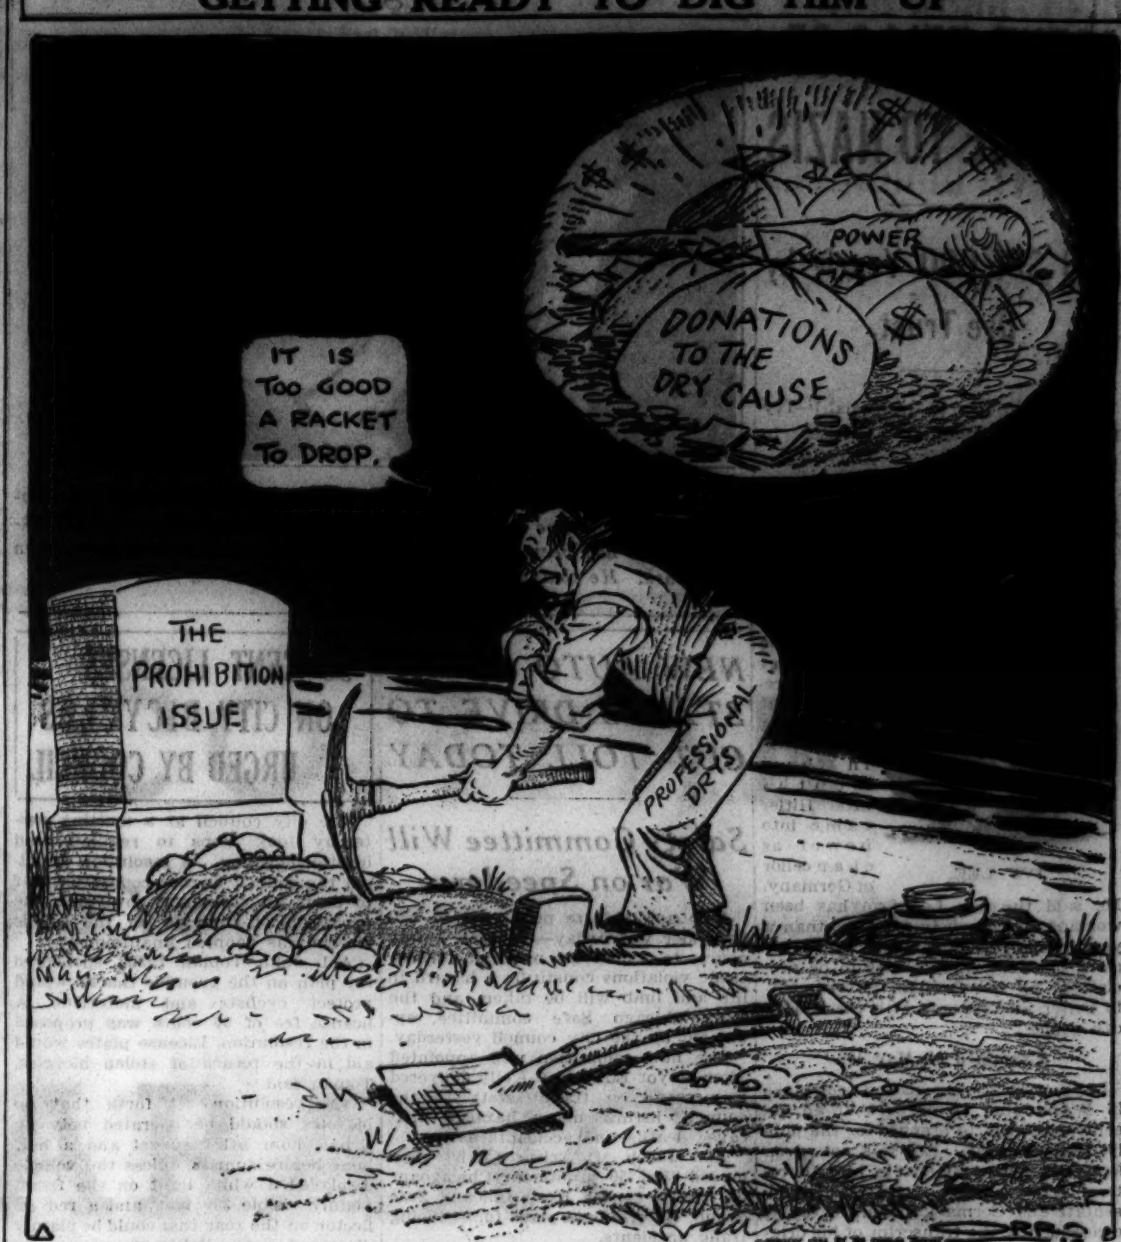

Here in the pale and twisted rains of spring
From a few fingerful of careless dust
Has suddenly leapt a wondrous, fearful thing . . .
We buried with the babe a sad, strange trust,
Not thinking that the still, short months would bring Beauty to sharpen hearts when swords are rust.

RAYMOND HOSKEN.

AND SOMETIMES we rashly think the depression is still sticking around. And yet little Shirley Tempest, the five year old star, has just been given a year's contract for a thousand dollars each and every week. If a child five years old can earn a thousand dollars a week it ought to be easy for the college graduates who are much older than that and who are jammed to the eyes with knowledge, culture, theories, graphs, statistics, and everything like that to get a job, no matter what they say. Why should a college graduate have to wash automobiles when even a five year old child can pull down a thousand bucks a week?

"PORK PRICES ARE 25 TO 50 PER CENT HIGHER than a Year Ago," W. G. N. Oh, how we wish we had the pigs that once we buried away.

FAMILY ENTRANCE.

Chicago, July 2.—While religion and the movie world argue over smutty pictures, I would like to put in a word or two about another influence that could be adjusted at the same time. Such a case presents a real tragedy, for the individual has not learned and probably never will learn that any task, no matter how small, is worth doing well.

Adjustments to distressing situations in critical times must be made by straight thinking and with a clear understanding that the factors causing mental depression are in many instances beyond the control of the individual. Nevertheless, neither he nor any person can be a passive victim, and alone responsible; the factors that affect John Jones, the individual, may be worldwide in scope.

Every thinking person must face realities and meet them with all the intelligence that he possesses. A direct surrender is unthinkable. In order to withstand the vicissitudes of life the unstable nervous system must be readjusted and in this process the assistance of intelligent friends and the counsel of an understanding physician are needed. The excessive use of alcohol and narcotics and the wild plunge into night life are frequently an effort to escape realities.

There always comes a day of reckoning and, this same person may be finally equipped to face life's problems with a weakened physical resistance.

The whole field of mental hygiene must be more intensively studied and better understood in order to throw back the rapidly rising wave of mental instability that is passing out and silencing the human mind.

It is possible. P. N. writes:

1. Is it possible to have a prominent, beak shaped nose of the Jimmy Durante type straightened and made smaller?
2. Is it a difficult operation?

Chicago, July 6.—A thousand thanks for your article on "Muders for Motorcycles." Those of us who live on boulevards are continually harassed by unmannered motorcycles that roar down the street day and night, having little regard for the nerves of those who live along such highways.

BUS FARE AT THE FAIR.

Riverside, Ill., July 2.—The charge of 10 cents on the Greyhound Buses at the Fair is excessive and should be reduced to a minimum of 5 cents. A Century of Progress officials have given the public a splendid deal this year in every way except in permitting the Greyhound company to charge this high price. The public is at the mercy of this transportation monopoly! S. W. RICHARDS.

MOTORCYCLES.

Chicago, July 6.—A thousand thanks for your article on "Muders for Motorcycles." Those of us who live on boulevards are continually harassed by unmannered motorcycles that roar down the street day and night, having little regard for the nerves of those who live along such highways.

ANALOGY.

St. Paul, Minn., July 6.—One man complains of not being allowed to use a full sleeping car section for the price of a lower when the upper berth is unoccupied. He is like the next door neighbor who can see no reason for not occupying his garage as long as it is not tenanted.

ANNUITY INSURANCE.

Chicago, June 20.—(Friend of the Insured.)—I am contemplating the purchase of an annuity, and would appreciate your explanation of what the agent terms an immediate annuity. Would you consider it suitable for a person 45 years of age?

Generally speaking, an immediate (sometimes called ordinary life) annuity is a form which is purchased with a single cash premium in advance, and guarantees the payment of a stipulated sum, annually, semi-annually, quarterly, or monthly during the lifetime of the annuitant, with the understanding that upon his death such payments shall cease, and the premium paid for the annuity be regarded as fully earned. The first payment is made by the company at the end of the first year from the date of the policy if the annuity is to be paid annually, at the end of the first six months if it is to be paid semi-annually, etc., and continuing during the lifetime of the insured. The payment of a lump sum, single premium in advance is therefore required so as to enable the company to make immediate investment in order to carry out the terms of the agreement. An annuity of this kind is usually especially suited for persons approaching the retirement age, such as those 50 years of age or over. However, such annuities are sometimes adaptable to younger people, depending upon the individual responsibilities and circumstances.

NAVY GROUNDS LOS ANGELES, VET GIANT DIRIGIBLE

Huge Airship Is Declared
Unsafe for Flight.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., July 11.—[Special.]—The dirigible Los Angeles, veteran of the navy's sky fleet, has been declared unsafe for flight and ordered decommissioned, Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson announced today.

In service for nearly eleven years. At one time she was the nation's largest airship but the infirmities of age, according to navy technical experts, have rendered her now unfit for active use. Secretary Swanson diagnosed her trouble today as "deterioration of material."

While the Los Angeles will not be permitted to take the air, Secretary Swanson stated, she will be used for experimental purposes in her hangar at the naval air depot at Lakehurst, N. J.

PLAN STUDY ABROAD

Washington, D. C., July 11.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's aviation commission, of which Clark Howell, Atlanta publisher, is the head, will make a comparative study of aviation conditions in Great Britain, France, and Italy in its effort to formulate a definite aviation policy for the United States.

This information was revealed following the second meeting of the commission at the White House. Chairman Howell announced the study would cover what other countries are doing in the way of aviation, government subsidies to aviation, and procurement.

The international study will be made by one of the members of the commission, whose name was not revealed. At the same time, other members of the commission will make a personal survey of the various aviation fields in the United States. Both investigations will be made during August.

Barefoot Motorist Fined $50 for Reckless Driving

Christ Hartolla, 24 years old, of 3611 West 83d place, was fined $50 and costs on a charge of reckless driving yesterday by Judge Michael G. Kasper, because he was driving his car while barefooted. He was arrested after his car struck and injured Miss Catherine O'Neil, 6147 South Paulina street, on July 6. When asked by the judge about why he had no shoes on, Hartolla explained that he worked in a box factory and his shoes were full of shavings. Consequently he took them off so his feet wouldn't hurt.

SWINDLERS USE BANK AT RENO, WITNESS SAYS

Avers Fixer Sells Safety at 15% Rate.

New York, July 11.—[Special.]—Noble John Moore, a stevedore for the Reno confidence game, who entered a plea of guilty last week in the indictment naming him and others as charges of violating the mail fraud law, took the witness stand today in the federal court and made a full confession. He now is serving a sentence of four years and nine months for his part in fleeing Mr. and Mrs. John H. Callahan out of $140,000.

Judge Carroll O. Hincks ordered him held incommunicado by the United States marshal until he has completed his story in court.

Moore said there was a "right jug" bank that asked no questions in Reno. Moore said further that for a payment of 15 per cent to William J. Graham, czar of Reno night clubs and gambling houses, swindlers were assured of easy bank transactions, as well as police protection.

Pointing out various members of the ring by name and by picture, he told how Peter Muckenherm, a farmer of British Columbia, lost $20,000 to the gang.

2 HELD TO JURY ON SURETY BOND FRAUD CHARGES

Jacob Katz, 42 years old, and Henry Maas, 42 years old, who operated the Katz jewelry and novelty store at 4332 West Harrison street, were held to the grand jury in bonds of $9,000 each on three charges of larceny by bailment. The firm went into bankruptcy after "surety bonds" were obtained from several salesmen and collectors hired through want ads placed in The Tribune.

According to the testimony given before Judge Alfred O. Erickson in the felony court, Katz and Maas required $500 in cash or securities of those who answered the advertisement. The defendants declared that the matter was one for the civil courts, but Judge Erickson expressed the opinion that it appeared to be a deliberate scheme to defraud.

The complainants were Richard May.

NASH HANDS OUT $5,600,000 TAX MONEY FOR 1932

County Treasurer Nash yesterday distributed $5,600,000 from 1932 tax collections to the large taxing bodies in Cook county. The amounts, which will be used mainly in the redemption of tax warrants, were as follows: City, $4,000,000; state, $550,000; sanitary district, $500,000; forest preserves, $100,000; south park, $400,000; west park, $100,000; Lincoln park, $150,000. While the money turned over to the city will be used to redeem outstanding warrants, the city today will begin to pay from other revenue salaries totaling $1,950,000 for the last half of May.

HISTORICAL DATE IN CORNER STONE AT SEARS STORE

Corner stone laying ceremonies were conducted yesterday morning for the new $1,500,000 Sears & Roebuck store at 61d and Halsted streets. The building of five stories with basement and sub-basement, to be erected without windows, is to be completed by Nov. 1. Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of the company; M. C. Penticoff, general manager of the company's Chicago district; and Louis Becker, founder of the Becker-Ryan store, which was razed to make way for the new, took part in the ceremonies. Sealed in the corner stone were editions of Chicago newspapers, a history of Chicago, one of the company, and a catalog of the store's merchandise, the official guide book and color pictures of A Century of Progress, and photographs of the Sears officials. A group of pioneer residents of Englewood witnessed the ceremonies.

How Drewrys Ale made the Chicago Tribune the entering wedge to the American market

Concentration in Chicago's First Newspaper Blazes Way for Rapid Expansion Throughout 21 States!

THE story of Drewrys Ale is a clear-cut demonstration that the principles which have been proved sound and profitable in other lines can be equally effective in the cereal beverage field.

Despite its background of "Canada's Pride Since 1877," Drewrys Ale prior to the spring of 1933 was a product virtually unknown in American markets.

Today—in little more than a year—Drewrys Ale has become a leading seller throughout the Chicago territory and in 21 states.

Ignored Traditional Advertising Methods

Drewrys' sales plan was as bold as it is simple. From the beginning, Drewrys ignored the merchandising and advertising methods traditional to the brewing industry. To launch their product on the American market, Drewrys began an advertising campaign of modest proportions in the Chicago market.

They selected the dominant advertising medium in the Chicago market—the Chicago Tribune—and concentrated in it exclusively, with the exception of a 348-line ad run last December in another Chicago paper. So far this year Drewrys has used no other Chicago newspaper.

Since April, 1933, this company has kept Drewrys Ale before Tribune readers. They started advertising long before a single pint of the new product had been bottled. When the ale was ready the consumer demand which greeted it swamped production facilities. But despite inability to maintain deliveries, Drewrys did not stop advertising.

Distributors Sought Sales Rights

They continued in the Chicago Tribune. And turned a deaf ear to all suggestions for a change in their methods. In spite of a highly competitive market, Drewrys not only stuck to their advertising plan, but refused to lower their standards and their price. Production facilities were enlarged. Sales continued to mount. Distributors sought to get Drewry territorial rights.

Then, on Friday, May 19, 1934, at the beginning of the big beverage season, Drewrys stepped out with a full page in run-of-paper 3-color in the Tribune.

Tribune Plan Used in Other Cities

"Checking over the records for the month of May, I find that it was the largest month that we have had yet, both in the city of Chicago and in the United States," writes Theodore Rosenak, president of The Drewrys Limited, U. S. A.

With success achieved in the Chicago territory, Drewrys were encouraged and enabled to expand their market activities elsewhere. In each new market they followed the tactics used in Chicago, concentrating in newspapers.

"We could not have accomplished one-tenth the results if we had spent in the orthodox manner ten times the money we invested in the Chicago Tribune," Mr. Rosenak said.

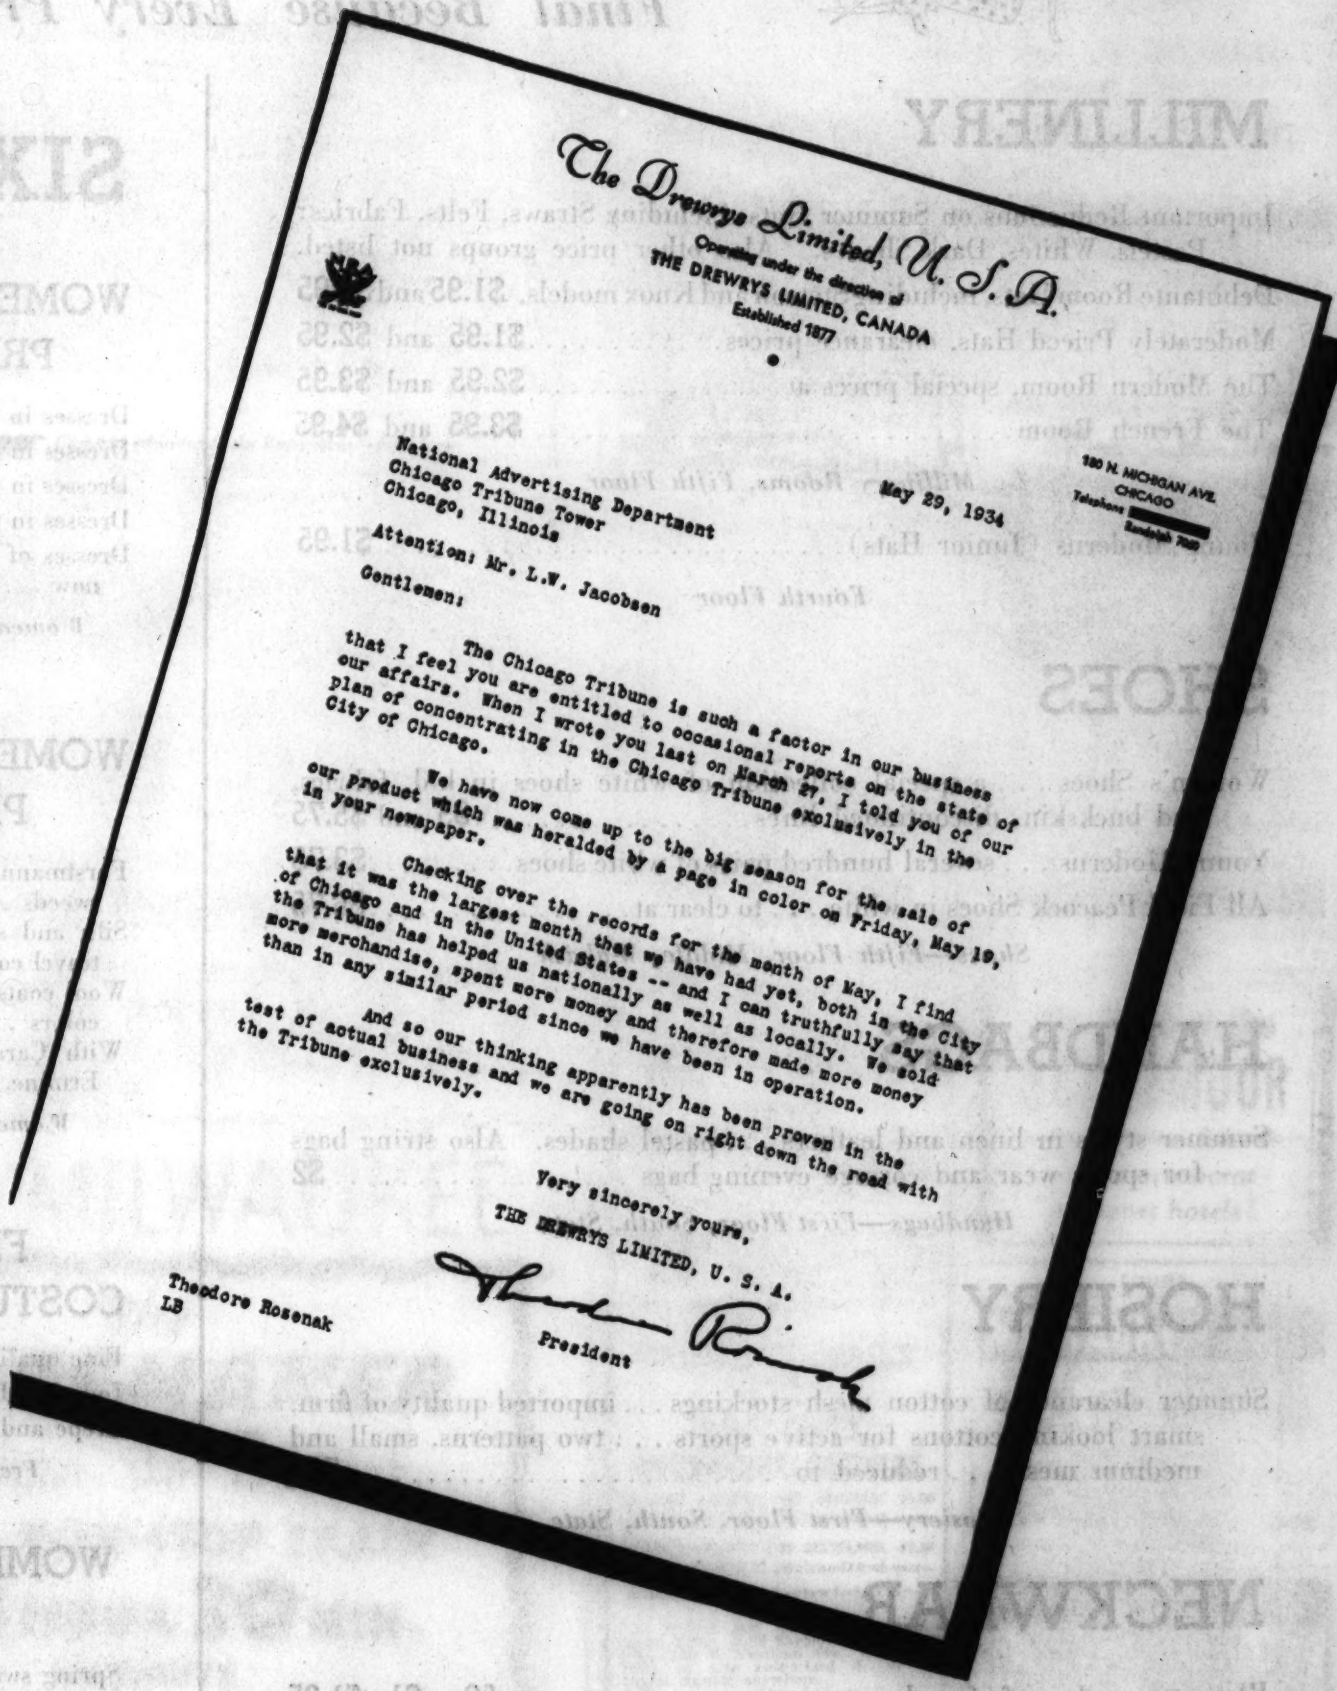

The Coverage and Sales Influence All Advertisers Want

The reason for Drewrys' success is not hard to find. They had a good product. They marketed it according to sound business principles. And they spent their advertising dollars in the dominant newspaper of each territory they sought to dominate. As a result, in addition to their consumer acceptance they have secured most satisfactory distribution and dealer good will in each market which they have entered.

To Drewrys the Chicago Tribune gave the same kind of sales assistance which it gives to all merchants and manufacturers. It is the foremost newspaper of the great territory it serves. It has the market coverage and the influence which advertisers want and need in order to do a thorough advertising job at low cost.

JACKSONVILLE STORM DAMAGE NEARLY A MILLION

Three Are Seriously Hurt; Houses Wrecked.

Jacksonville, Ill., July 11.—(Special.)—Residents of this city viewed today the damage done last night by a tornado, hailstorm, and cloudburst. About 10 persons were hurt, three of them seriously, and approximately $750,000 damage was done to property. The storm, said to be the worst Jacksonville ever has experienced in its 109 years, lasted 40 minutes with wind, rain, and hail.

Light and Power Cut Off.

The first thrust of the wind cut off light and power to such an extent that today only a limited telephone and telephone service had been restored.

Houses were unroofed, garages and other small frame buildings blown apart. An automobile, blown across a street, landed on the steps of the Central Christian church.

Before residents had time to close their windows rain had covered many roofs with two inches of water. The town broke over the banks.

Gov. Horner arrived here today to inspect the storm-stricken area, which extends from Jacksonville to Havana, though most of the damage was done here. The governor was accompanied by state police.

Storm Strikes Circles.

Edward Perry of Inlay City, Mich., was the most seriously hurt. He suffered what the doctors believe to be skull fracture, as well as a broken shoulder and a leg injury. He is an employee of the Sam B. Dill store, starting Tom Mix, film horseman. The circus completed its night performance as the storm broke.

Damage to the circus was called $35,000. Tents and stands of the Hanson Carnival company, also showing here, were blown flat.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton were injured when a tree fell on their automobile. She was taken into the home of a nearby resident. Her condition is considered serious.

It was believed that approximately $100,000 damage had been done to two blocks in the South Church street section.

WORKERS ARE SUPPLIED.

Illinois Emergency Relief commission authorities in Chicago have ordered all available men on work relief in Morgan county placed at the disposal of authorities in Jacksonville. About 400 men can be made available at once for rehabilitation work, it was said. Miss Mary A. Humphrey, district representative of the commission, also was ordered to Jacksonville.

DR. C. W. PIPER, LIFE RESIDENT OF CITY, DEAD

Dr. Charles W. Piper, a lifelong resident of Chicago and a general practitioner on the south side for more than 30 years, died yesterday in his home at 4743 South Union avenue after a four months' illness.

Born here in 1868, Dr. Piper was educated in the public schools, the University of Illinois and Northwestern university, where he was graduated from the medical school. He entered practice in 1891 and was active up to the time of his illness. He was a member of the Chicago Medical society and the Illinois State Medical society; a fellow of the American Medical association and a member of the Medical temple Shrine.

Dr. Piper is survived by his widow, Edith; a daughter, Mary Alice; and a son, Dr. Charles H. Piper. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock at the Emerald Avenue Presbyterian church, 67th street and Emerald avenue. Burial will be in Mount Hope cemetery.

Several famous conductors are to be brought to Chicago to direct the Chicago Symphony orchestra in its broadcasts and open air concerts from the Swift shell at the Fair within the next few weeks. Among these are Sir Hamilton Harty, conductor of the London Symphony orchestra, who is now on his way to America from New Zealand, where he has been appearing. Sir Hamilton will take the baton on Aug. 12.

William Van Meter, conductor of the Portland (Ore.) Symphony, former chief of the Minneapolis Symphony, will be here from July 22 to 28, and Henry Hadley, composer and associate conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, will appear Aug. 5 to 11.

Two young Chicago conductors, Henry Weber, formerly associated with the Civic opera, and Carl Bricker, director of music at the University of Chicago, will assist Erio DeLamarter, who is in charge of the symphony, for the week of July 16. Dr. Frederick Slovic, director of the orchestra will return from Europe to direct the orchestra during its last week at the Fair, beginning Sept. 2.

The symphony concerts are heard on Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday nights on WGN. NBC stations outlet other programs throughout the week.

There may be some lively competition in the store for the sponsors of the Beauty Box theater, starring Gladys Swarthout in operettas. A rival soap concern is reported to be looking with favor on an agency plan of presenting a one hour original musical comedy each week over NBC. The ambitious plans call for original music and lyrics to be written by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, who have been turning out Broadway revivals for several seasons. Courtney Riley Cooper, who is reported to be looking with favor on an agency plan of presenting a one hour original musical comedy each week over NBC. The ambitious plans call for original music and lyrics to be written by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, who have been turning out Broadway revivals for several seasons.

Ben Bernie will go off the air after his broadcast on Aug. 17 until Sept. 18. This will be the old maestro's first radio vacation of more than a week in five years. Bernie's contract has been taken up and he will report to Hollywood night in October to make "One Night Stand."

Barry Devine, tenor featured on the air with Eddie Cantor, will be heard beginning tonight with Ted Weems' orchestra from the Palmer house. Devine is appearing with the floor show. . . . Pierre Andre, W-G-N announcer, left on his vacation yesterday. Pierre picked up his wife and sister in Waukegan, where they were recuperating from auto accident injuries, and went on to Minneapolis.

Harriet Crane, the girl with the treacherous voice, heard over local stations a season ago, is on the air with Glenn Lee's orchestra over KOA, Denver.

A dispatch from Melvin, Ill., sets forth that farmers are installing radios on their tractor-tractors. They listen to the ball game broadcasts as they cultivate their corn.

Uncle Quin Ryan and his Scala wags will lead the parade in the Children's day festivities at the Lagoon theater of the Fair at 2 o'clock today.

JOSEPH B. CARD, FIRST DIVISION WAR HERO, DIES

Joseph B. Card, president of the Indiana Wood Preserving company of Terre Haute and Chicago, died yesterday morning at his home, 235 Central avenue, Highland Park. Mr. Card, who was 69 years old, contracted pneumonia. A captain in the First Division, he was cited for bravery three times during the world war. He was a member of the Chicago Athletic association and the Exmoor Country club. Surviving are the widow, Katherine, and five children. Funeral services will be held Saturday at Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park. Burial will be in Oak Woods cemetery.

CIRCUS OFFICIAL, KIN OF BAILEY, IS TAKEN BY DEATH

New York, July 11.—(P)—Charles Hutchinson, 65, treasurer of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus, died yesterday after a three months' illness. Hutchinson, whose home was in Sarasota, Fla., had been identified with the circus business for many years and was a nephew of the late James A. Bailey, one of the founders of the Barnum & Bailey circus. Hutchinson was treasurer of the Ringling-Barnum & Bailey circus he traveled with the show during the circus season and spent his winters in Sarasota.

He was born in Racine, Ind., and is survived by his wife, Mrs. Julia Patterson Hutchinson, three sons, Charles M., Harry B., and Fred B. Hutchinson, all of New York, and one daughter, Miss Anna Hutchinson. He died at the home of Charles in Long Island City. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon with burial in Woodlawn cemetery, New York.

BANDITS TERRIFY FOUR IN RAID ON FINANCE OFFICES

Three bandits terrorized four persons in the branch offices of the Personal Finance company, 3822 Milwaukee avenue, yesterday, and after forcing their victims to lie on the floor escaped with $1,178.

Charles K. Good, 4238 North Troy street, manager of the office, and Miss Shirley Vance, cashier, were alone when the robbers entered. After taking $555 from the cash drawer, the bandits confronted John Naking, assistant manager, as he entered and took $600 from him. A customer, Arthur Kulosa, 7123 Bryn Mawr avenue, was robbed of $25 a few minutes later.

Mrs. Ellen McDonald, 48 Years a Chicagoan, Dies

Mrs. Ellen McDonald, 4826 Lakewood avenue, died yesterday morning at her home after a short illness. She was 70 years old and had lived in Chicago since her marriage 43 years ago to Ellis McDonald, who was a director and departmental manager of the John W. Farrell company. Surviving are Mr. McDonald and three children, James E., Edgar J., and Mary G. McDonald. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at St. Ita's Catholic church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

PRINCE HENRY OF HOLLAND GIVEN WHITE FUNERAL

Throngs in Gay Clothes Watch Cortege.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

THE HAGUE, July 11.—Prince Henry of the Netherlands, consort of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, who all his life sought to spread gaiety wherever he went, had his last wish fulfilled today. He wanted an ostentatious black, no widow's weeds, and no tears at his funeral, but bright colors and festivity.

Queen Wilhelmina and her daughter, Princess Juliana, shed no tears and paid their last homage to their husband and father dressed in white from head to foot. Even the queen's mourning veil was white.

Three thousand royal grenadiers, who had been fighting rioters in Amsterdam, returned to The Hague today for the age old privilege of being the guard of honor at all important functions of the house of Orange.

Thousands lined the streets from The Hague to Delft, all in gay summer clothes to fulfill Henry's last wish. The heat was severe and the cortege, to which the prince devoted much of his life, exerted that more than 1,000 were prostrated.

The white and silver coffin covered with the Dutch colors and flowers of the queen and princess was carried in a silver and white horse drawn by eight white and black horses blanketed with white to the old chapel at Delft, where the prince was laid to rest beside Queen Mother Emma, who died only a few weeks ago. Gals coaches in white and silver bearing members of the diplomatic corps followed.

The queen and Princess Juliana awaited the procession in the chapel bright with mauve drapings and masses of flowers.

Ex-Kaiser Sends Son.

Since Henry was originally the duke of Mecklenburg, German nobility was prominent among the mourners. The prince was represented by his son, Prince Oscar, and the ex-king of Wuerttemberg by the prince of Wied. The Grand Duke Oldenburg and numerous other members of the Mecklenburg family were present. King George of England sent the Earl of Athlone, Duke of Connaught, and the Duke of Kent, all in the name of the king of the Belgians.

EDNA WHISTLER,
FORMER STAGE
BEAUTY, IS DEAD

New York, July 11.—(Special.)—Edna Whistler, popular musical comedy and vaudeville star of some years ago, died today from acute appendicitis in her furnished room on East 47th street.

The Louisville, Ky., choir girl who rose to Broadway stardom was last seen in small parts, but at the zenith of her success she was a popular favorite throughout the country.

The girl, who attracted the attention of Fred Stone with her singing as a soloist in Louisville, declined his offer of a place in "any of my shows," began her stage career in New York on a bet—literally.

Dining with a friend here, she mentioned the musical comedy actor's offer and was jeered. The result was a $50 bet that she could get a job on the stage. Her singing before a book agent won her an immediate try-out in Boston, which was followed by an engagement for twenty weeks in vaudeville. She was featured with such stars as Harry Lauder, Annette Kellermann, and Jefferson De Angelis.

With the latter two she appeared in "The Three Star Connection." She made her bow in the "big time" as Julian Eltinge's double in "The Crinolene Girl." Other successes followed and Edna Wynne engaged her as his prima donna in "Carnival." A contract with George M. Cohan followed.

After her marriage to a Broadway producer, she retired from the stage and devoted her time to her family. She was 47 years old.

Funeral services for Miss Emma Louise Davies, veteran Chicago school teacher who died Monday following a heart attack in her home at 6444 Parry avenue, will be held this morning at 10:30 in a funeral chapel at 63d street and Harvard avenue. Miss Davies, who was 67 years old, taught the first and second grades for 47 years in various buildings of the Barnard school. She was a sister of the late Arthur Davies, artist. Burial will be at Oak Woods cemetery.

DR. C. J. HARLEY, Physician of Bronson, Mich., Is Dead

Coldwater, Mich., July 11.—(Special.)—Dr. C. J. Harley, 47, was found at his summer home at Matteson Lake today. He was graduate of Rush Medical college, Chicago, and practiced in Bronson, 12 miles west of here, since graduation. He was prominent in Masonic circles.

Todd Theater Festival Will Open Tonight

Dinner Parties to Precede Performance.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IF Chicago supports the Todd Theater festival, opening tonight, as enthusiastically as New Yorkers support the several country theater companies that spring up each summer within motoring distance of New York, tonight's pilgrimage to the old town of Woodstock will be the first of many similar ones that socialites will make during the next six weeks.

A favorite mode of entertainment in the east during the warm weather is to have a dinner party and then motor to one of the country playhouses, where stars who seldom leave Broadway in the winters augment the resident companies for special productions, and where many plays that later are enormous successes in New York have their premieres.

One of the smartest affairs we attended last summer during an eastern visit was an opening at the Westport Country playhouse in Connecticut, which is run by Lawrence Langner, one of the directors of the New York Theater guild. Many of the guild successes are tried out in the great barn-like theater at the edge of the town of Westport, and the audience, especially on opening nights, are as fashionable and interesting as any first nights during the season in town.

Hold Festival at Old Opera House.

Most of the summer theaters in the east are barns that have been turned into playhouses, but in Woodstock there is a "real old honest-to-god opera house" and it is in this that the festival company will perform. That classic thriller, "Tribby," will be the first production and Chicagoans will have a very special interest in it, for Tribby is to be portrayed by a Chicago socialite, Miss Louise Prussing, who has met with success on the stage in London and New York as well as here, and Sengall is to be played by young Orson Welles, the Chicago boy who was acclaimed at home and abroad and who is the only foreign artist ever to have been starred in the Irish Abbey. He is an alumnus of the Todd School for Boys, on the campus of which the festival company is in residence and where, around the swimming pool, there is to be a buffet supper tonight following the performance so that patrons may meet the company. Roger Hill, headmaster of the school, and Mrs. Hill will be the host and hostess at the supper.

Woodstock, which is fifty-one miles northwest of the Chicago loop, is easily accessible from the city, the

John Gilbert Dodges Shark in Ocean Dip

Saved by Cries of Cast on Ship Location.

BY GEORGE SHAFER.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Hollywood, Cal., July 11.—[Special.]—Maybe there are no man eating sharks off southern California as the mariners and fishermen in this section avow, but John Gilbert will not be the man to put the belief to the extreme test.

Gilbert was at sea with the Columbia company filming "Captain Hates the Sea" aboard the chartered steamer Ruth Alexander when the beating sun prompted him to don his blue trunks, climb down the ship's ladder as it lay still and jump into the ocean for a refreshing swim.

Florence Rice, Leon Errol, Wynne Gibson, Fred Keating, and others watched John emulate a dolphin until a black shape came driving through the water toward him. Those aboard yelled "shark," and Bill Thompson, sound man and a crack marksman, pulled his revolver and pumped bullets at the dark shape while John splashed to the ship's ladder and hauled himself up in a hurry. Thompson avers he hit the shark but never bothered it. Anyway, Gilbert isn't taking any more baths in the middle of Catalina channel.

Victor McLaglen, who gets seasick; Walter Catlett, Lewis Milestone, the director, and 100 others are aboard the movie steamer and have been aboard it for ten days. What's more, although they profess to be dying of ennu, they are going to stay aboard another week until all the sea shots are completed.

Florence Rice probably does the least complaining. She gets a shipment of chocolate bars by speedboat every day, while the others rely on the messenger boat to bring daily newspapers, letters, refreshments, clothes, goggles and other items from the shore.

Mrs. Will Rogers is going only as far as Japan with her husband and two sons, and will turn back to this country in order to spend the latter part of the summer with daughter Mary, now rounding out her first year of stage dramatic experience at a stock player in a little theater in Maine.

Will Rogers says that one country he is determined to visit and spend money in is Finland; he wants to see press admiration to and get acquainted with the people who don't weal on their debts. . . . When Rogers gets back to this country his studio plans to use him, Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter, three of the four biggest stars (the fourth is Shirley Temple) in one cast, "One More Spring."

Radio-RKO studio has called off all lawsuits, ultimatums, and hints of contract breaches with Joel McCrea, and is starting him with Miriam Hopkins Monday in "The Richest Girl in the World." The Radio studio which holds McCrea's contract announced him as suspended from the salary list two weeks ago when Joel declined to carry out an arrangement between studio which would feature him in a story at Universal studio.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 11.—[Special.]—The Argentine ambassador and Mme. de Eapil are prolonging their stay at Hot Springs, Va., to the big golf tournament to be held there late this week. Others in the tournament will be the former assistant secretary of the navy for aviation, David S. Ingalls of Cleveland, and Miss Jacqueline Story of Washington, niece of the late Countess de Buisseret of Belgium.

Former American Ambassador to Argentina and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss entertained at an al fresco tea this afternoon at The Oaks, their Georgetown estate. Their guests were mainly officials of the state department and diplomatic corps.

The retiring third secretary of the American legation in Panama and Mrs. Sheldon Mills are spending this week in Washington and expect to leave Saturday for Evanston, Ill. They will sail Aug. 11 for Europe. Mr. Mills to take up his duties in the legation in Bucharest, Rumania.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

One of the secrets of cool suavity on a too hot day or evening: The lavish use of a good and fragrant cologne!

No one knows better than we do that women periodically go a little bit gaga over one thing and another: waves of popularity for every type of cosmetic break over our heads with a roar and then recede as regularly as clockwork. But the newest wave has plenty of sense to it. Women are going mad over colognes, and if there ever was a sane summer madness this is it.

We've been snooping assiduously lately and we find that the secret of that aura of crispness that lurks about our smartest women these muggy days is the clever use of a good cologne. Every well groomed woman is using it lavishly before, during, after, and in between the dips in the tub. It's been around for ages, cologne has, but it's having a new vogue.

Once you get quality—and there are several of excellent merit—the next point in finding a perfectly slick cologne is determining the scent that best suits you.

Today we'd like to call your attention to one cologne in particular, a very fine one that is available in half a dozen scents and that is used as a daytime fragrance. There's a perfume for every taste. One is a gay floral blend, light and subtle enough to be used in perfect slathers by the sort of women who go in for fragile effects; another is an oriental bouquet that just fringes—but fortunately just misses—the exotic. That would be a little hard to take in mid-July. There are others from which to choose; our own pet is frankly a woody one, with much suggestion of cool fern.

These colognes are inexpensive enough to use pretty freely. A favorite trick is to toss some into the bath water, then to use some more as a body lotion. Such a bath, by the way, is an elegant pickup during or after a too hot and bothered day. Spraying it on the hair isn't a bad idea, either, and rubbing it on the hands after each scrubbing makes you feel flatteringly orchidaceous.

Rare Brocade from Russia

Imperial Collection Placed on Exhibition.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The imperial Russian collection of royal treasures has been unpacked to tempt your stray dollars away from you. A collection of truly feminine trifles made out of authentic altar brocades from the royal chapel, that will be hard to pass by.

Bags of shimmering silver brocade lined with blood red taffeta are imprinted with the glamorous silver Russian double eagle. Stunning gold and scarlet brocades, or silver combined with pale sapphire blue, fashion some of the most fascinating vanities that any one could ever crave.

And you will find, new this year, clever little covers of the same beautiful brocades made to hold a clip of matches, a tiny bit of gadget to slip in a matching evening bag of the same patterned brocade.

Picture frames also are covered in decorative brocades—stunning, effective affairs for very special photographs. Cigarette humidors, candy boxes, jewel cases, and just boxes, all are covered with authentic eighteenth century royal Russian brocades. A find for careful gift collectors! Rare, uncopyable bibelots of untarnishable brocades in silver, gold, or either, combined with hauntingly beautiful colors.

The secret process that prevents these lovely fabrics from tarnishing has never been found. They will shimmer and gleam and intrigue the imagination just as perfectly a hundred years from now as they do today.

The bags are irresistible, from the simple oblong beauties to the pouches and others of unusual shapes. Frosty silver white brocade makes a beautiful cigarette case that holds an entire full package as you buy it from your tobacconist. Very flat vanity cases that hold a mirror, a key, change, and a hanky are other good buys.

If you want a real Russian head-dress, try the tiaras made of these colorful brocades—real Kakoshniks, with the peak. Then, too, the cuffs of imperial gold and green brocade would make a dull black crepe dress a joy forever.

But the thing to do is to visit the collection yourself. You really have to see these amazing treasures to believe the glamor and romance that are completely theirs.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

MRS. CORNELIUS CRANE, who, with her creamy skin and faintly Latin beauty, and her extreme chic in dressing, is decorating the Chicago scene for a few weeks while she and Mr. Crane are in town, tells an amusing story of her first ride on a New York bus.

The Cranes live in New York, when they are not in Panama, or Honolulu, or some other spot, and one day Mrs. Crane decided to take a bus ride. She climbed to the top deck and found it deserted. At the next stop, however, two rough looking men boarded the bus and came to the upper deck. Suddenly Mrs. Crane's blood was frozen by a fragment of conversation she overheard behind her.

"He killed 'em," one of the two men said to his companion. "He killed 'em right there in the garden."

"The thing to do is to dig 'em up," answered the other.

Mrs. Crane held her pocketbook tighter and sat motionless, horrified.

"That always happens if you water 'em in the sun," commented the first man.

At this surprising statement Mrs. Crane stole a look behind her. And for the first time she observed that one of the stalwarts was carrying a wooden box across his knees, and the box was filled with geranium plants. The two men obviously were gardeners, not murderers, and Mrs. Crane relaxed.

A YOUNG woman who has been ill for months, and who may have to stay in bed for many more, wrote her sister, and in telling about her sleeping porch surroundings, mentioned the new bird house hanging by the window. She had rented the bird house immediately, she wrote facetiously, and a happy family of wrens was installed.

"What did you rent it for?" inquired the sister in her answering letter.

"For a song," replied the invalid with accuracy.

WHEN a floor show can put on a contortionist act that is not revolting it's news, and we hasten with the tidings there is such an act at the new French Casino, formerly the old Rainbo gardens, although you'd never guess it from the decor. It is one of the most amusing numbers in a high-cerns the activities of two French porters who find a queer figure inside a trunk that finally unfolds itself, and in the finale, having been hung up by the back of the coat on a stick, does a dance, to end, limp and hanging arms and feet, a man-on-a-stick. It's really high art, that dance, and you ought to see it.

IN the morning mail. "Did you ever try to hire a nursemaid? I never did until recently. Despite the seriousness of it, it turned out humorously, in one instance. I was asked who did the cooking in the household? Also, who did the dishes? Were the baby's three-cornered trousers sent to the laundry? Would a nurse actually have to share a nursery with the baby? Then I was informed that since she was having some dentistry work done she'd need two afternoons a week off until this was completed. AND, did I mind if she read during the afternoon and leisure time, and she dearly loved reading current literature, and since my husband was in the book business it would be lovely! "So, everything being suitable to her, I answered as politely as I could, saying, 'Madam, I am looking for a nursemaid, not a house guest.' A. J. T."

STORY BY

Cara Follette, only daughter of a Canadian business man, anticipates becoming her father's partner. While traveling in Europe she meets Jerry Flint, a poor young singer. She takes him to Toronto, where she can get him auditions impossible for him to gain abroad. Benjamin Follette and his wife, Anna, had grown apart in the years he was becoming successful. Now Follette is about to lose his business to his rival, Herman Harmer. Harmer recently returned from Europe, where he saw and fell in love with Cara. He tells Follette, "What a beautiful girl! Her father tells her of his failure and urges her to meet Harmer. It would mean much to him and he likes Harmer. Cara thinks she loves Jerry. She decides to go northwest to Mulligan's camp for a month to think it over. Meanwhile no one is to get an inkling of her business troubles. Jerry follows and joins her on the way. Harmer hears of Cara's plans from her father. He flies to Mulligan's about her and hires the plane from Des Mulligan for a month and the use of his name. He meets Cara and Jerry at Mulligan's. After three days Jerry is fed up with camp life. He tricks Cara into leaving with him. They become lost in the wilds. Jerry's true character is revealed to Cara when she confesses her father's failure. Harmer comes to their rescue. He sends Jerry on his way back to Toronto. Harmer, as Mulligan, wins Cara's love. Cara is anxious to overtake Jerry for fear of harm to Follette by the wedding that she has told him. Harmer starts on the return trip with her. Cara tells him she is going to marry for money.

INSTALLMENT XLVI
A TRANSFORMED LOVER.

"You must give your father Dan Mulligan's compliments, Miss Follette, if you will be so good."
"He—he'll like it. He thinks so—so highly of you."
Then they drove in silence to the station.
She had the despairing sense of immense cruelty and injustice, in which, infuriatingly, he concurred. He questioned her decisions no more. Relinquished her to the rival? He left upon her shoulders the weight of this heavy lifelong decision? Why could he not beat down her defenses and make her answer for her. She looked at his clean cut and yet somehow massive profile. If he had led Jerry Flint, she could not lead this man.
He abandoned her?
Or was it that he expected from her the same strength that was in him, so that she must solve her own life?
She felt childish and lost. She wanted to cry out: "Don't let me go."
The taxi cab drew up.
He seemed for a moment also to signal a porter, which was because, just for a flash of time, he forgot his rôle. But then remembering, he picked up her grip, and walked beside her towards the train. "I'll get you some picture books," he said, smiling, and brought her illustrated papers. As he was buying them, one or two station officials started, looked at him, and drew, as it were, to attention, but she did not notice anything, so engrossed was she in the now stupendous thought of parting. It would be a very quiet parting and all the more shattering.
"This is your compartment, I think," he said. The train conductor glanced at him, smiled, touched his cap smartly. Harmer gave him a cautious look. Again she did not notice. The stationmaster, as if he had heard news, hurried along. Harmer stepped aside to speak to him, and his attention ceased. All Cara thought then was that Danny Mulligan's fineness, wherever men knew him, was well and truly recognized. She got into her compartment and stood at the window, leaning out to where he stood, bare-headed, hat in hand, below her.

"The lady is not traveling."

"My love to Jesse," she called down, her face white.
"Jesse'll be delighted."
"And to Buck and Bill."
He smiled assent. "They're luckier than I am."
She faltered:
"Otis will be back from Coppertown by now."
"Sure."
The stupid trivialities of such good-bys! She wished the train would start. Not till they pulled out of Edmonton dare she relax her tension, draw a long breath, surrender her self-discipline.
He was speaking: "You've promised to remember me to your father. Say I'd like to see him out at the camp this fall. It will be grand in October."
"I'll tell him."
"Tell him how you missed getting a grizzly, too."
"Yes... Yes. Surely the train's late?"
"No. Two minutes more exactly. She'll be on time."
There seemed to her to be no one else on the long platform but the two of them. Busting of laden porters, of hurrying passengers, of a score of other good-bys up and down the train, found her oblivious of all. She could only look down into the man's face below her.
"One minute," he said as it encouragingly.
His eyes met full. She gasped and drew that long breath which would break up her calm. Her head disappeared from the window. She was running, running along the corridor, pushing incoming people aside, slipping between them, and then she was at the door, still open. He, too, had dashed along and now met her. She jumped into his arms.
"The lady's not traveling," said Harmer laconically, to the gesticulating questioning conductor. And then the train began slowly to draw out.
His arm still about her, they both watched it out of the station.
"Well?" he asked.
"I'm marrying you, Danny," she said.
"Sure."
Back to the hotel.
"Give us a suite," he said to the reception clerk. They went up to it.
"Listen, Cara," he said, "we marry today?"
"And back to the camp."
"Very well. Back to the camp?"
She stood in the middle of the big impersonal sitting room and tears rained over her cheeks while her eyes shone and her lips laughed. He caught her close to him and kissed her. "There's no going back."
"No going back."
"Not a regret, Dan."
"No regrets for all you lose?"
"Then listen, my darling. I'm going out right now to arrange everything. You wait here, and I'll come and fetch you."
"To be married to you!"
A transformed lover looked at her. There was no more cynicism in him, only wonder and delight. They clung and kissed, and it was she who whispered: "O, do hurry! Do hurry!"
"I'll hurry!"
Just at the door he heard her gasp, "Dan," and he turned. She was still standing where he had left her in the middle of the floor, looking small and young and resolute and magnificent. "There's just one thing I'd better do at once."
"Do it then, sweetheart."
She moved to the writing bureau, wrote out a telegraph message with a steady hand. "Send it off now for me, Danny."
"Do I read it?"
"Of course."
He read: "Forgive me, father. I am marrying Mulligan, the hunter, today. My love to you, Cara."
"Little sweetheart," he said softly, and went out.
Downstairs at the desk he wrote his own telegrams, three of them, all worded the same, but separately addressed to three newspaper offices: "Miss Cara Follette of Toronto married Herman Harmer of Montreal at Edmonton this afternoon." These telegrams were sent instantly, but it was after the wedding that he sent Cara's, although she did not know that.
Benjamin was still in his office when Cara's telegram was brought to him, and he opened it in his secretary's presence, read it, said:
"No answer," and "That's all today, thank you, you might as well go. I'll be here late."
After the others had gone and the big offices were empty save for himself and the janitor downstairs, he stayed on before his desk, thinking. No more work that mattered to be done, everything over, Follette's was down. And he was not angry, nor surprised, nor very much afraid—except for Anna. For this totally unprecedented thing that Cara had done showed him clearly that on her account he need suffer no more. She had chosen hardship and poverty in preference to Follette. She had shown that these things did not dismay her. It took some while for a third man to reason this out, but in the space of perhaps an hour or so Benjamin saw that the beloved daughter at least had fashioned her own future.

It Isn't Too Late to Thin Down the Legs

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It isn't too late to get the legs trimmed down for beach wear. It's never too late to begin improving what needs to be improved. A good thing about the bathing suit period is that it acquaints a lot of women with the fact that their legs are bulging in spots if not from knee to toe, there is surplus weight a-pling.

But that's neither here nor there. What you want to know is how to own a slim, trim leg and ankle. Let me give you a couple of exercises that won't make your legs slimmer overnight, but that will give you more graceful underpinnings before long if you practice them and keep on practicing them. The latter admonition is more important than the first, really. I find that women, in connection with this particular phase of silhouette remodeling, burn up all their enthusiasm in the first few days. They don't see an immediate improvement and give up.

Ready? No. 1. Hands on hips. First hop on the right leg, then on the left. Then on both. Then hop to a side straddle and return.
No. 2. Take the position of attention. Raise right leg extended to the front. Now circle that leg to the rear, moving arms to horizontal position with shoulders, palms up. Recover position and do the same with the other leg. The swing around with leg from front to back forces a bend of the other knee and forward plunge of the upper body so that other parts, such as waist and hips, are benefited in the same motions.
No. 3. Lie on the back, arms supporting hips. Raise legs, and do the bicycle race as if you were bent on getting somewhere and in a hurry. If you have a bicycle, or can get one, and the streets upon which to ride, doing the bicycle exercise with the real article is that much better, of course. A great many more women are taking to bicycle riding than last year or the year before. With those attractive bicycle shorts I don't see why more women aren't tempted into this excellent leg and hip reducing work.

Four Serious Songs by Brahms Presented by Theodore Harrison

Theodore Harrison, baritone, appearing in joint recital with Edward Collins, pianist, at Kimball hall yesterday afternoon, made his contribution to the program a work that is more revered and less often heard than almost any other number in the entire song literature. It is the Brahms set whose translated name is "Four Serious Songs."
They are Brahms at his more characteristic, most earnest and learned, most popular. Being much in the same mood of profundity, they are not entirely grateful as concert songs, yet, because of their unflinching reverence for their scriptural texts, a musician singer can do much with them. Mr. Harrison made a deep impression on his audience, and at the end was induced to sing another song, again of sober mood, "The Bitterness of Love," by Dumm.

Mr. Collins took hold of his audience from the start, no less by his competent technical amplitude than by the breadth of his interpretations.

Todd Theater Festival Will Open Tonight

Dinner Parties to Precede Performance.

Grand Haven, Mich.; Richard T. Fox and the Ford R. Carters. A de luxe trailer will take one party to Chicago on Tuesday night and dinner will be served en route.

Party Tonight at Onwentsia.

The gayest place in Lake Forest tonight will be the dance at the Onwentsia where all the young people will turn up for a whirl or two after dinner—if not for dinner. Mrs. Frederick G. Wacker is giving a dinner at home for Miss Emily Lecher of Long Island, N. Y., who is visiting the Wackers' debutante daughter, Miss Helen Wacker, and Miss May Stillwell, the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, who continues to be one of the most frequent visitors in Chicago. Later she will take the party to the Onwentsia.

Mrs. Mason Phelps is giving a party at the Onwentsia for Miss Hope Bacon, daughter of Mrs. Paul E. Gardner of the Corners, Westbury, Long Island, N. Y., who is visiting the Stanley Keiths and their daughters, Miss Patsy and Miss Betty Keith. The guests at the cocktail and dinner party that Miss Jean Schwegler and Miss Mary Reed will give for Miss Margaret McEwen and John B. Morse will increase the crowd at the Onwentsia later, too.

Mark another date on your engagement pads for next winter, debutantes, for Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 26, has been reserved by Mr. and Mrs. Foster Hannaford of Winnetka, on which to give a tea dance to present to society their daughter, Taylor.

The party will be at the Indian Hill Country club and is certain to be one of the nicest of the holiday season. Miss Hannaford and her mother are spending the summer at their place on White Bear lake in Minnesota, where they are joined for week-ends by Mr. Hannaford and the sons of the family.

Luncheon Party at Arlington.

Mrs. Laurence H. Armour was hostess to an attractive luncheon party yesterday at the Post and Federal at Arlington at which the special guest was Mrs. Dodge Sloane of New York, owner of Cavalade, winner of the Kentucky Derby and one of the 3 year olds that will race in the Classic for the richest stake of the season at Arlington on Saturday.

Mrs. Armour's other guests were Mrs. Charles F. Glor, patriotic in red, white and blue; Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, and Mrs. Austin H. Niblack.

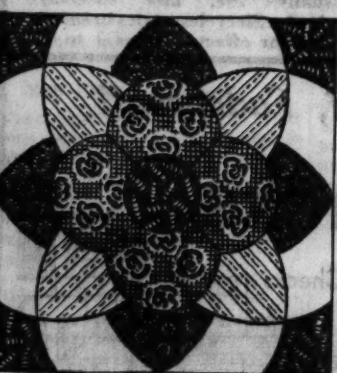

Mr. and Mrs. Otto W. Lehmann are having their annual Classic party at their Lake Villa home Saturday night. They have invited about fifty people for a buffet supper.

Exhibition of Lafayette Relics.

The Alliance Française is sending out word to its members to send in any mementos of Lafayette which might be in their possession, as loans to the forthcoming exhibition at the Chicago Historical society. Mrs. Charles S. Dewey has already sent a plate used by the famous revolutionary hero, and the Chamberlain collection, the Saunders, and Gardner collections of New York are also to be placed on display. Swords, manuscripts, epaulettes, and other treasures comprise many of the collections to be opened for exhibition July 31.

The idea of a Lafayette exhibition developed from the Lafayette centenary in France when many Americans loaned their relics to the French exhibit. In return France has sent over some very important pieces for the various American exhibits. The junior board of the Home for Convalescent Women and Children has chosen to hold its annual fall benefit on either Nov. 2 or 3. The party will be a dinner-dance, but the committee in charge, headed by Mrs. Edwin Ford and Mrs. Carl Leigh as co-chairmen, has not decided definitely where the benefit will take place.

Many Request the Pattern for 'Full Blown Rose'

Full Blown Rose.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This is a pattern for which I have had numerous requests. It is a dainty quilt block, charmingly old fashioned when made entirely of print materials and delicately lovely when appliqued in solid colors. "Full Blown Rose" dates back to 1853, and the original coverlet was composed entirely of gay figured material in combinations of reds and blues. Today color arrangements are almost unlimited in number.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

SLAM TRIES, OVER ONE NO-TRUMP, WITH LONG SUITS.

When the responding hand has a six card suit, he is handing the declarer a powerful weapon for no-trump play. The repeated discard which the opponents will have to make must inevitably prove embarrassing and conducive to error, and may well produce an inescapable squeeze.

However, there is one type of protective holding which one cannot expect to destroy by squeeze play, and that is aces. It is therefore essential that the bidding be handled with suits of six or more cards just as carefully as in the situations discussed up to this point for five card suits in so far as concerns the locations of aces. A jump suit take-out must positively announce an ace; if two aces are against you drop all ideas of slam unless you have a void suit. By rebidding the same suit beyond three no-trumps you say plainly that it is at least more than five cards. The ace situation is, as you know, cleared up immediately. If you keep rebidding the suit, after an initial jump take-out, your partner should understand that you are showing additional length but not additional strength.

Only by a cue bid at least one rebid should you resume slam developments when neither of you has shown an extra ace.

When the Prospect Changes.

It is only when you ascertain that there are no aces out against you that the length of your suit may inspire hopes that a five card suit will not justify. Now you have the early control and can bring the squeeze to bear on obstacles that it is capable of destroying—namely, queens and even kings. Two and a half tricks in the hand will provide slam material when you furnish a six card suit to work with. As soon as you set the O. K. on aces, no signing off is required. The exception is when your high cards are entirely confined to two suits. In that case you should have a queen or a jack-ten elsewhere, in addition to your two and one-half primary tricks to give that suit a play of some kind, if only on a lead of it by an opponent.

Suit Length Gobbles Up Low Honors.

Your six card suit is good enough if headed by ace-jack because, even if your partner holds only the king or the queen, but lacks the ten, he will presumably have a finesse to lose no tricks in the suit. Unless the holding of the enemy is 4-0, the ten will drop and be ineffective. If you had only a five card suit, the ten might well upset you, even if a similar finesse were successful. Make no distinction between major and minor suits in slam invitations of this kind.

BET DISCOVERY IN CLASSIC, TIP OF EASTERNERS

Bewilder Backers of Cavalcade.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Eastern racegoers who are rolling into town by the hundreds for the running of the $35,000 added Classic at Arlington Park on Saturday afternoon are doing a great deal of loud talking about an improved horse named Discovery.

Should these easterners wager as they talk it is quite possible that those who fancy Cavalcade may get fairly good sized dividends on their investments should the Brookmeade colt put on another one of his famous runs down the stretch and finish in front. The confidence the easterners are showing in Discovery has somewhat bewildered the western racing people who have watched Cavalcade come up to his classic engagement in perfect condition. The westerners who have been paying so much attention to Cavalcade were particularly pleased with the way he worked his last mile and a quarter over a muddy track in 2:08.

They were of the opinion that this one training move was just about as good as a horse ever showed his trainer and his admiring public. They were ready to rush out and wager everything that he will gallop to victory in the Classic.

Arlington Official Changes.

Then along came this wave of sentiment for Discovery. One Arlington official who entertained a party at luncheon yesterday even told those within hearing distance that he thought Discovery would beat Cavalcade in the Classic.

George Tappen, a prominent eastern conditioner with the Wheatley stable and Belair stud, makes no secret of the fact he believes Discovery is a 20 pound better horse now than he was six weeks ago. He bases his conclusion on the way Discovery beat Dark Secret from the Wheatley stable in the Brooklyn handicap in New York on July 4.

Dark Secret is the horse that beat Equilips at equal weight in the Jockey club Gold Cup last autumn. In the Brooklyn Handicap of ten days ago Dark Secret was out in front of Discovery by a good wide margin in the early stages.

"Despite the lead Dark Secret enjoyed, it was easy to see that Discovery was running a really lack of him that he was going to be a hard horse to beat," Tappen said. "At every furlong he picked up ground and by the time the last turn was reached it was evident Discovery was much the better horse."

Peace Chance Likely Starter.

The role Peace Chance will play in the Classic remained a mystery yesterday. Trainer Pete Coyne indicated, however, that Peace Chance will be a starter when he said, "The colt is getting along better than I had expected."

Peace Chance did a lot of walking in his front yard paddock at Arlington yesterday. The knee which he had wrenched slightly was covered by an enormous bandage, so those who tried to size up his condition by a close-up view were not able to make many startling discoveries.

They found out, however, that Peace Chance, as he walked slowly around the rim of the open air paddock, did not favor the knee which was wrenched.

Quite a bit of early wagering has enveloped Classic week at Arlington. Most of it has been horse against horse—Cavalcade against Discovery—with the Cavalcade backers getting 4 to 5 for their money and the Discovery backers willing to take 5 to 5.

May Change Tactics.

In their earlier battles this year Discovery has attempted to go out in front and smother Cavalcade with his early speed. This attack has failed on six occasions. Trainer Stotter may change his tactics with Discovery in the Classic and rate him back with Cavalcade.

A lot of horsemen shook their heads about this style of attack. "How are you going to rate a horse with a stretch runner like Cavalcade?" they asked.

Last night the field shaped up this way:

Horse	Weight	Owner
Cavalcade	128	Brookmeade Stable
Good Goods	128	Brookmeade Stable
Redhead	128	Calumet Farm
Indian Chief	128	Norman W. Church
Shovell	128	Indian Stable
Thomsonville	128	Hai Price Headley
Howard	128	J. W. Farish
New Deal	128	J. W. Farish
Indian Chief	128	J. W. Farish
Discovery	128	A. G. Vanderbilt
Peace Chance	126	J. E. Widener

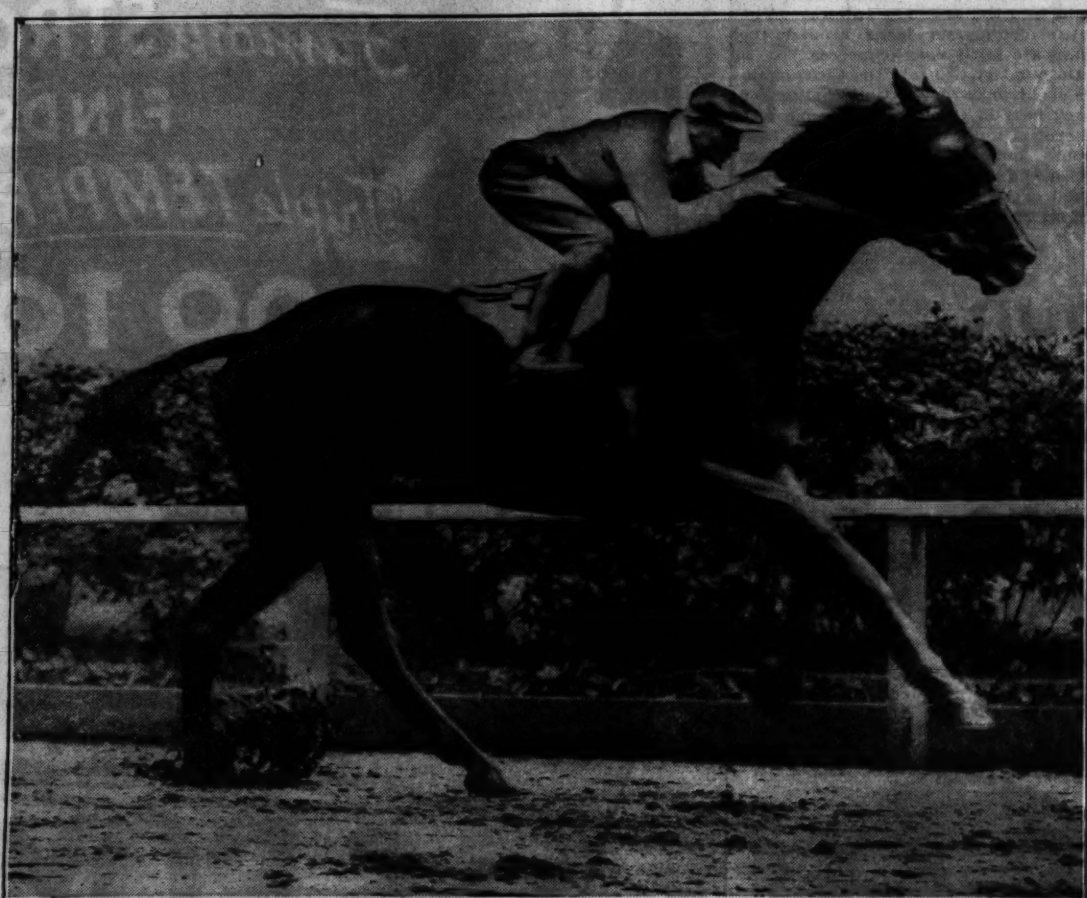

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt arrived from New York last night to see his Discovery run in the Classic.

Baer's Ex-Wife Asks New Name to Avoid Publicity

Los Angeles, Cal., July 11.—(AP)—Dorothy Dunbar, the divorced actress-wife of Max Baer, world's heavy weight boxing champion, petitioned "Superior" court today to have her name changed from Mrs. Max Baer to Mrs. Dorothy Wells. Her second husband was Tommy Wells. She said she desired to avoid the great amount of publicity now attached to the name of Max Baer. The petition was taken under advisement.

WHO'S AFRAID OF THE FLEET CAVALCADE?

Discovery takes a workout for the $35,000 added Classic to be run at Arlington Park Saturday afternoon. Easterners who arrived yesterday talked up Discovery's chances, apparently forgetting that Cavalcade, the Brookmeade stable's star, will be among the entries for the rich three year old stake. However, Discovery has run impressive races recently.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ARLINGTON CLASSIC—1931.

THE Arlington Classic of 1931 was another chapter in the rivalry between Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney's Twenty Grand and A. C. Bostwick's Mate. Mate had won the Preakness, while Twenty Grand had won the Kentucky Derby, with Mate third, setting the record of 2:01 4/5 for the 1 1/4 mile journey, which still stands.

Meantime Mate had won the American Derby, while Twenty Grand had taken the Belmont stakes, again setting a record for the 1 1/4 miles at 2:29 3/5, which still stands. The starting field included these two, Spanish Fly, winner of the Latonia Derby; Sun Meadow, which was second to Twenty Grand in the Belmont; Sir Ashley, Joe Bibb, and St. Brideaux.

Despite the Preakness bracket for Mate, Twenty Grand, coupled in the matinee with St. Brideaux, monopolized public fancy and closed at equivalent odds of 33 to 100. Mate was at the liberal price of $12.50 for a $2 ticket. Sun Meadow and Spanish Fly received some backing from sharpshooters.

Twenty Grand's time records in the Kentucky Derby and Belmont probably induced this favoritism. In the Classic, however, it was Mate which was to set a record still standing. The chestnut son of Prince Pal-Killashandra, with the experienced jockey, A. Robertson, aboard, started off like a sprinter in their first six furlongs in 1:12. Twenty Grand was outrun early. Perhaps Jockey Kuni-ringer thought the pacemaker would "come back" to him; perhaps Twenty Grand did not have his former foot that day.

When Twenty Grand finally did set sail for the leader in the last quarter mile, he closed fast, but the distance was too great with Mate keeping up his dizzy pace. So Mate at the end had a margin of four lengths over Spanish Fly, with Twenty Grand, closing fast, a nose behind, but five lengths before Sir Ashley. Sun Meadow, up in the early stages, Joe Bibb, and St. Brideaux finished as named.

The time was 2:02 2/5, a mark for

RAINBOW DRIFTS OVER FINISH LINE TO BEAT YANKEE

Newport, R. I., July 11.—(AP)—Rainbow won a questionable and wholly unofficial victory over Yankee today by crossing the finish line 11 seconds ahead of the Boston aspirant for America's cup defense honors. The time allowed for the 20 1/2 mile course had expired by about half an hour and the race committee announced the affair no contest. However, it must have given Harold S. Vanderbilt, Rainbow's skipper, some satisfaction, for it was the first time he has not been forced to travel in Yankee's wake.

Day Knocks Out Loayza in Eighth Round

BY WILFRED SMITH.

Davey Day, Chicago lightweight, who is a stablemate of Barney Ross, the lightweight and welterweight champion of the world, took another step forward last night at Sparta stadium when he knocked out Stanislaus Loayza, South American veteran, in the eighth round of a scheduled ten round bout. Day had matters his own way throughout.

Officials announced that the paid attendance was 1,458 and that receipts were $1,505.

Almost Out in First. The fight would have ended in the first round except for the bell. Day cracked Loayza on the jaw with a short overhand right and the South American landed on his back as the bell rang. More than ten seconds elapsed before he was taken to his corner.

After this Loayza rallied, or at least Day permitted him to come back, and the fight progressed to the sixth round, with Davey showing a superiority in every round. Near the end of this round, after Day had punched his opponent around the ring, Loayza was ready to fall from punishment.

Day Decides to End It. Day coasted through the seventh round, and then in the eighth he came out determined to end it. A flurry of punches put Loayza down for the count after 1 minute and 12 seconds of the round.

The eighth round semi-windup between Sammy Moscow of Omaha, Neb., who was defeated by Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis featherweight, was an interesting match. Moscow, a wild swinging, miniature of King Levine, never was able to land a knockout punch, but he showed remarkable ability to absorb punishment.

Other results follow: Frank Genovese, Toronto, Can., welterweight, defeated Ed (Red) Chiniski, Kankakee, Ill., in six rounds. Al Soukup, featherweight, former Golden Gloves flyweight champion, stopped Buddy Kernes in two rounds, and Sam Scoglio, Cicero lightweight, defeated Jack Dallas of Davenport, Ia., in four rounds.

Pladner's Defeat Signal for French Fans to Riot

PARIS, France, July 11.—(AP)—A near riot greeted the victory of Young Perot of Tunis tonight over Spidier Pladner, French bantamweight, in a closely contested 10 round bout for the privilege of meeting Champion Panama Al Brown. The police had to keep the crowd, which thought Pladner had won, from storming into the ring.

EATON CAPTURES MEDALIST HONOR IN AMATEUR GOLF

Three Chicagoans Begin Match Play Today.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 11.—[Special.]—Zell Eaton, Oklahoma City, today won medalist honors in the 35th annual western amateur golf tournament with a total of 144 for the two days of qualifying play over the Twin Hills course.

Eaton put together a pair of 72s for his 144, which was four strokes over par, but still four better than his nearest rival, Rodney Bliss, Omaha, Neb., whose total for the two rounds was 148. Bliss posted 73 yesterday and 75 today.

Match Play Today. This was the fourth time within a year that Eaton has paced a qualifying field. He was medalist in the trans-Mississippi, the western amateur, and the Oklahoma state tournaments in 1932. This year he tied Bliss for second low amateur score, 307, in the national open.

Beginning tomorrow a field of 32 will start match play which continues through Sunday, when the championship will be decided over the 16 hole route. Two eighteen hole rounds are scheduled for tomorrow.

Jack Westland of Chicago, the defending champion, was exempt from qualifying play. With the exception of Eaton and Bliss, none was able to better 150 in the preliminaries. The highest score to qualify was 158.

Maurice Hankinson and Lucien McLaughlin, both of Oklahoma City, shot 150. Walter Emery, last year's national intercollegiate champion, shot 151, one stroke better than Charles Yates, the present college titleholder. The 153 class includes Leland Hamman, trans-Mississippi champion, John Lehman of Chicago former western titleholder posted 154. Chick Evans of Chicago qualified with 158, a mark which was tied by a number of others.

Manarchy Shoots 158. Sonny Manarchy of Rockford, Ill., who spent three days getting here by hitch-hiking, was also in the 158 class.

Qualifiers include 17 year old Charlie Reed of Chicago, who shot 159; Verne Stewart, New Mexico and southwestern titleholder; Curtis Collier, Arkansas champion; Ed White, runnerup to Yates at Cleveland in the national intercollegiate, and Dave Goldman, Dallas, 1934 trans-Mississippi medalist.

Four Chicago players—James Garrard, Art Sweet, Henry Bowber, and H. C. Gifford—failed to qualify. Garrard shot 77—163, Sweet, 80—84—164, Bowber 88—92—180, and Gifford 95—99—194.

Coming to the ninth today Eaton had a chance to turn in a par 35 for the outward journey, but took a 5 on the par 4 hole, and his third was short of the green. On the return nine Eaton was par through the 16th. On the next he was too strong with his second, which went over the green. He took a five on this hole also. On the eighteenth Eaton's second shot

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, July 11.—Joe Cronin, manager of the American league team which yesterday whipped the strongest lineup the National league could present, 9 to 7, said Carl Hubbell of the Giants, starting pitcher for the Nationals, is the best hurler he has seen. . . . He made the remark in the presence of Walter Johnson, who used to be a pretty fair chucker himself, and Walter nodded approvingly. . . . But it was the opinion of Cronin and Johnson and other baseball experts that no pitcher, not even Hubbell, could long have endured the fire of the American league attack. . . . The Giant southpaw worked only three innings, and the boys were beginning to sock the ball to distant parts of the Polo grounds when he was retired in favor of Lon Warneke. . . .

That, of course, is why the All-Star ball game is one of the greatest spectacles in sport. . . . You never know what will happen when fellows like Gehrig, Manush, Ruth, Gehrig, Fox, Simmons, and Cronin are tossed into the same lineup. . . . The second All-Star game to me lacked some of the drama of the first game at Comiskey park last summer. . . .

I am a Babe Ruth man, and when the Babe watched a third strike sail by with two on in the first inning it left me with a funny feeling in the stomach. . . . That was the spot for the Ruth of old. . . . He had a similar opportunity in the early part of the 1933 game and won the battle then and there by lifting the ball into the stands for a home run. . . . I shall remember that play vividly long after the details of the 1934 game have become hazy. . . . New York newspaper men, who were a little cold toward the All-Star game until they found the public was going for it anyway, finally admit it has come to stay. . . . As one columnist put it, the show has made good on Broadway. . . . It always is a little difficult for a New Yorker to concede anything of consequence originated elsewhere. . . .

Jimmy Foss demonstrated he can play any position on the ball club and look good in any of them. . . . Gabby Hartnett entered into the spirit of the game by putting on an All-Star complaint when Umpire Pfrman didn't call what would have been the third strike on Ruth in the fifth. . . . Before the next pitch Gehrig, waiting his turn at bat, called Pfrman to inspect the ball. . . . When the official had taken a look at it Gabby snatched it from his hand. . . . On the next pitch Ruth walked, and Hartnett was still jabbering. . . . Major league pitchers are hoping the big game never will be played in the Phillies' bandbox park or they will wish they had taken up plumbing. . . . The American league players had to catch late afternoon trains for the west. . . . Jimmy Dykes, who spent the afternoon watching Jimmy Foss play third base for the Americans, is not permitting the poor showing of the White Sox to get him down. . . . "We can't get worse and we may become better," he philosophizes. . . . Jimmy predicts there will be only four or five present members of the team on hand when the Sox open the 1935 season. . . . Simmons will be one of them, however, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. . . .

The coolest man in the park, to all appearances, was Jake Ruppert, owner of the Yankees. . . . His only show of emotion was when Ruth first stepped to the plate. . . . He lowered his chin to the rail of his box, a la Louis. . . . Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, was the hottest. . . . He and a friend rubbed ice on their hands and wrists to counteract the rays of the sun. . . . Tom Shibe, who was sitting between Mr. Ruppert and Will Harridge, president of the league, sat motionless, save for a grin when he heard a nearby spectator had left the park in a huff when he discovered the teams were not going to play a double header. . . . Yesterday all the American league players and owners were pulling together in a beautiful spirit of camaraderie, but today and every day until the 1935 All-Star game they will be bitter rivals. . . . It's the same way in the National. . . . That's another reason why the interleague game is worth while. . . . The boys come to know one another better, both on and off the field. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—The United States won the Olympic track and field championship with 194 points. . . . Twenty-four Olympic runners, representing thirteen nations, collapsed during the running of the 10,000 meter race from the excessive heat. . . . Black Gold won the renewal of the Chicago Derby at Hawthorne. . . . Hollis Thurston won his eighth straight game as the White Sox beat Boston, 17 to 8. . . . Bennie Leonard and Mickey Walker were matched by Tex Rickard to go 12 rounds at Boyle's thirty acres.

KID CHOCOLATE, HUSK OF SELF, SOUNDLY BEATEN

New York, July 11.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, just a dusky husk of the great Negro warrior the prize ring has seen in the last decade, came close to the end of the trail tonight when he lost a ten round decision to Petey Hayes, an obscure featherweight from Brooklyn, in a show that drew 8,000 to Elbert's field.

Hayes, scarcely known outside the metropolitan precincts, won a unanimous decision after flooring Chocolate twice in the third round and sending him reeling to his corner at the end of almost every round thereafter. Chocolate, a retired featherweight champion, the spectacular Cuban who fought them all from Tony Canzoneri, Jackie Kid Berg, Al Singer, and Bat Battalino down, had little or nothing to offer in the way of resistance.

Chocolate took only two rounds, the first and the sixth, and was a caricature all the way of the glitzy, glitzy, glitzy champion who started the fans with his brilliance when he broke in here unannounced five years ago. Chocolate's eyes were cut and closing at the end. He barely could stagger. All he had left was the courage he always has displayed. It was just enough to get him to the finish line.

Harry Dubinsky, Chicago lightweight, and Jimmy Leno of Hartford, Conn., belted each other lustily for ten rounds, with Dubinsky winning the referee's decision.

Ross-McLarnin Return Battle Is Slated for Sept. 6

New York, July 11.—[Special.]—A return match between Barney Ross and Jimmy McLarnin was approved at today's meeting of the state athletic commission, but the latter body did not give an ear to Jimmy Johnston's plea on behalf of Enzo Fiermonte to box Maule Rosenbloom for the light heavyweight title.

The Ross-McLarnin bout is to be fought on Sept. 6 under the auspices of the Christmas fund promoters who have still to select a site. The scene of the contest will probably be one of the local major league ball parks.

Regarding Fiermonte's challenge, Johnston was advised that the society contender for championship honors should box first against some lesser opponent so as to establish his worth as a challenger. At the same time challenges against Rosenbloom were received on behalf of Joe Chigale and Bob Olin and the commission is notifying the light heavyweight champion that he has been given 30 days in which to take up one of these challenges.

Tony Canzoneri, who has been seeking a return match with Barney Ross for the lightweight title, has been accepted as leading challenger for 135 pound honors and Ross must meet him within 60 days after the meeting between Ross and McLarnin.

HARTNETT'S BAT SHOWS WAY TO BUSH, MALONE

Pat Yields 3 Hits in 2d Contest.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Boston, Mass., July 11.—Guy Bush and Pat Malone, assisted by Gabby Hartnett and others in the power department, this afternoon took two falls out of the Boston Braves, previously the National league meanies insofar as the Cubs are concerned. The Cubs won the first game, Bush's 11th victory, 3 to 1, and they took the second, Malone's eighth, 2 to 1.

The Braves, who previously had beaten the Cubs seven times in ten games, outlit the Cubs, nine to five, in the first game, but their only run off Bush was Wally Berger's 19th home run. In this game Hartnett drove in the second run with a double and scored the third run after singling.

One of Malone's Best.

Malone pitched one of his best games in recent years in holding the enemy to three hits in the second contest. Lee's double with one down in the second, followed by Whitney's single with two out, gave the Braves their one run. The only other hit off Pat was a single with which Jordan led off the sixth inning. In this affair Hartnett drove in the first run with a double in the second inning and with two out in the fifth he singled to drive in the second and winning run.

Five runs to win a double header! And Mr. Hartnett drove in three and scored one himself. Not bad, not bad. Babe Herman drove in one of the other runs with a double and Guy Bush accounted for the remaining run batted in. The rest of the cast devoted most of the time to fielding, and there was really some nice fielding, the most spectacular of which was turned in by Stanley Hack.

Gain on Giants.

The double victory enabled the Cubs to gain a half game on the New York Giants, whom they now trail by a game and a half, and they gained a game and a half on the third place Cardinals whom they now lead by 3 1/2 games.

FIRST GAME

The first three innings of the Cub offensive left Chicago partisans to fear that the spell Boston had held over their heroes still was operative. The lads didn't get a hit off Flint Rhem in those first three innings, the total of their damage being a base on balls which Cuyler drew with one out in the second inning.

In the fourth, however, they made two of their five hits, and the fruits thereof were sufficient for victory. English started this successful inning by walking, but immediately was forced by Klein, Babe Herman doubled to left, scoring Klein. The Babe reached third on Cuyler's infield out and scored on Hartnett's double off the left field signboard. Whitney threw out Grimm.

Hack led off the sixth with the third Cub hit, a single to center, and moved to second on Bush's sacrifice. Billy Herman and English couldn't get Hack past second.

Bush drove in the final Cub run in the seventh. Hartnett pushed off with his second and the Cubs' fourth hit, a single to center, and went to second while Rhem was throwing out Grimm. Hack walked. . . . Bush singled through short, scoring Hartnett. W. Herman rounded out his first hitless game in 18 when he hit into a double play.

Betta, who pitched the last two innings, faced only six batsmen. The first two, English and Klein, were strikeout victims. The Braves made one hit in the first, two in the second, and one in the third. They went out in order in the fourth, but knocked one single in the fifth and another in the sixth. Good fielding, especially by Hack, took much of the fearsome quality out of the Braves' hits prior to the seventh.

Berger led off the seventh with homer No. 19 for the Braves' only run. Moore then bounced out to Grimm, but Lee walked. Whitney singled to deep short, but after reaching second, Lee fell and rolled away from the bag and Billy Herman tagged him for the second out. Spohrer singled to right for the third hit of the inning, putting Whitney on third. Thompson, batting for Rhem, fanned. Neither side threatened thereafter.

SECOND GAME

Overeagerness by Billy Herman probably kept the Cubs from getting off to a productive start in the first inning. He walked to start the game, and immediately was caught three feet away from the bag on a throw from Lefty Brandt. English fanned. Klein doubled over Urbanski's head and pulled a tendon in his right thigh sliding into second. Stanback ran for him and later took his place in the outfield. The inning ended on Babe Herman's long fly to Moore.

Both teams scored in the second inning. The Cubs got their run before any one was out. Cuyler drew a pass and scored on Hartnett's double to center. Grimm lined to McManus.

TAKE FINAL STEP TO REORGANIZE DRAKE TOWER

Bondholders Acquire the Title to Property.

Final steps in the reorganization of the debt-adjusted Drake Tower apartments at 471-73 Lake Shore drive yesterday when Walter Cohns, vice president of the First National bank conveyed title to the bank to Drake Towers, Inc., an Illinois corporation, organized by deposit bondholders. This conveyance was made pursuant to a plan of reorganization filed with the court by the bondholders July 1932, and approved by the Circuit court.

The reorganization plan provided for the issuance of 4 per cent income bonds to the extent of one-half of the original amount of bonds deposited with the bondholders' protective committee and the issuance of voting trust certificates to the depositor share holders, all for the balance Sufficient Funds on Hand.

The committee has sufficient funds on hand to provide for payment of expenses of reorganization and current taxes, according to Mr. Coburn. No new reorganization mortgage is necessary, he states.

The old owner, the Drake Tower Building corporation, does not participate in the reorganization plan except that it may exercise an option for term of five years from Nov. 1, 1918 to acquire title to the mortgaged property.

erty terms said to be favorable to the bondholders. This option was given in return for its relinquishment of the equity and the cancellation of the $335,000 second mortgage.

"Interest on the new 6 per cent bonds is being paid simultaneously with the delivery of the securities at the first interest period," said J. Cohrs. "The new securities, together with the first interest distribution, will be sent out to the depositing bondholders very shortly."

Deposits Total 92.7 Per Cent.

NEBRASKA ENDS EXPERIMENT IN BANK GUARANTYScheme Failed When Depressions Came.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The state of Nebraska yesterday wound up twenty-five years of bank deposit guaranty experiment. The state banking department mailed checks to cover the $134,000 remaining in the guaranty fund, thereby terminating a scheme that began in 1909, worked well in good times and failed with disastrous consequences when depression came along.

The $134,000 paid out yesterday went to pay in full the remaining claims of depositors in the defunct Royal State bank and the First State bank of Battle.

Nebraska adopted compulsory deposit insurance after Oklahoma had blazed the trail. All state banks were required to join the insurance fund which became operative in 1911.

Law Increased Banks. There followed a great boom in state banks. From 647 in 1911 the number of state banks in Nebraska increased steadily to 1,008 in June, 1920. Total deposits of state banks grew to $91 million dollars, an increase of 237 million, or 447 per cent, in nine years.

National banks, not covered by the fund, declined in number and their deposits increased less than 74 per cent during the period. Fancied security of the guaranty plan drew millions to Nebraska state banks from institutions in other states.

During this period there was little strain to test the soundness of the guaranty scheme. Booms, credit inflation and the easy financial prosperity brought on by the war brought big demand for deposits and agricultural products and there were few bank failures.

Trouble came with the depression year ending June, 1921. Sixteen state banks failed. From 1921 to 1934 the number of state banks in Nebraska fell to 238. In 1934, 11 state banks closed, 19 in 1932, 11 in 1933, 23 in 1932, 19 in 1932, 44 in 1932.

Law Repealed in 1930. The big strain on the guaranty fund came in 1929 when 106 state banks with total liabilities of 20 million dollars failed. In 1930 after 50 more banks had failed the years of desperate efforts to reorganize the fund ended and the plan was abandoned through repeal.

Seventeen years of the Nebraska guaranty plan cost the state banks $17,700,000 in assessments. During the first nine years these levies averaged 1.3 per cent of the aggregate capital surplus and undivided profits. During the last three years they were equivalent to an average of 4.16 per cent. Some banks paid a higher ratio than others.

The guaranty law when enacted in 1909 was sponsored by Gov. A. C. Shallenberger, now congressman from the Fifth district of Nebraska. In the early twenties when the fund began to break down Shallenberger as father of the law was called in to investigate its operation. He spent $100,000 on the investigation and reported "the guaranty fund law brought prosperity and strength to the state banks and saved depositors from losses of millions of dollars."

System Held Unconstitutional. Later the U. S. Supreme court held the whole system unconstitutional. Legal delays until yesterday had prevented the depositors of the meager accumulation in the settlement fund. Last year in a report on the Nebraska guaranty fund plan the American Bankers' association stated:

"Even these ruinous expropriations of the legitimate earnings of the stateless institutions to make good the shortcomings of others were far from sufficient to serve the supposed public purposes for which they were taken. The guaranty fund was only partly protected. It would appear that, under the conditions that were allowed to go on under the public banking policies that were followed, the creation of a sufficient fund to constitute an actual guaranty against any loss by depositors would have consumed the earnings of good, well managed banks to so great an extent as to drive investment capital away from the state and render the maintenance of a state banking structure impossible."

Depositors Lose 22 Million Dollars. In addition to the appropriation of $17,700,000 from good banks to cover the losses of depositors in poor banks the depositing public lost 22 million dollars in unpaid deposits and interest.

Expect Wire Control Board to Cut Rates

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 11.—Enforced reductions in telephone and telegraph rates appeared likely today as the new federal communications commission got under way at a formal organization meeting, and the radio commission, its predecessor, automatically passed into history.

Chairman Eugene O. Sykes of the new commission was noncommittal on the subject of rates during a discussion of the many problems facing the infant agency, except to say: "We certainly hope we can save money for the taxpayers."

It was recalled that "reduction of rates, prevention of speculative manipulation and watering of stocks" were the chief reasons cited in the report to President Roosevelt by an interdepartmental committee in support of the need for the new commission. It was this report which moved the President to seek congressional authorization for establishment of the regulatory body.

Believes Rates Can Be Cut. The committee's study of the communications field over a period of several months led it to the conclusion that rates for telephone and telegraph service should be reduced through regulation of company profits, overhead expenses and inter-company charges.

The new commission, which, in addition to Chairman Sykes, includes Thad Brown, Paul Walker, Irvin Stuart, Norman S. Case, George Henry Payne, and Harrison Gary, is expected to enter upon an exhaustive study of the communication company rates structure as soon as personnel problems have been disposed of. Sykes and Brown are holdovers from the radio commission and with Stuart, formerly of the state department, are expected to have charge of the radio division.

Two other divisions dealing respectively with telephone and telegraph communication will be established in the near future. Thereafter, the rate study will begin and will have largely to do with the American Telephone and Telegraph company, largest of holding companies. Also to be considered is the operation of about 6,000 so-called independent companies.

Recommendations embodying the results of the investigation must be made to congress by the commission not later than Sept. 1 as a basis for amendments to the present act. Outstanding among the latter is expected to be specific authority for the commission to regulate rates and to prescribe maximum and reasonable charges.

A separate recommendation is to be made on the desirability of legislation setting aside a definite amount of broadcasting time for use of educational, labor and other nonprofit organizations.

Among its first official acts today, the commission issued temporary licenses to the Columbia and National Broadcasting companies, authorizing their maintenance of existing broadcasting studios or other facilities and apparatus used for production or transmission of radio programs to Canadian stations.

BLUE ISLAND
IN THREE WEEKS

The State Bank of Blue Island will be ready to reopen within three weeks, W. Otto Wielogorski, attorney for the reorganization and depositors committee, announced yesterday.

The plan for reopening involves a 50 per cent waiver by depositors. Already two-thirds of the waivers have been received, and are continuing to come in as rapidly as they can be handled, Mr. Wielogorski stated.

The bank will reopen under the federal deposit insurance plan. Selection of the reorganization committee has not been completed. Members of the depositors' committee are: chairman, Dr. F. W. Tracy, Louis Bledon, court, William Row, Louis Nagel, and Rudolph Heitmann.

LONG HAUL RULE
MAY BE IGNORED
ON LIVE STOCK

Washington, D. C., July 11.—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce commission today granted authority to railroads to establish rates on live stock in carload lots in both the Turkish and line territory without observing the long and short haul provision of the Interstate Commerce act.

The order provides that relief from that provision will apply where the distance between points in western trunk lines is more than 70 per cent longer than the shortest route.

It also would apply where the distance over the shortest route exceeds 150 miles and the circuitous route is more than 50 per cent longer than the shortest route.

STEEL OUTPUT
CLIMBS TO 27
PCT. CAPACITYAuto, Rail Groups
Help Demand.

Steel output this week has risen 30 per cent over that of last week, according to Iron Age. The ingot production rate is now stated to be 27 per cent of capacity, compared with 22 per cent last week. Chicago production remains at 28 per cent of capacity. The scrap composite price reached the lowest level of the year at $10.58 a ton.

The gain in output this week is attributed to consumption by public works projects, the automotive industry, and railroads. Steel producers also are building up their own inventories in some instances.

The schedules moved higher or remained firm at all principal producing districts except the Birmingham and Wheeling areas, where there were declines of 5 points to 45 and 35 per cent of capacity, respectively. Detroit open hearth plants are still running at capacity, and the output at Pittsburgh has gained 8 points to 15 per cent of capacity. At Philadelphia there was a rise of 3 points to 23 per cent. Production in the valleys district is now at 28 per cent of capacity, a rise of 18 points. Cleveland gained 10 points to 34 per cent, and Buffalo 5 points to 15 per cent.

Rolling on Bids. A ruling has been made by the legal division of the NRA to the effect that the filing of a bid price with a code authority, in accordance with the executive order of June 23, does not effect a change in the bid price. The executive order referred to concerns tenders to the government or subdivisions of the government.

Changes in the filed minimum base prices must be made by the code authority with provisions of the code under which the industry operates. Steel producers who bid directly to the government on small tonnage and who believed that contractual relations under the code were not affected by the new order are in accord with this.

Public Works Program. The public works program requires from 12,000 to 14,000 tons of sheet piling for the Fort Peck, Mont., dam, to be divided between two producers. Awards have been made for 4,300 tons of structural steel for a structural letting for the week were 20,800 tons, against 10,550 tons in the preceding week and 8,700 tons in the last week of June.

Automobile production during July will reach 280,000 units, according to estimates. Heavier sales for June than were anticipated resulted from price reductions, and automobile manufacturers are hopeful that the buying wave may extend into August.

Composite Price Declines. The Iron Age composite price for steel has declined to 2.131 cents a pound from 2.159 cents a pound, the level since April 24 when the price was advanced $3.22 a ton from a price of 2.008 cents a pound. The decline during the week resulted from reduced quotations on bars, plates, shapes, sheets, and hot-rolled strip.

Large rivets have been reduced $2 a ton to $3.90 a hundred pounds at a Pittsburgh or Cleveland. Electrical sheet prices are lower, and reduced quotations will become effective soon on the cost of electrical sheet, alloy steel ingots, billets, and slabs, cold-finished alloy steel bars, and other products. The Iron Age pig iron composite is unchanged at $17.90 a gross ton.

LAUNCH STUDY OF COAL PRICES
IN ST. LOUIS AREA

St. Louis, Mo., July 11.—(AP)—Fuel costs here, boosted 7.8 per cent in the last six months, were under state and national investigation today. Numerous complaints, the consumers' advisory board instituted an investigation following publication of a report by Secretary of Labor Perkins showing retail coal prices here had increased more than in any other city of the country.

Nicholson, city purchasing agent of Milwaukee, said cement prices were 6 per cent higher than in 1932. During the hearing C. F. Conn, president of the Cement Institute, protested the recent executive order permitting quotations of 15 per cent below posted prices on government bids.

Power Output Slips; Retains Gain Over '33

Production of electricity for the week ended July 7 was 1,555,844 kilowatt hours, a decrease of 7.8 per cent from the output of the preceding week, but a gain of 1.1 per cent over the corresponding week of 1933, according to Edison Electric Institute.

Output in the Chicago district showed a gain of 3.1 per cent over the corresponding period of last year, the Commonwealth Edison company announced.

The decline in production from the preceding week was attributed to the Fourth of July holiday. Total national output for the preceding week was 1,688,211,000 kilowatt hours, when the gain over the figures of a year ago was 2 per cent.

DOLLAR RISES
AGAINST POUND,
FRENCH FRANC

New York, July 11.—In spite of the revival of inflation talk stimulated by Senator Thomas' attack on the present dollar through his cable to George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the dollar held firm in foreign exchange today and advanced slightly against sterling, the franc and a few other currencies.

Sterling was down 1/4 cent to $4.04, the franc was off 1/4 point to 6.94, the dollar and the guinea fell 1 point to 67.80 cents. The market for the franc and the guinea fell 1 point to 32.56 cents. Canadian dollars were up slightly at a full per cent premium.

Regional changes over the 1933 period for last week, with comparisons of changes for the preceding week were: Middle Atlantic, 5.8 per cent, against 2.7 per cent; West Central, 1.6 per cent, against 5.3 per cent; Rocky Mountain, 1.7 per cent, against 1.5 per cent; Pacific coast, 11.9 per cent, against 11.1 per cent.

Regional losses from the 1933 period with comparisons of changes for the preceding week were: New England, 11.3 per cent, against a decrease of 6.7 per cent; Central Industrial, 0.3 per cent, against a gain of 2.6 per cent, and southern states, 4.2 per cent, against a gain of 1.9 per cent.

CEMENT TOO HIGH
SO BUILDING LAGS,
MAYORS DECLARE

Washington, D. C., July 11.—(AP)—The United States conference of mayors today asserted building construction was lagging because cement prices were too high. Appearing at an NRA hearing Joseph W. Nicholson, representing the city executives, said:

"We believe that the purposes of NRA would be better served by maintaining lower prices and thus keeping the cost of construction within reach. In the case of cement this would result in encouraging building construction."

"I have personal knowledge of many contemplated construction plans which have been laid aside due to the unusual advance in the cost of building materials, cement being one of the most important of these."

Nicholson, city purchasing agent of Milwaukee, said cement prices were 6 per cent higher than in 1932. During the hearing C. F. Conn, president of the Cement Institute, protested the recent executive order permitting quotations of 15 per cent below posted prices on government bids.

IT'S HOT, DRY, COLD AND FINE IN CROP
BELTS, U. S. REPORTS

Washington, D. C., July 11.—(AP)—The weather bureau in its weekly crop bulletin today recorded a paradoxical situation with local frost damage in exposed northwestern localities, extreme drought over south central states, and improved conditions in the middle west.

Widespread showers during the last week were "kindly and dividedly beneficial" in the eastern Ohio valley, the lake region, and central and northern sections. The "helpful" rain in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, northern Illinois, Wisconsin, central and northern Iowa, southern Minnesota, and parts of eastern North Dakota, southeastern South Dakota, northern Nebraska, and southeastern Kansas.

In other sections of the country, however, "the week was mostly dry and hot, and drought conditions were intensified." This area included much of Illinois, most of Missouri and Kansas, portions of western Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, much of Colorado and Wyoming, and the great basin. Other extremely dry areas include western North Dakota and eastern Montana, with practically all crops abandoned in the latter section and a serious stock situation continuing.

CROP RULE WILL
COTTON CHIEFSmall Grower Pays
Tax, He Asserts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Washington, D. C., July 11.—The doctrine of compulsory government control over farm production through such regulatory measures as the Bankhead cotton bill is about to crack up on the rocks of its own ineffectiveness.

This was the prediction today of Oscar Johnston, manager of the AAA cotton option pool, who is generally regarded as the farm administrator's foremost authority on matters pertaining to cotton. In private life Johnston manages one of the world's largest cotton plantations and his familiarity with the viewpoint of southern producers springs from long personal experience as one of them.

Returning today from a trip through the south, Johnston, AAA director, declared that the cotton producers of the nation are just awakening to the consequences of the drastic Bankhead bill, which seeks to limit cotton production through application of a prohibitive tax on excess bales.

He believed, he said, that President Roosevelt may soon be called upon to seek repeal of the act or to suspend its operation by executive order.

It is becoming increasingly apparent, Mr. Johnston declared, that the tax on excess bales will be borne almost solely by the tenant farmer and the share cropper—both of whom are least able to meet the levy. When this circumstance comes home to the majority of southern farmers, he predicted, the clamor for relief from the Bankhead bill will force action to suspend its provisions.

According to Johnston, the bill exercised tremendous weight in bringing farmers into the voluntary cotton acreage control program this year. Those producers who had been reluctant to sign voluntary agreements did so in many cases, he said, out of fear of the drastic compulsory features of the Bankhead measure.

To this extent, he admitted, the bill may have operated for the good of the producer.

But in actual operation he declared, the plan cannot work out. The large landowner and plantation operator, he explained, will escape payment of the so-called prohibitive tax on bales, while the levy will fall most heavily on the small farmer, the tenant farmer, and the share cropper.

In addition, he asserted, the tax of 11 1/2 cents per pound on bales in excess of the fixed government quota will not deter farmers from marketing their cotton. An individual cotton producer, he explained, sets out ordinarily to raise a certain number of bales, whether he finally produces more or less than that given amount, depends on weather and other conditions. For example, if a farmer sets out to raise an allotment of 10 bales, he might, with favorable weather, raise 15 bales. The ten bales would be tax free under the Bankhead bill, but the remaining five bales the farmer can sell at a profit in most cases despite the tax imposed by the government.

Large Growers Exempt. In reality, Johnston said, farmers would have no incentive to abandon cotton raised in excess of their tax exempt allotment, since at present prices producers would be able to realize the cost of production, perhaps even a profit, on excess cotton even after paying the federal tax on gin bales. The tax would be tax free under the Bankhead bill, but the remaining five bales the farmer can sell at a profit in most cases despite the tax imposed by the government.

Share croppers and small farmers likewise will be forced to meet the tax on their own production. Mr. Johnston pointed out, leaving them only taxable cotton from which to derive an income.

IMPORTED WINE, LIQUOR STOCKS
GAIN STEADILY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Washington, D. C., July 11.—Stocks of imported wines and liquors which have increased steadily since repeal, totaled 4,560,520 gallons of liquor and 2,151,512 gallons of wine at the end of June. The increase in the stock of liquors was 125,915 gallons but the total entering into consumption, 386,790 gallons, was 13,134 gallons greater than in May. Total imports of distilled liquors and wines were 16 per cent higher than in any month since repeal, and were less than 1.3 of import in February.

The high duty of $5 a gallon is imposed on imported liquors except those from Cuba, which pays $4 a gallon. The duty on sparkling wines is $6 per gallon [$4.50 if from Cuba] and on still wines, $1.25 per gallon [$1 if from Cuba].

The duties collected on distilled liquor totaled $2,328,966, as compared with $18,519,988 on all other imports.

Railroad Credit Corporation to Pay 9th Refund of 1 Pct.

F. G. Buckland, president of the Railroad Credit corporation, announced today that another liquidating distribution will be made by that organization to participating carriers July 31. This refund will be the ninth that has been made and will amount to $728,502, or 1 per cent of the fund created by pooling the net proceeds of the emergency freight rates through March 31, 1933.

Cotton Prices
Highest Since
August, 1930

A rush of buying which flooded cotton pits of leading markets throughout the country yesterday sent prices whirling more than $1 1/2 a bale above the previous close and carried values to the highest levels since August, 1930.

Crop fears emphasized by the government's crop report Monday, based on drought damage in the western belt and reports of boll weevil damage in eastern and central portions, produced an insistent demand. At the close, prices were more than $4 above levels prevailing at the end of last week.

Grain Rise Is Helped. Buoyant grain markets provided plenty of sympathetic buying ammunition for the two commodities frequently follow each other. Profit taking was heavy throughout the day and minor reactions were recorded as times, but these proved short lived. The 13 cent level, which has not been witnessed for some time, was crossed long before the closing gong.

Publication of a letter credited to Oscar Johnston of the AAA Agricultural adjustment administration, dated July 5, saying the government has not sold any of its 10 cent loan cotton was bullish received. He said loans were extended to Feb. 1, 1935, and added the Commodity Credit corporation had no thought of hedging against these holdings.

Interested in Pool Stock. The only other cotton in which the government is directly or indirectly interested is pool cotton of about 2,000,000 bales and 35,000 bales of futures remaining from the old farm board's holdings of 900,000 bales which were taken over.

Private reports for Texas asserted the crop situation was daily becoming more serious. Prospects are extremely poor and the need of rains is growing steadily.

The New York Cotton exchange service estimated that the total consumption of all cotton in this country during June amounted to 390,000 bales. This compared with 429,000 in May and 698,000 in June a year ago.

Cash prices moved up 25 points in New York to 13.90 and 25 points to 12.90 in Houston and 12.95 in New Orleans. Prices:

PALMOLIVE-PEET
RESUMES COMMON
DIVIDEND BASIS

New York, July 11.—(AP)—Directors of Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company today declared a dividend of 12 1/2 cents on common stock payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 23. This is the first disbursement on the common stock since Jan. 21, 1933, when 25 cents was paid.

Allegany Steel company directors declared a dividend of 15 cents on common stock, payable Aug. 15 to stock of record Aug. 1. This is the first disbursement since December, 1931, when 5 cents was paid.

REPUBLIC-OTIS
STEEL MERGER IS EXPECTED LATER

Cleveland, O., July 11.—(Special.)—Otis Steel company will be merged with the Republic Steel corporation after the latter concern has consolidated with the Corbin-McCormick Steel company, and the Cleveland, Cliffs Iron company will join the steel combine still later, it was reported in financial circles here today.

The plan to include Otis was temporarily shelved when the Corbin-McCormick Steel company was acquired. It was reported, but the company will be offered a new proposition soon as the present deal is completed. The inclusion of Cleveland-Cliffs would be a logical move, it was said by financial observers, and is now being studied by officials of the company.

JUMP LIMIT ON
RUSH OF BUYINGU. S. Crop Estimates
Shock Traders.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The government's pessimistic forecast on the probable American wheat crop yields awakened tremendous buying power in markets here and abroad yesterday and prices of all grains advanced in spectacular fashion. Prices on the Board of Trade hit the "ceiling" and stayed there most of the day. The "ceiling" is the arbitrary limit imposed by the government on the exchange at the instigation of the federal government.

The 5 cents a bushel limit on wheat prices and the 4 cents limit on corn were reached as soon as the market opened yesterday and quotations seldom got below the maximum figures. As a result trading was brought to a standstill several times during the day. Oats, rye, and barley advanced along with the wheat, and, with the exception of barley, the closing prices represented the maximum advance under the restrictions.

Winnipeg Bounds 6 Cents. Unhappily by restrictions, wheat prices in the Winnipeg market advanced more than 6 cents a bushel. Wheat buyers here were unable to fill their orders they bought on the Canadian exchange, giving that market additional strength. The crop situation in the United States also inspired buying in the Liverpool market and, with the exception of barley, the closing prices represented the maximum advance under the restrictions.

Confusion prevailed in the corn and wheat pits on the Board of Trade for several minutes after the arbitrary limit was reached. Buying orders and the lack of offerings immediately hoisted prices to the maximum limits. It was several minutes before the order could be filled. Whenever prices dropped below the maximum, the offerings were quickly absorbed and prices rebounded.

Buying Extremely Heavy. The buying demand in both wheat and corn was described by brokers as tremendous.

STOCK FERRY SUBSIDIES, BUT PRICES WENT UP

Alcohol Shares Break on Heavy Selling.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
New York, July 11.—The share market looked a bit fagged today, but its exertions on the upside in the previous sessions. Prices moved ahead with some promise in the early dealing, but activity gradually subsided and the remainder of the session was devoted to nothing more important than a series of backing and filling movements with floor traders supplying the bulk of business. Closing figures were fractionally higher as a rule.

The freeworks on the Chicago grain pit touched off by the government's sensational crop report predicting the smallest yield in forty years had little appreciable influence on stock speculation. None of the market influence from other sources was mixed. The midwest steel reviews confirmed earlier estimates of moderate recovery from a sharp fall, but new orders still are being sought without great success.

Railroad traffic and electric power output statistics coming to hand showed a falling off from the previous week and the figures on building permits for June were sharply under those of May. Motion picture stocks, on the other hand, were helped somewhat by a reported change in production policy, and the mining issue continued to make hay on the revival of inflation talk.

An unsettling influence of some weight was the heavy selling in alcohol stocks, particularly National Distillers and American Commercial, both of which dropped to new lows for the year on declines of 1 to more than 2 points. At its low Distillers was about $3 a share under the proposed offering of a new issue to shareholders. The weakness of the group in view of the speculative following gave an air of uncertainty to other sectors with vulnerable ramparts.

Best Group Showings.
Industrial, chemical, and sugar issues turned in the best group showings. American can crossed par for the first time in many months. Coca-Cola established a new high, as did Coca Cola, which has been moving forward with amazing regularity of late.

Some interest was aroused by a flurry of speculation in New York traction stocks, which perked up from time to time on a revival of inflation talk. Brooklyn Manhattan Transit rose 3 points to the best price of the year, and Interborough moved up nearly a point.

Realizing sales were well absorbed by the railroad shares, but the group finished no better than irregular. Southern Railway broke more than a point on a sharp advance.

Farm issues improved in sympathy with grain and cotton. Case and International Harvester advanced a point or so each.

The motor group Chrysler met good demand at intervals and hit a new high for the current movement. Silver stocks had a good day, U. S. Smelting running up nearly 3 points.
